Leaders Gather In Helsinki

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — President Ford, Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and leaders from 33 other countries assembled here Tuesday for a supersummit described both as a boon to detente and a sellout of Eastern Europeans.

The Conference on European Security and Cooperation opens Wednesday and ends Friday with the signing of a nonbinding document that tacitly accepts the postwar map of Europe in exchange for promises of greater civil liberties for Russians and Eastern Europeans.

Ford on his arrival in Helsinki said, "America's well-being is tied to the security of Europe."

He warned that provisions of the declaration "must be translated into policies of action by the participating states if we are to realize the promises of greater security and cooperation in Europe."

"The United States will participate fully in this process," Ford said.

He arrived from Krakow, Poland, where he was warmly greeted by a crowd of about 70,000. He paid a 27-hour visit to Poland which included a trip to the former Nazi death camp of Auschwitz, where he vowed a "dedicated pursuit of peace." He also visited Warsaw.

Mrs. Ford, who accompanied her husband on the 10-day, five-nation trip which began last weekend in West Germany, was reported well-rested after cancelling most of her engagements Monday.

Ford and Brezhnev head the list of leaders who will put their signatures on the 30,000-word charter, a kind of code of conduct for nations.

Only Albania, an ally of China, is missing from the roll call of European nations. The countries, which include Canada and the United States, range from superpowers to tiny San Marino and the Vatican.

Ford, under attack from conservative congressmen, has defended U.S. participation by saying the document represents "significant progress in our continuing efforts to achieve a more productive East-West relationship."

However, the conference is viewed as a crowning personal achievement for Brezhnev, 68-year-old general secretary of the Soviet Communist party.

He, more than any other Soviet leader during the last two decades, has pushed for the conference as part of a program of East-West detente, proclaimed at the 24th congress of the Soviet party in the spring of 1971.

The supersummit is the largest such gathering since the Congress of Vienna in 1814-15 when European nations met to divide up the spoils of Napoleon's shattered empire.

But West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt warned against euphoric hopes for the future of Europe in the wake of the summit. He said upon arrival at Helsinki airport that the standards set forth in the 100-page, leather-bound document "still have to be met."

"All 35 participants will be measured by them when high officials meet again in two years," the chancellor said.

Representatives of the 35 participating nations agreed during the closing days of the preparatory talks in Geneva to hold another meeting in 1977 in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, to assess the effectiveness of the conference charter.

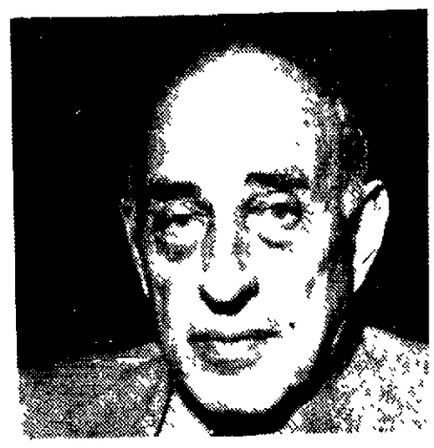
It is not legally binding and provides no penalties for nations which violate its provisions, depending almost entirely on the good will of the participating nations.

As fa as the Soviets are concerned, the key part of the document says the participating states "regard as inviolable one another's frontiers as well as the frontiers of all states in Europe, and therefore they will refrain now and in the future from assailing these frontiers."

Critics of Western acceptance claim this principle legitimizes Soviet annexation of the Baltic states — Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia — and the Soviet-backed installation of Communist regimes in Eastern Europe during and just after World War II.

In return for this clause, Moscow agreed to accept another saying frontiers may be changed peacefully in accordance with international law. This was partly to accommodate West Germany whose government is pledged under the constitution to strive for the reunification of Germany.

The West also won concessions — again not legally binding — which on paper strive to improve the lot of Russians and Eastern Europeans. They cover such matters as the reunification of families, intermarriage between Westerners and East-bloc citizens and working conditions for journalists.



Nebraskans Fill Medical School

By DON WALTON

Eighty-three percent of the 145 students admitted to the University of Nebraska College of Medicine in 1975 attended high schools in Nebraska.

Only one of the 145 is not a legal resident of this state.

Those figures, presented to the Board of REgents last week, indicate to Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln that his proposed legislative study of the college's admission practices is already yielding results.

"That's the kind of information we want," Barnett said.

"They might be doing the right thing. And if they are, this study should forever dispel the myths about admission practices."

Barnett had been concerned about the number of non-Nebraskans who might be gaining entry to the college while Nebraska students are turned away.

Another "myth" which he wants to pursue is whether you need to be a physician's son or daughter to clear the admission barrier.

Only 11% of the 1975 entering class are sons or daughters of physicians, the College of Medicine admissions committee reported to the regents.

Twenty percent are the offspring of farmers and ranchers and 19% are the sons or daughters of laborers.

In the years since 1965, the percentage of students whose parents are physicians ranged from 9% to 16%.

The Legislature's Public Health and Welfare Committee has tentatively scheduled an Aug. 12 meeting to consider Barnett's resolution.

Barnett plans to participate in the committee's deliberations.

The ideal answer to the difficulty in gaining entrance to the College of Medicine is an expansion of its facilities, Barnett believes.

There were 504 applications from Nebraskans of legal residence for the 145 slots opened for admission in 1975.

Lincoln fared particularly well in 1975 admissions.

By legal residence, 29% of the new students came from the Lincoln area. Twenty-five percent resided in the Omaha area, and 45% in other Nebraska communities.

Twenty-three percent of the students attended high school in Lancaster County. Eighteen percent attended high school in Douglas County, and 42% completed high school in other Nebraska communities.

All applicants are interviewed and evaluated by an admissions committee appointed by the dean of the college.

The committee includes two assistant deans for student affairs, four full-time members of the faculty, two members of the volunteer faculty in private practice, two medical students and one resident house officer.

The committee evaluates scholastic records, scores of the Medical College admission test and the results of interviews.

Space Programs Differ But Astronauts Similar

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

Astronaut Col. William R. Pogue got an early insight into the Soviet space program during the Paris Air Show last year when two cosmonauts proudly explained that their men in space were now drinking reprocessed urine.

When Pogue expressed interest, one of the cosmonauts told him of the historic, but unheralded, moment that was first achieved: he filled a cup with the reprocessed liquid, looked at it for a moment, then handed it to his fellow cosmonaut and said, "You go first."

The programs may be different, but the people in them are the same.

U.S. Marking Time

One of the differences in programs in the next few years, Pogue said, will be an increased Russian emphasis on manned space flight while the U.S. program marks time until the space shuttle can be completed.

"I can't see anything but an increased pace in their (manned) activity," Pogue told 15 University of Nebraska-Lincoln professors at a seminar Tuesday. "I expect them to go 90-100 days on their next (manned space laboratory) mission."

Pogue, in Lincoln to deliver the annual Avery Lecture to UNL faculty and students, said U.S.-Soviet cooperation for the next few years will be limited to "supporting each other in automated satellite (missions)."

More Versatility

But a "truly operational age of space exploration" will begin with the completion and successful testing of the space shuttle, he said. Pogue said the shuttle will add versatility by allowing scientists to introduce new experiments and payloads without having to redesign the spacecraft.

When completed, the shuttle will have a 15 foot by 60 cargo bay, land like an airplane and be reuseable, he said.

Pogue was a member of the crew foir the third manned Skylab mission, which set a space endurance record of 84 days, one hour and 16 minutes.

That crew traveled 34.5 million miles while circling the earth 1,214 times at a velocity of about 17,200 miles per hour. Fifty-eight scientific and technical experiments were conducted, including solar photography and observation of the comet Kohoutek.

A Little Overcooked

Pogue said the closest he and the other two crew members came to a disagreement while living in Skylab ("about the size of a modest three-bedroom house") was the day he got too ambitious in warming up the frozen foods.

He noticed that astronaut Ed Gibson wasn't eating his food that day. He just kept playing with it.

Finally, Pogue said, Gibson looked up at him and said, "Bill, did you really mean to put my ice cream in the heater?"

Pogue said the space program is now getting "pretty good" support from Congress. Some of NASA's earlier funding problems, he said, came because "we were so busy in our jobs that we let a lack of communication develop — we didn't tell people what we were doing or why we were doing it."

To some extent, that lack of communication has been corrected, Pogue said, and in foreign countries "you don't even have to sell the space program . . . they're hungry for it."

One-Night Rock Concert OKd; Series Denied

By NANCY HICKS

Outdoor music concerts, a new headache for the Lancaster County Board, took up much of the regular Tuesday afternoon meeting.

With some apologies about the lack of guidelines and direction, the board denied an amusement license request by David Hibler for Sunday afternoon concerts but granted a one-night amusement license for an Aug. 23 concert at Midwest Speedway.

The board then directed the county attorney's office to work out specific guidelines for future music festival requests so that groups who plan to have more than one event will not have to go through a public hearing before each concert.

Hibler, who had proposed that a series of Sunday afternoon concerts by local bands be held at his home near Wilderness Park, was denied a license by a unanimous vote.

"I support small concerts, but not at Hibler's (home)" said Commissioner Bruce Hamilton. "Here we have water problems, parking problems, toilet problems, zoning problems, neighborhood problems . . . too many problems."

However the location for the second concert, at Midwest Speedway, 4600 N. 27th, presented few problems, since the speedway was designed for recreational events.

Attorney for Season's Best Promotions, R. Scott Rager, carefully outlined the ample parking, the 4,700 seating capacity in the stands, the security, health and sanitation plans.

The promoters, an unincorporated group of four or five local men, are expecting a 3,500 to 5,000 crowd for the event which features a nationally known band, The Average White Man.

The promoters were granted a one-night license from 6 p.m. to midnight, Aug. 23 on a two to one vote. Commissioner Robert Colin voted against the license because of previous neighborhood complaints about the noise generated at the speedway.

A mix-up in the first amusement license granted for an outdoor concert will be ironed out between the county attorney's office and the promoters, Belmont Enterprises, according to a directive by the board.

The motion granting the license at Arrow Airport, specified a one-night event. However the application form used and the license issued were both for one year.

The board doesn't want to spend all its time having amusement license hearings, Board Chairman Jan Gauger said.

In other action the board reaffirmed its commitment to an insurance bidding procedure insurance brokerage firms which meet county guidelines are assigned certain companies and work with these companies only on bid quotes.

Alexander & Alexander asked that an open bidding system be used where insurance agents can contact and provide quotes from any carrier or company.

The problem with the assignment of companies came after Alexander & Alexander and another local firm both asked to be assigned the same carrier in bidding on the county's casualty insurance.

The county's two insurance consultants, Dr. Roy Louden and Dr. Leonard Berekson, flipped a coin to determine who would be assigned that company. Alexander & Alexander lost the flip.

Alexander & Alexander, the broker for the county's current casualty coverage, contends that they had already completed preliminary work with this particular carrier before the assignment of companies. The firm also contends that as the county's largest brokerage firm it could get a better quote from this particular carrier.

After guaranteeing that any future coin flipping will take place in public with the brokers present, the board voted 2 to 1 to continue the current bidding procedure. Only Hamilton voted against the motion.

In other action the board set an Aug. 12 public hearing on the 1975-76 budget. The hearing will be held at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

Electricity Use Passes Record

Lincoln residents set a new all-time record in electricity consumption Tuesday, according to a Lincoln Electric System spokesman.

The 340,000-kilowatt power load broke the 332,507 kw record set July 18, 1974, during the 21-day drought. The record was set and broken six times last year.

The weather is expected to continue sunny and hot Wednesday, with the high in the 90s. Rain is possible by the weekend.

Bar Hit; White Owner Shot Black

Detroit (AP) — Using an automobile as a battering ram, a group of blacks Tuesday night attacked and ransacked a bar whose white owner 24 hours earlier fatally shot a black youth.

Sporadic violence continued into the evening as flak-jacketed police swept crowds of blacks from the streets near the site where 18-year-old Obie Wynn was shot. The youth died Tuesday of a wound in the back of the head.

Police pelted a crowd of about 300 blacks, mostly teen-agers, with tear gas after being showered with rocks and bricks. Some firebombs were thrown, but they caused no significant damage.

Many in the black neighborhood near Bob Bolton's bar were angry after bar owner Andrew Chinarian, 39, was arraigned on a second-degree murder charge and then released on $500 bond.

"Give us the bar and we'll cool it," someone yelled at Young.

The mayor, the first black to hold the position in Detroit, said he could not do that. Someone threw a rock in his direction, but it fell short.

The area was quite late Tuesday evening, but the crowds remained.

The ara is near where a young black man was shot Monday night. The shooting touched off skirmishing between demonstrators and police.

The youth, 18-year-old Obie Wynn, died early Tuesday of a gunshot wound in the back of the head.

Bar owner Andrew Chinarian was later arraigned on a second-degree murder charge and Recorders Court Judge Donald Leonard set bond at $500. Police said Chinarian, 39, told officers he shot Wynn because he was tampering with his car.

The shooting touched off seven hours of violence and looting by hundreds of angry black youths who clashed with 500 to 700 officers called in to quell the disturbance in a area in northwest Detroit.

Police said 63 persons were arrested.

Several white motorists were pulled from their cars and beaten by the crowd, police said. An elderly white man was in critical condition after being struck by rocks. A policeman hit in the forehead by a brick was in fair condition.

Fires were set in four cars and six buildings, causing about $13,000 damage, officers said. Windows were broken in 44 stores and merchandise was missing from at least six.

"I just think it's a dirty deal that my son got shot in the back of the head," said the youth's mother, Shirley Wynn, after visiting the morgue.

Kenneth Davis, 31, and others who claimed to have seen the shooting said Wynn was sitting on Chinarian's car talking to a girl when Chinarian emerged from Bob Bolton's Bar, which he owns. They said Wynn started to run away when he saw Chinarian had a gun.

Unemployment in Detroit is 23 per cent, and one resident of the area said, "That's what started the whole thing."

The bar is in a predominantly black neighborhood adjacent to "Coleman Young's Lounge and Bar-B-Q," the family business of Detroit Mayor Coleman Young.

Young, who took over in January 1974 as the city's first black mayor, was at the scene of the disturbance Monday night in a futile attempt to help restore order.

Blacks who congregated in front of the bar Tuesday said there has been considerable animosity between Chinarian and area residents. They said he has tried to discourage blacks from coming to his bar.

"Mostly white people go in there, and he (Chinarian) treated the blacks in there so badly that nobody wanted to go in," said one area resident.

Woman Hostage In Farnam Holdup

Farnam (AP) — Various law enforcement agencies continued the search Tuesday night for a lone gunman who robbed the Farnam Bank in the afternoon and took a woman teller hostage.

The Nebraska State Patrol said at mid-evening Tuesday there had been no contact with the suspect or the hostage.

The man entered the bank about 2:55 p.m., leaped over a counter, demanded money and then took the hostage before escaping with an unrevealed amount of cash.

Dawson County Sheriff John Rohnert identified the hostage as Celeste Adkisson, 20, of Farnam. Rohnert said no shots were fired during the robbery.

Officials said the bandit forced the woman to drive him away from the bank in her car, which was found about one mile south of Farnam a short time after the robbery.

Rohnert said the State Patrol, the FBI and authorities from neighboring counties were aiding in the search.

He said roadblocks had been set up in Dawson, Gosper, Lincoln and Frontier Counties.

Working in the bank at the time of the holdup were vice president Gerald W. Thompson, teller Irene Bellany and Miss Adkisson.

Police pelted a crowd of about 300 blacks, mostly teen-agers, with tear gas after being showered with rocks and bricks. Some firebombs were thrown, but they caused no significant damage.

Many in the black neighborhood near Bob Bolton's bar were angry after bar owner Andrew Chinarian, 39, was arraigned on a second-degree murder charge and then released on $500 bond.

"Give us the bar and we'll cool it," someone yelled at Young.

The mayor, the first black to hold the position in Detroit, said he could not do that. Someone threw a rock in his direction, but it fell short.

The area was quite late Tuesday evening, but the crowds remained.

The ara is near where a young black man was shot Monday night. The shooting touched off skirmishing between demonstrators and police.

The youth, 18-year-old Obie Wynn, died early Tuesday of a gunshot wound in the back of the head.

Bar owner Andrew Chinarian was later arraigned on a second-degree murder charge and Recorders Court Judge Donald Leonard set bond at $500. Police said Chinarian, 39, told officers he shot Wynn because he was tampering with his car.

The shooting touched off seven hours of violence and looting by hundreds of angry black youths who clashed with 500 to 700 officers called in to quell the disturbance in a area in northwest Detroit.

Police said 63 persons were arrested.

Several white motorists were pulled from their cars and beaten by the crowd, police said. An elderly white man was in critical condition after being struck by rocks. A policeman hit in the forehead by a brick was in fair condition.

Fires were set in four cars and six buildings, causing about $13,000 damage, officers said. Windows were broken in 44 stores and merchandise was missing from at least six.

"I just think it's a dirty deal that my son got shot in the back of the head," said the youth's mother, Shirley Wynn, after visiting the morgue.

Kenneth Davis, 31, and others who claimed to have seen the shooting said Wynn was sitting on Chinarian's car talking to a girl when Chinarian emerged from Bob Bolton's Bar, which he owns. They said Wynn started to run away when he saw Chinarian had a gun.

Unemployment in Detroit is 23 per cent, and one resident of the area said, "That's what started the whole thing."

The bar is in a predominantly black neighborhood adjacent to "Coleman Young's Lounge and Bar-B-Q," the family business of Detroit Mayor Coleman Young.

Young, who took over in January 1974 as the city's first black mayor, was at the scene of the disturbance Monday night in a futile attempt to help restore order.

Blacks who congregated in front of the bar Tuesday said there has been considerable animosity between Chinarian and area residents. They said he has tried to discourage blacks from coming to his bar.

"Mostly white people go in there, and he (Chinarian) treated the blacks in there so badly that nobody wanted to go in," said one area resident.

Woman Hostage In Farnam Holdup

Farnam (AP) — Various law enforcement agencies continued the search Tuesday night for a lone gunman who robbed the Farnam Bank in the afternoon and took a woman teller hostage.

Authorities were seeking a dark, late model car believed to bear Oklahoma license plates.

The Nebraska State Patrol said at mid-evening Tuesday there had been no contact with the suspect or the hostage.

The man entered the bank about 2:55 p.m., leaped over a counter, demanded money and then took the hostage before escaping with an unrevealed amount of cash.

Dawson County Sheriff John Rohnert identified the hostage as Celeste Adkisson, 20, of Farnam. Rohnert said no shots were fired during the robbery.

Officials said the bandit forced the woman to drive him away from the bank in her car, which was found about one mile south of Farnam a short time after the robbery.

Rohnert said the State Patrol, the FBI and authorities from neighboring counties were aiding in the search.

He said roadblocks had been set up in Dawson, Gosper, Lincoln and Frontier Counties.

Judge Orders Lawyer Off Case Of Joan Little

RALEIGH, N C (AP) — A defense attorney was dismissed from the Joan Little murder trial Tuesday and named in a felony warrant accusing him of attempting to influence a witness to commit perjury.

The witness, a black woman who works as a radio dispatcher at the Beaufort County jail, said attorney Morris Dees approached her during the trial's midday break and tried to get her to change her testimony

Dees denied the allegation, but Judge Hamilton Hobgood ordered him off the case and out of the courtroom.

Dees was one of six lawyers defending Miss Little, a 21-year-old black charged with first-degree murder in the icepick slaying of white jailer Clarence Alligood, 62

Miss Little admits killing Alligood but says it was in self-defense when he tried to force her to have sexual relations with him The prosecution claims Miss Little killed the jailer in order to escape from the jail where she was being held on a breaking and entering conviction.

The Beaufort County medical examiner testifed earlier Tuesday that he found seminal fluid on Alligood's body

Beverly King, who said she doubles as a matron at the jail, told prosecutor William Griffin that Dees approached her during the noon break. The prosecutor told the judge, who sent the jury out of the courtroom when the trial resumed Tuesday afternoon

Dees' expulsion centered around Mrs King's testimony Tuesday morning that Alligood came to her office shortly before he was killed and asked if the other deputies had left Mrs. King testified that it was not unusual for Alligood to ask such a question.

However, Dees said Mrs. King told him last June that such a question was "abnormal conduct on his part and it was unusual." He had Mrs King read what he described as a transcript of that interview.

Mrs King said Dees told her during the noon break to testify that Alligood's question was, indeed, unusual "He told me to go ahead and say it, that it would help Joan and it wouldn't hurt the state," she said in court Tuesday afternoon.

"I said you go ahead and say exactly what is in that statement," Dees responded.

Hobgood then ordered Dees off the case.

When Dees protested, the judge said. "You are out of the case right now. I don't want you to say anything to me about it. I do this at my discretion. I will give you five minutes to get out of the courtroom."

Dees, of Montgomery, Ala., was assigned to the case by the Southern Poverty Law Center, which conducted a nationwide fund-raising campaign to help finance Miss Little's defense.

Paul also sought a continuance to find another attorney Hobgood denied that motion, saying that Dees was "absolutely superfluous" to the trial

Wake County Solicitor Burley Mitchell filed the felony charge against Dees. A preliminary hearing for Dees was scheduled for Sept. 15 in Raleigh. Conviction on the charge carries a 10-year prison sentence and an unrestricted fine.

Carpenter said he reached the jail in Washington, N C., about 30 minutes after two policemen found Alligood's body last August.

Carpenter, who said he had performed more than 1,000 autopsies, said he had never encountered a case where ejaculation resulted from a traumatic death

He said he found 11 puncture wounds on Alligood's body — one on the scalp, seven in the chest, two on the right thigh and one on the side of the stomach.

Dart Gun Stops Fugitive Elephant

HUGO, Okla. (AP)—A sheriff's posse, led by a spotter plane, Tuesday captured one of the two elephants that fled the winter grounds of a circus near here over two weeks ago.

The baby elephant, valued at $10,000, was sedated by two shots from a tranquilizer gun and then chained to prevent another escape.

Circus workers were trying to get a truck into the wooded area Tuesday evening to haul the elephant, which was not injured, out.

The elephant, named Isa, was spotted in a pasture 14 miles east of here near the city lake Tuesday afternoon by Billy Joe Easterwood, 21, and his brother, Mike, 18, as they were on their way home from work.

Buchanan and his deputies drove to the area while a plane took off and circled over the elephant. Then, with the plane giving directions to the four-wheel drive units below, the chase was on.

"If it hadn't been for that plane and the sheriff's organization we would never had gotten her," said Leeta Hinson, a local newswoman who has been in on the search for the past two weeks.

"We were better off this time, though, because we had her in an area where there was some pasture land instead of all timber," she said. "She couldn't stay hidden from that plane."

Lyndol Fry, a former member of the Oklahoma Wildlife Commission, got one shot from the tranquilizer gun into Isa's left front leg, but it didn't even slow her down.

"She took off into another thicket and Lyndol went after her," Mrs. Hinson said. "He got off a 40-foot shot and hit her in the rump. Then we just stood around and waited. She stood on one foot and then the other and then just gave a little sound and keeled over."

Mrs. Hinson said the search would resume Wednesday for Lilly, the other elephant, in an area 12 miles from where Isa was captured.

"We believe she's still in that area, and I think we'll get her this time," she said.

The two elephants, both about 5-foot tall and weighing 1,500 pounds apiece, fled the winter grounds of the Carson and Barnes Circus on July 12 after being startled by a loud noise.

Rhodes Didn't Know Guns Were Loaded

Cleveland (UPI) — Gov. James A. Rhodes said Tuesday he did not know Ohio National Guardsmen had loaded weapons when they attempted to break up an antiwar demonstration on the Kent State University campus.

Guard troops shot and killed four students and wounded nine others during the May 4, 1970, student demonstration against expansion of the Indochina War.

Rhodes testified in U.S. District Court $46 million civil suit filed by the parents of the dead and wounded students. Rhodes is one of the defendants in the suit.

Joseph Kelner, one of the attorneys for the plaintiffs, asked Rhodes if he knew the Guardsmen had loaded weapons on campus.

"I had no knowledge of that, no," Rhodes replied.

A tape recording of a news conference, involving Rhodes, former Ohio Adjutant General S.T. Del Corso and former Ohio Highway Patrol commander Robert B. Chiaramone, and Kent city officials, was also played in court Tuesday.

Rhodes said during the news conference that three or four groups of dissidents were moving about campuses "to destroy higher education in Ohio."

Rhodes said during the news conference the way to solve the problem was to "eradicate the problem, not treat the symptom." He did not elaborate.

Sanctions Against Cuba Lifted; U.S. Votes In Favor

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — The United States and 15 other nations of the Organization of American States voted Tuesday night to lift mandatory economic and political sanctions they imposed 11 years ago against Communist Cuba

The resolution passed 16 to 3 with 2 abstentions It allows individual OAS members to resume diplomatic and trade relations with Fidel Castro's government if they choose.

Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay opposed the move thile Brazil and Nicaragua abstained.

It required a two-thirds majority of the 21 voting members and received two more than necessary. Supporters had gained 15 pledges of yes votes before the special meeting convened and then Guatemala announced it also would approve.

The sanctions were decreed in the Rio de Janeiro mutual defense treaty when some OAS countries accused Cuba's Fidel Castro of exporting revolution.

Mexico refused to abide by the sanctions and in the past few years eight other OAS members reversed their stands and reestablished diplomatic and trade relations with Castro's government.

Mexican Foreign Minister Emilio Rabaza, who was a leader of the campaign to drop the sanctions, was jubilant after the vote. "Today is a day of liberation for the Americas," he said.

The attempt to isolate Cuba was unjust, he added, and now the OAS members "have recovered that part of their sovereignty compromised in 1964."

Voting with the United States to lift the sanctions were Argentina, Bolivia, Colombia, Cost Rica, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Panama, Peru, the Dominican Republic, Trinidad-Tobago, and Venezuela.

Loud applause broke out when the vote was announced in the conference room at the Hotel Irazu on the outskirts of the Costa Rican capital.

Chief U.S. delegate William S. Maillard declared in a statement that the resolution puts the Cuban issue "in its proper perspective and permits us to concentrate our multilateral energies on the more fundamental problems of the hemisphere."

Argentine Ambassador Julio Cesar Carrasales hailed the vote as closing an era and said hemisphere countries can now "devote their full efforts to the great Latin American cause — unity and development without sterile distractions or paralyzing ghosts."

U.S. approval of the resolution does not necessarily mean Washington is ready to remove its unilateral embargo of Castro's regime. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has said the embargo is under study.

At a conference here last week of the signers of the Rio defense treaty the ministers agreed to hold this special OAS meeting to vote on the Cuban question.

Most Latin American delegates indicated at that meeting that Cuba's sponsorship of guerrilla activity now is minimal and Castro's island nation no longer poses a threat to hemispheric security.

Interior Department Pledges Better Info

SANTA FE, N M. (AP) — The Interior Deparment promised Western governors Tuesday they would be kept better informed on federal planning in the West

"We need to do a better job of explaining to you how we go about our business," Undersecretary William Lyons told the Western Governors' Regional Energy Policy Office conference

He was taking part in a discussion on federal coal leasing policies in Western states and water allocations for energy production programs.

Interior's assistant secretary for land and water resources, Jack Horton, said the department will provide personal briefings for governors on coal leasing matters.

New Mexico Gov Jerry Apodaca, chairman of the policy office, said he talked by telekphone to acting Secretary of Interior Kent Frizzell and was assured "the remakrs made by Interior officials in Santa Fe would reflect the attutudes of the department "

The Interior representatives were responding to complaints that the federal government was bypassing the states.

"You are planning the West," Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm said "You are planning it more than the governors, and you are planning it more than the state legislatures "

He said Western governors agree there has been a partnership but he said the federal government plays the role of a senior partner while the states play a subservient role

The Interior Department officials said there would be improved federal-state communication and cooperation in energy development programs in the Rocky Mountain region.

"We are not going to turn over the development of the West to free market activities entirely," Lyons said. "We are not going to manage development of the West "

Oil Plan Showdown Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee cleared the way Tuesday for a House showdown later this week on President Ford's latest plan for phasing out the current system of government controls on the price of U.S.-produced oil

By 9 to 7, the committee, which serves as traffic cop for movement of major measures to the House, rejected a Republican attempt to postpone action indefinitely on a Democratic-backed resolution which would kill Ford's new plan.

The President's first plan, rejected by the House, would have phased out existing price controls over the coming 30 months with a $13.50-a-barrel, cap applied on prices during that time span.

The President's new plan would decontrol oil prices over 39 months with a ceiling of $11.50 a barrel, would roll back currently uncontrolled prices to that level from their current mark of about $13 a barrel, and then let this $11.50 level gradually rise by five cents a barrel each month beginning Oct. 1.

"You are planning the West," Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm said. "You are planning it more than the governors, and you are planning it more than the state legislatures."

He said Western governors agree there has been a partnership but he said the federal government plays the role of a senior partner while the states play a subservient role.

The Interior Department officials said there would be improved federal-state communication and cooperation in energy development programs in the Rocky Mountain region.

"We are not going to turn over the development of the West to free market activities entirely," Lyons said. "We are not going to manage development of the West."

Oil Plan Showdown Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee cleared the way Tuesday for a House showdown later this week on President Ford's latest plan for phasing out the current system of government controls on the price of U.S.-produced oil.

By 9 to 7, the committee, which serves as traffic cop for movement of major measures to the House, rejected a Republican attempt to postpone action indefinitely on a Democratic-backed resolution which would kill Ford's new plan.

The President's first plan, rejected by the House, would have phased out existing price controls over the coming 30 months with a $13.50-a-barrel, cap applied on prices during that time span.

The President's new plan would decontrol oil prices over 39 months with a ceiling of $11.50 a barrel, would roll back currently uncontrolled prices to that level from their current mark of about $13 a barrel, and then let this $11.50 level gradually rise by five cents a barrel each month beginning Oct. 1.

Gowon Overthrown In Bloodless Coup

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Gen. Yakubu Gowon, who ruled oil-rich Nigeria for nine years and crushed the Biafran revolt, was overthrown Tuesday in a bloodless coup, Radio Nigeria reported.

Gowon was in Kampala, Uganda, attending a summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity when fellow army officers ousted him as leader of black Africa's wealthiest and mostly populous nation.

The coup was announced in a radio broadcast by Col. Joseph Garba, commander of the elite brigade that guards the presidential residence and considered a friend of Gowon.

Garba said there had been no bloodshed but a dusk-to-dawn curfew was ordered and violators could be shot. The coup was so quickly and quietly accomplished that many Nigerians left their homes for work without being aware of it.

The broadcast said, "I, Joseph Garba, in consultation with my colleagues, do hereby declare that in view of what has been happening in the country in the past few months, the Nigerian armed forces have decided to effect a change in the leadership of the federal military government." It added "The general public is advised to be calm and go about their lawful duties."

(Gowon, a 40-year-old, mild-mannered moderate with broad support in Africa, had addressed an OAU session Monday night and was still in the conference hall when an aide advised him of the coup.

("I have a clear conscience. There is nothing to worry about," the general said. He then left for his hotel room, smiling and looking calm.

(Diplomats said the coup apparently was organized by a group of colonels and majors following months of military dissension and student unrest in black Africa's richest and most populous nation.

(They said there was no immediate indication that Garba, 32, was personally replacing Gowon.)

Garba, in his broadcast, ordered workers at public utilities, hospitals, ports and communications to go to their jobs and warned, "Anyone caught disturbing public order will be summarily dealt with."

Troops closed the Lagos airport, sealed off the borders and shut down most means of communication. There were no reports of violence.

Gowon came to power in an army coup in July 1966 and became Nigeria's strongest ruler since the country's independence from Britain 17 years ago. But he was aware of coup rumors before he left for Kampala.

Pressure was building for a return to civilian rule and there were continuing tribal rivalries.

Gowon directed the successful Biafra war to keep the Ibos of southeastern Nigeria from forming a separate country. Thirty months of fighting ended in 1970.

Diplomatic sources said Gowon was trying to assess the situation in Nigeria and had not ruled out the possibility of attempting to return to power. Other sources said he was trying to contact military commanders at home to determine if he retained any support.

There was also a report that Gowon might fly to a country neighboring Nigeria, possibly Cameroon, from which he could re-enter his country.

Diplomats also said Gowon had suspected that members of his military government were plotting to overthrow him and had taken the precaution of moving his family to London before leaving Nigeria.

The diplomats said Gowon had called in Garba before leaving Lagos and asked about the rumors but that Garba denied any plot.

400 Fight Black Hills Forest Fire

CUSTER STATE PARK, S.D. (AP) — Nearly 400 firefighters were battling a major forest fire in Custer State Park Tuesday, attempting to prevent it from spreading into the Black Hills National Forest.

The fire, which had destroyed more than 300 acres of timber in the state park, continued of control Tuesday afternoon.

A second fire which started on Custer Mountain five miles southeast of Custer, was controlled and extinguished, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman said.

The spokesman said it took firefighters about an hour to extinguish the Custer Mountain fire, which was burning between Stockade Lake and Cicero Peak in a heavily forested area. The spokesman said the fire had consumed less than an acre.

The blaze in the state park was another story, however. Forest Service officials said they were worried that wind gusts of 30 miles per hour would hamper their efforts.

The fire, burning in an area covered with dense undergrowth and heavily-forested, started about 7 p.m. Monday in the Switchback Draw area of the state park and was burning in an area between Legion Lake and Mount Coolidge.

Some 300 firefighters from the Forest Service and the South Dakota Game, Fish and Parks Department, along with youth forestry personnel and local firefighters are battling the blaze.

Another 88 specially-trained firefighters arrived from Forest Service installations in Montana and Colorado to help.

Economy Package Agreed

New York — New York City and officials of the Municipal Assistance Corp. — even as they were negotiating with the city's labor union leaders — agreed Tuesday to a $500 million package of budgetary economies that Mayor Abraham D. Economics Hurt Playboy; Chicago Mansion To Close CHICAGO (AP) — Playboy Enterprises Inc. has decided to close down Hugh Hefner's 74-room Chicago mansion because of economic pressures, a senior vice president said Tuesday.

"It's purely an economic decision," said Victor Lownes, director of the company's leisure activities. "I can use the money elsewhere."

Lownes said maintenance costs for the mansion are about $1 million a year.

About six Playboy bunnies and Lownes are the only current occupants of the house. Hefner, who founded the Playboy empire in 1953, lives in another mansion near Los Angeles.

The Chicago mansion was built in 1903 and was bought by Playboy for $400,000 in 1957. Two years ago, the company bought an adjoining building for office space. The current value of the property is not known, and Playboy officials have not decided whether to rent or sell it after the mansion is shut down on Sept. 1, Lownes said.

The house contains bedrooms, a swimming pool, bowling alley, game room, facilities for showing movies. An extensive art collection is also on display there.

The mansion was a focal point last year of a federal investigation into the use of drugs by Playboy employes and guests, but Hefner accused the government of using the investigation as "a witch hunt" to punish him for his liberal philosophy.

The investigation is continuing.

During the past two years, the $200-million Playboy empire has been undergoing some economic hardship. Its clubs and hotels have been doing poorly, and even the magazine, long the flagship of the organization, has suffered.

Lownes, former head of the company's international division in London, was brought to Chicago earlier this year to cut costs in business operations. He has since dismissed personnel, opened hotels to non-Playboy members and eliminated free coffee for employes. Hefner has taken a cut in salary and has returned his stock dividend to help out in the economic crunch.

Lownes said Hefner agreed with the decision to close the Chicago mansion. But he said the company would not move its operations to the West Coast, where the recording and film sectors are now based.

Lownes said Hefner's jet also is for sale, for $6.35 million. The jet, painted black except for the bunny insignia on its tail, was another of Hefner's symbols of success.

Lownes said Hefner will stay at the Playboy Towers Hotel when in Chicago.

The Tale—The Claws And Carapace—Of Old Sam

BAILEY ISLAND, Me. — Mouths watering for lobster, we came to Maine. "Got any lobster?" we asked the man at the pound He said one thing he sure had was lobster He picked two lobsters from a tank and held them out They seemed much too small to make a meal for two people who had their mouths set for a real lobster dinner.

"We'd like something bigger." He returned to the tank, brought out two bigger lobsters and said, "These'll run about two pounds apiece. Don't often get 'em that big any more these days."

The man obviously didn't know the appetites he was dealing with One had to speak to him tartly "Perhaps I have not made myself sufficiently clear. We are not looking for canape spread. We are looking for lobster "

He gave us a hooded glance. "Two-pounders ain't enough?" he inquired. "How about a nice three-pounder?"

He smiled. "Well," he said, "I might just be able to give you what you're looking for "

It was our turn to smile. He called to a young man

"Bring out Old Sam," he said. The young man looked at us, then looked at his employer, then shrugged. After a considerable wait, he returned from a back room with a reasonably large lobster.

"This is Old Sam," said the lobsterman. "He'll run about seven pounds."

We were still not sure. "Do you think he'll make a full meal?"

The lobster man looked us both squarely in the eyes. Not a muscle twitched in his face. "There's a lot of good eatin' on that lobster," he said.

We took it. Old Sam was put in a paper bag and driven home. We put on a pot of water. As it started to boil, Old Sam began to shake the paper bag, indicating an unhappiness with the proceedings. We ripped the bag and he came out thrashing. At the pound he had not looked like much, but on the kitchen table he had claws the size of Muhammed Ali's fists. We recoiled.

"Pick him up and drop him in the pot," each said instantly to the other.

But Old Sam was touchy. As the cook's hand reached toward his carapace, he countered with a left hook and crossed with his right, nearly amputating an index finger. The two of us glared uneasily at him and he glared right back, and then it be came apparent that even after we captured him there was going to be trouble, since the boiling pot was not big enough to contain half of him.

We decided to try it anyhow. We couldn't just let him push us around and take over the house. While one of us distracted him in the front, the other sneaked up behind him, grabbed his tail, swung him through the air and dropped him into the pot.

Boiling water splashed over stove and floor. Old Sam's tail rested momentarily in the steam, but his claws hung over the edge and he stared at us with an expression of absolute disenchantment, before hoisting himself over the side of the ineffectual pot and diving to the safety of the floor.

One of us screamed as he moved in for the attack, and two local men who happened to be passing on the beach ran up to investigate. They immediately grasped the situation.

"It's those people that bought Old Sam this afternoon," one of them said.

"Might have known it," said the other. He produced fishing line, threw a lasso around the lobster, trussed him tightly and rolled him on his back.

"If you're of a mind to boil Old Sam," his companion suggested, "better get rid of that sauce pan and fire up a wash tub."

They graciously assisted in this operation, and when the tub was at a rolling boil and the lobster had been safely immersed, one of them asked, "what are you going to do with Old Sam when he's boiled?"

"Eat him, of course."

"Mind if we bring a few folks over to watch?"

We certainly did mind. Hospitality has its limits. They shrugged and left, full of winks and sly grins.

That was seven days ago, and Old Sam is still with us. After the first night's meal, there was lunch of cold lobster claw. The second night, it was lobster salad from the carapace meat. The next day, cold lobster tail with mayonnaise. Then lobster roll. Then lobster stew. Then sliced lobster.

Periodically, grinning children stick their heads in the window and ask, "Getting near the end of Old Sam yet?" In town, solicitous Maine folks ask us if it looks like Old Sam will last us another week. It does. There's a lot of good eatin' on that lobster, a seven-pound lobster being the marine equivalent to a 2,000-pound beef. Which gives rise to an idea. Maybe tonight, after everybody else has gone to bed, we can sneak off to the highway and get a hamburger.

People In The Dark

The open meetings fight is not a media event

The issue is whether or not the public's business is to be conducted openly and that issue is so basic to self-government that without close attention, the way we rule ourselves is threatened.

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents recently held a session which violated the open meetings law and Lancaster County Attorney Ron Lahners said so

He also said that the incident should put all other boards, agencies and governmental units on notice that the law must be obeyed.

Within days after that announcement, the Lancaster County Board held a budget discussion without notifying the public or the media, a clear violation of the law, which says:

"Each public body shall give reasonable advance publicized notice of the time and place of each meetng."

The last Legislature said, in LB 325 which is now law:

"It is hereby declared to be the policy of this state that the formation of public policy is public business and may not be conducted in secret."

The law requires that "each public body shall give reasonable advance publicized notice of the time and place of each meetng . . .

"The secretary or other designee of each public body shall make reasonable efforts to provide advance notification to them (the new media) of the time and place of each meeting, and the subjects to be discussed . . ."

The law is clear, County Attorney Ron Lahner's advice was clear, the board has one member who is a lawyer (Bruce Hamilton) but inattention, carelessness, negligence ruled.

Just as clearly, the board was not being malicious. There seems no willful intent to dodge the public's right to know.

Unfortunately, the incident by itself impugns the board. Traditionally, the board has been open. Reporters have always been welcomed and issues have been discussed openly with and by the commissioners.

Yet, oversight is a poor excuse.

Despite a heavy work load, despite a complex schedule, despite the difficulties of notifying all the media of the rapidly changing meeting subjects, the board should have responded to what the law demands, especially after the county's chief attorney warned them to do so.

One week before the regents' ruling, the board studied the law because there was a question about a portion of that week's meeting.

The law provides for punishment. Knowing violations, upon conviction, could bring a fine of $50.

Not that any person is likely to bring suit against the board, but any citizen can. The law provides for such suits and allows the court to order that a successful challenge be at no cost to the citizen.

Perhaps if the board read the law carefully (the first reading doesn't seem to fit that category), they could avoid the contest that the law encourages.

BO CALLAWAY
. . . his racial views were always seen clearly . . .

NEW YORK — President Ford's top two campaign officials were recently described in this space as "Howard (Bo) Callaway, a millionaire Georgia segregationist, and David Packard, a millionaire mogul of the military-industrial complex." Several readers have taken objection to these forthright words, a fact that puts their author in mind of a classic Lincoln story.

Urged to appoint a Pennsylvania politician to his cabinet, Lincoln said the man was a thief. His shocked audience protested. "Oh, well," Lincoln said, "I guess he wouldn't steal a red-hot stove."

This elicited even stronger protests, to which the new President bowed. "All right," he said, "then he wo uld steal a red-hot stove." (Lincoln appointed the man anyway, and was proved to have judged him correctly.)

So let us examine further the public records of Callaway, who is Ford's campaign director, and Packard, who is the finance chairman (nobody doubts that both men are millionaires).

The appointment of the former is clearly a bid for conservative support and for votes in the South — but not from blacks. The choice of Packard emphasizes two of Ford's most obvious commitments — to the preferential position of business interests and to heavy spending on military hardware.

Bo Callaway became a Republican in 1964, when he discovered the presidential candidacy of Barry Goldwater, switched parties to support him, and was elected to Congress in the Republican sweep of Georgia. In the next two years, he voted consistently against such measures as the higher education act, Medicare, increases in the minimum wage, teacher corps appropriations and rent supplements.

In 1966, he left Congress to run against Lester Maddox for the governorship of Georgia. Another Georgia congressman, the liberal Democrat Charles Weltner, also gave up his seat that year — in his case because he refused to run on the same ticket with the segregationist Maddox. But Weltner explained that he could not support Bo Callaway either, because "Callaway is the same as Maddox on race except in a slicker way. He uses code names such as property rights, which means we ain't gonna serve no niggers."

Many liberal whites and despairing blacks shared that view of Callaway; unwilling to vote for either major party candidate, they organized a write-in campaign for former Gov. Ellis Arnall, a moderate on race issues. That prevented either Maddox or Callaway from winning a majority, and the Democratic legislature of Georgia eventually elected Maddox.

Callaway led Richard Nixon's southern campaign in 1968, and made his racial views clear again when he publicly suggested that George Wallace ought to switch to the Republican Party. Nixon was forced to repudiate the remark, and left Callaway out of his administration until 1973. Then, as secretary of the army, Callaway reduced Lt. William Calley's sentence for the Mylai massacre from 20 years to 10, and urged parole after a third of the lesser sentence had been served.

As for Packard, the co-founder and chairman of Hewlett-Packard, a California-based electronics firm that derived a third of its revenues from Defense Department contracts, he faced controversy from the day he was nominated as deputy secretary of defense in 1969. But he rode it out successfully.

The nomination was not withdrawn. Packard did not divest himself of his Hewlett-Packard holdings to avoid conflict of interest, but placed his $300-million block of stock in trust. Since he retained ownership of the stock, he retained the conflict, too.

In March, 1969, Packard awarded contracts to three textile mills subsequently sued for discriminatory hiring practices. The awards, widely protested, were considered a slap in the face to government "affirmative action" programs then just two years old.

In May, 1973, after he had left the Defense Department, the department proposed a novel arrangement by which he would serve as a special consultant to the Pentagon. Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri asked if that wasn't finally too much conflict of interest, since Packard also was to be actively heading Hewlett-Packard. The Pentagon backed down.

Later in the same year, Packard publicly suggested that corporations stop making unrestricted gifts to colleges and universities, since boards of trustees were no longer composed mostly of corporation executives but also included

DAVID PACKARD
. . . rode out controversy from the very beginning . . .

"students, faculty, alumni, various ethnic groups, etc." Such trustees could no longer be counted upon to spend money in ways a corporation could defend to its stockholders, he said.

Packard was more generous about government gifts to business. In 1974, his support of federal subsidies for the mismanaged Lockheed Aircraft Co. was described by Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin as exemplifying the "classic buddy system between Pentagon officials and retired military executives in the defense industry."

But neither Packard nor Callaway, it is is only fair to say, was tainted by the Watergate scandal. In that way, too, they serve Gerald Ford's political interests.

Council Acts In Folly

While usually doing a good and conscientious job, the City Council now and then seems to revert to complete folly in its deliberations. Why in the world would the council suddenly decide to dispose of the question of a new police review board, just when that subject was in the midst of extended analysis by another civilian group?

The council referred the question to the Human Rights Commission, which only in recent days appointed new committees to look into various aspects of the matter. Already, the commission has devoted many hours of discussion to the proposal.

Basically, council members who now seem to favor a vote on the issue this coming Monday, are saying that the issue is creating dissension in the Police Department and the community. Unrest in the Police Department, maybe, but in the community? Where in the community? With whom in the community?

We have not noticed nor heard of any community dissension over the matter, at all. How, really, could there be such dissension when the details of the proposal are not even known?

At least, the council should have the good sense to wait until it has received a report from the commission before trying to decide the question. If a threatened police union is formed before that can happen, then that is that.

For the council to act prematurely in the face of a unionization threat is for the body to succumb to a form of blackmail. At this point in time, there is no legitimate reason at all for the police to consider the matter as any kind of threat to them.

There is no reason that, if a new review procedure is established, it cannot provide adequate safeguards to the police. There is no reason to assume that a new procedure would constitute a means for witch-hunting in the city's law-enforcement agency.

Police officers who buy the union idea as a result of the new look at review procedures are buying a pig in a poke.

All people over 65 years of age must carry a cane.
All card-players and office workers must sit on a pillow.

All hunters must wear armored vests.
All rock concert buffs must wear ear-muffs.

All people over 45 must carry anti-heart-attack pills.
All drinkers must wear a device that lights up when they get drunk.
All politicians must wear a device that lights up when they tell a lie.

All agents of the CIA, FBI, IRS, Secret Service and other secret police organizations must wear ID tags in plain sight so they won't be mistaken for the Russian KGB.

All people who try to avoid complying with these laws by staying in bed must have their bedrooms safety-checked by OSHA.

The Tale—The Claws And Carapace—Of Old Sam

BAILEY ISLAND, Me. — Mouths watering for lobster, we came to Maine. "Got any lobster?" we asked the man at the pound. He said one thing he sure had was lobster. He picked two lobsters from a tank and held them out They seemed much too small to make a meal for two people who had their mouths set for a real lobster dinner.

"We'd like something bigger." He returned to the tank, brought out two bigger lobsters and said, "These'll run about two pounds apiece. Don't often get 'em that big any more these days."

The man obviously didn't know the appetites he was dealing with. One had to speak to him tartly. "Perhaps I have not made myself sufficiently clear. We are not looking for canape spread. We are looking for lobster."

He gave us a hooded glance. "Two-pounders ain't enough?" he inquired. "How about a nice three-pounder?"

"Lobster, man! We want lobster, not bird food."

☆ ☆ ☆

He smiled. "Well," he said, "I might just be able to give you what you're looking for."

It was our turn to smile. He called to a young man.

"Bring out Old Sam," he said. The young man looked at us, then looked at his employer, then shrugged. After a considerable wait, he returned from a back room with a reasonably large lobster.

We were still not sure. "Do you think he'll make a full meal?"

"Pick him up and drop him in the pot," each said instantly to the other.

But Old Sam was touchy. As the cook's hand reached toward his carapace, he countered with a left hook and crossed with his right, nearly amputating an index finger. The two of us glared uneasily at him and he glared right back, and then it be came apparent that even after we captured him there was going to be trouble, since the boiling pot was not big enough to contain half of him.

We decided to try it anyhow. We couldn't just let him push us around and take over the house. While one of us distracted him in the front, the other sneaked up behind him, grabbed his tail, swung him through the air and dropped him into the pot.

All agents of the CIA, FBI, IRS, Secret Service and other secret police organizations must wear ID tags in plain sight so they won't be mistaken for the Russian KGB.

All people who try to avoid complying with these laws by staying in bed must have their bedrooms safety-checked by OSHA.

If some of these laws sound foolish and repressive, just remember this — Big Brother knows best. If the government doesn't take care of us, who will?

House Overrides Veto Of $2 Billion Health Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — By a 9-1 margin in the House, Congress overrode one of President Ford's vetoes for the first time this year as it enacted into law a $2-billion health measure Tuesday.

The final passage was 384 to 43, or 99 more than required. The Senate rejected Ford's veto 67 to 15 on Saturday, only hours after the White House announced the veto.

The health bill authorizes $1.42 billion during 1976-78 for health services and health revenue-sharing programs that give grants to states for projects such as community mental health centers, migrant health and family planning.

Another $553 million is earmarked for nurse training programs, and $30 million to the National Health Services Corps, which is a federally funded program that puts medical personnel in underserved areas of the nation.

In his veto message, Ford called the amount of money in the bill excessive and said that some programs, such as nursing student assistance, duplicated other health programs.

Ford said it would authorize almost $550 million above his fiscal year 1976 budget request.

James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said the override "indicates that Congress is not yet willing to share the President's resolve to make the hard choices necessary to reform federal programs and get us back to fiscal responsibility."

"Hard choices are necessary," Lynn declared, "If we are to restrain or eliminate programs that don't work to make room for those that can really help the people who need the help . . . "

Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., chairman of the Commerce Committee's subcommittee on health, said that if sustained, Ford's veto would have wiped out community mental health programs and afforded no more help to nursing training.

Commerce Committee Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., said Ford was "ill-advised to veto this bill which is needed in every home in America." To catch up with demand, Staggers said one million more nurses should be trained.

Only a handful of Republicans addressed the members in support of the President, and most of those admitted even before the vote that their pleas would not swing many over to their side.

In the final count 107 Republicans and 277 Democrats voted to override, while 36 Republicans and 7 Democrats voted to sustain.

In less than a year in office, Ford has vetoed 36 bills. Congress has lost on four major veto override attempts this year — housing, strip mining, an emergency jobs bill and higher agriculture price supports.

Nebraskans Vote Yes

Washington (AP)—Nebraska Republican Reps. John Y. McCollister, Charles Thone and Virginia Smith voted for the House override Tuesday of President Ford's veto of a $2 billion health care measure.

Means Treated For Wound To Head

MISSION, S.D. (AP) — American Indian Movement leader Russell Means was treated for a head wound Monday night, apparently suffered when shattered glass struck him, officials said.

Richard Colhoff, Bureau of Indian Affairs special agent on the Rosebud Indian Reservation in south-central South Dakota, said Means was riding in a car driven by Thomas Poor Bear. Cohoff said Means' brother, Dale Means, also was a passenger in the car.

A vehicle passed Poor Bear's vehicle on the reservation road about five miles north of Rosebud, Colhoff said. The left rear window of Poor Bear's car was shattered, apparently by a thrown object of some kind, he said, adding Means apparently was hit by the flying glass.

Colhoff said he is continuing his investigation and couldn't confirm or deny reports from other sources that a bullet shattered the window and grazed Means' forehead.

It reportedly took eight stitches to close the wound on Means' forehead. He was released after being treated at a hospital.

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — U.S. Magistrate James Wilson Tuesday continued bond at $250,000 for James Theodore Eagle, 19, who is charged with two counts of murder in the June 26 shooting deaths of two FBI agents on South Dakota's Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

Wilson also denied a motion by Boston, Mass., attorney Allen Caplan, asking that charges against his client, Eagle, be dismissed on grounds that the government's action against Eagle violated his rights under the Treaty of 1868.

Wilson scheduled a preliminary hearing for Friday morning. In the meantime, Eagle will remain in the Pennington County Jail, where he has been since July 9 when he surrendered

Eagle, a resident of Wyoming's Wind River Indian Reservation, is charged in the shooting deaths of FBI Agents Jack Coler abd Ronald Williams. The two agents were killed near the reservation community of Oglala while attempting to serve arrest warrants.

Eagle also is charged with assaulting a federal officer and aiding and abetting.

He is the first person to be arrested in connection with the slayings, which prompted a massive manhunt on the reservation by some 200 FBI agents.

Eagle was being sought by the FBI on charges of assault with a deadly weapon and armed robbery at the time the two agents were killed.

Caplan told Wilson he would make a request to subpoena some witnesses to testify on behalf of Eagle at the preliminary hearing and will request a bail reduction hearing.

The complaint states in part:

"Eagle was at a group of houses on the reservation when an FBI agent approached the area in a car. The agent was told to leave because it was private land. The defendant (Eagle) said there were many people at this location and some were armed with automatic weapons, including M16s and M14s. Eagle told the prisoner that the agent left and then two FBI cars returned and a warning shot was fired toward the two cars.

"One agent got out of a car and returned fire with a handgun. The other agent got out of his car, went to the trunk, opened it and got out what appeared to be a rifle and fired it at the Indians. The defendant (Eagle) stated that the agent with the rifle was shot and went down where he could not do anything."

City Said Neglecting Fremont St.

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City lawmakers told Fremont St. homeowners the city has been neglecting that street and said they'll try to get some temporary improvements done within the next year.

Council members asked for a report from Public Works Director Bob Obering on the cost to improve the street from 48th to 70th, including shoulder paving.

Fremont St. citizens, led by J.R. Downing, told the council mud holes and ruts are the major problem in the street. The group also asked for a modest street widening of Fremont, once proposed as the last leg of the Northeast Radial.

Downing rejected Obering's suggestion that no street work should be done until the transportation study is completed.

The council also rejected Obering's suggestion and indicated it would decide next week whether the street improvements should go through the street action planning process, a process which normally would be followed.

Obering said construction probably could begin next summer, with completion in 1977.

In other business the council denied the request of some property owners between J and L on 13th St. to be excluded from the 13th St. beautification project.

Attorney Dick Hartsock, representing the landowners, reiterated his clients' plea to be taken out of the eight-block improvement district. The businessmen are contending they will not benefit from the project, instead suggesting that the two blocks be less developed.

Obering reported that bids will be taken Wednesday on the 13th St. project. Any change in plans now would push construction back another year, he said.

The council agreed that the same objections were raised in January when the district was ordered created. The council agreed the matter should be considered at the time the council sits as a Board of Equalization to assess the property.

In other action the council:

California Firm Checks Out City's Trash

Some people have been taking a second and even third look at that trash Lincolnites have been throwing away this summer.

It's all part of a study designed to see whether some of that refuse can be used to generate electricity or steam for Lincoln and Lancaster County.

City and county officials were told a $120,000 study is about 20% completed by the Ralph Parsons firm of Pasadena, Calif.

Project Director Bob Mitchell reported that the consultants will recommend whether steam should be produced to heat downtown businesses, whether the city should hook into the University of Nebraska's steam system, whether ammonia should be produced or whether the refuse should be burned along with coal at the Sheldon Station.

The first step in determining whether a garbage burning plant should be built is to find out what kind of trash people are producing.

A recent week's sampling of the refuse, done by students hired to sift through the trash, showed that about 45% of the refuse consisted of grass, leaves and shrubs.

Another 13% was paper, 10% was corrugated boxboard and 6% was ferrous metals. Other trash categories included newspapers, books, plastics, textiles, food wastes, rubber, leather, glass, stones, aluminum and other metals.

Mitchell said a larger amount of aluminum cans were tossed out in Lincoln than originally anticipated. The going price for aluminum, he said, is $300 a ton.

On the average Mitchell said people will dump about two tons of aluminum a day, 500 tons of refuse, 30 tons of ferrous materials, 400 tons of combustibles and 69 tons of residue. That averages out to about 5 pounds of trash dumped each day per person.

The consultants also are reviewing the county's Green Box trash collection program and already have decided that something needs to be done to improve the system.

Mitchell said a countywide program should be developed, better publicity should be given, and a reasonable drop fee charged rural residents at the city landfill.

The next report is scheduled to be given in mid-September.

Idi Amin

Britisher Says Amin 'Isn't Mad'

LONDON (AP) — Ugandan President Idi Amin is "an incredible person" but he "certainly isn't mad," says a British officer who visited Amin recently.

Maj. Iain Grahame, who was Amin's commanding officer when Uganda was a British colony, called the former top sergeant "very shrewd, very cunning and a born leader."

Speaking in a BBC interview Monday, Grahame added: "If he was to be murdered in 10 days, I would not be surprised. If he lasted 10 years, I would not be surprised."

Grahame was one of two British envoys who went to Uganda to ask Amin to spare the life of British lecturer Denis Hills. Hills, who called Amin "a village tyrant" in an unpublished manuscript, was later pardoned.

Venezuela May Complete Oil Nationalization Soon

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela, the United States' second largest foreign oil supplier, is expected to complete its takeover of foreign oil holdings, most of which are American, before the end of August.

The lower house Chamber of Deputies approved the bill nationalizing the $10 billion per year industry Monday night and the senate was expected to begin debate Wednesday.

Subsidiaries of Exxon, Shell, Gulf, Mobil, Sun and Texaco with assets unofficially estimated at $1.1 billion would be affected.

Venezuela intends to continue supplying oil to its traditional customers after nationalization through a new state company, called Petroleos Venezolanos (Petroven), according to government officials.

The United States buys 1.4 million barrels of crude oil and refined products per day from Venezuela. Only Canada exports more to the United States, providing 5.9 per cent of U.S. consumption to 5.4 per cent from Venezuela, according to figures from The American Petroleum Institute and U.S. Bureau of Mines.

The United States imports approximately 38 per cent of its daily petroleum needs which average 16.7 million barrels, getting the rest from domestic production.

Most of the rest of Venezuela's 2.5 million barrel per day production is shipped to Canada, Latin America and European Common Market countries.

President Carlos Andres Perez, whose Democratic Action party controls both houses, promised when he took office in March of 1974 to have the state take over the oil industry during 1975 but set no specific date.

The foreign oil companies have not objected to the government's plan to nationalize, indicating their desire to continue cooperating with Venezuela in international marketing and the supply of technology.

Transportation Unit Delays All Planning

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A committee set up to study transportation plans for the city and county "can't put everyone on bicycles."

In fact the Technical Committee members don't think it is their responsibility to even suggest putting people on bikes. And Tuesday morning the committee approved a motion to delay all further activity on developing plans and alternatives for streets and highways until new policies are developed by the City Council and County Board.

The Technical Committee has already handed over its technical advice concerning future traffic needs and possible technical solutions including street widenings, one-way street pairs and closer spacing of arterial streets.

"We have done the technical part. Now someone has to make hard decisions," said County Engineer Marv Nuernberger, a committee member.

The committee was asked earlier this month by the Officials Committee to consider all alternatives for transportation, whether they were feasible or even legal.

But the committee doesn't think this kind of work is in their area of expertise.

"We've shown the Officials Committee what kind of traffic its preferred land use will generate. Now it's the committee's decision whether to accommodate that traffic or put up with higher levels of congestion," said Bob Holsinger, city traffic engineer.

"If they want to reduce traffic they are going to have to change the land use, unless they enact legislation to force more limited use of the automobile," he said.

Such ideas as car pooling, limiting traffic on streets, limiting employe parking in downtown areas, staggering work hours in industry are legislative functions not technical functions, the committee decided.

The technical committee is the first step in a lengthy process to update the transportation section of the city and county's Comprehensive Plan.

In another matter, County Engineer Nuernberger won one round in his continuing battle over road right of way in the country's rural areas.

The committee directed Chairman Doug Brogden, county-city planning director, to inform the County Board that the Committee knows of no existing transportation plan for the county. Therefore there is no county-plan to be updated.

Nuernberger and Brodgen have fueded over right of way and a plan for major and minor county roads for several months.

A transporation plan included in the 1961 Comprehensive Plan was simply the federal aid secondary system, according to Nuernberger. And the federal aid system has nothing to do with which roads are major or minor, only with which roads are eligible for federal funding, he said.

County zoning regulations require a minimum dedication of 80 feet (40 on each side of the road) when subdivisions are created on major county roads and a minimum right of way dedication of 40 feet on minor roads.

Nuernberger contends that all section line roads are major, while Brodgen believes that only those roads designated in the Comprehensive Plan are major.

Some County Board members, reluctant to require 80 or more feet of dedicated right of way on all county roads want some kind of joint planning effort to show which are major and minor roads.

However Nuernberger believes that no amount of planning will adequately predict which county roads will become major in the future.

"Any road that turns from agriculture to residential needs to be preserved for future improvements," he believes. "There is no way in the country that you can tell where growth will be."

County-City Building Administrator Named

A former Air Force captain will take over the new position of County-City Building Administrator Monday morning.

Donald L. Porter, 32, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, was selected for the almost $15,300 post Tuesday by the County-City Building Commission.

Porter, spent almost 15 years in the Air Force before retiring in May. He was recently stationed at Offut Air Base where he was a section commander for the civil engineering squadron.

His varied background in the service includes work as assistant chief of the operations and maintenance branch of the civil engineering squadron.

Porter received a BS degree in engineering from Arizona State University while in the service.

The Building Commission hopes that the new administrator will be able to cut maintenance expenses for the County-City Building. The maintenance budget is paid half through county and half through city funds.

Senate OKs Automatic Federal Pay Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to give all members of Congress, federal judges, the President's cabinet and top federal executives automatic annual cost-of living pay raises beginning this year.

The pay raise was sent to the House by a 58-29 roll call vote as an amendment to an unrelated bill requiring the Postal Service to comply with the Occupational Health and Safety Act.

The amendment was defended as an act of simple justice for members of Congress who have not had a raise in their $42,500 annual salaries since March 1969.

The raise woulld be the same as that to be granted later this year to federal employes generally.

President Ford, who supported the pay raise as necessary to meet what he called a "critical" problem in recruitment and retention of senior-level executives and judges, has indicated he will recommend a 5 per cent cost-of-living raise this year, although the actual increase is about 8.6 per cent.

It also would go to Supreme Court associate justices, now earning $60,000 a year, and to about 14,000 federal employes whose salaries have been frozen since 1969 at a $36,000 ceiling.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., calling the cost of living amendment a "guaranteed annual increase in salary," opposed it as a "backdoor" approach.

A committee set up to study transportation plans for the city and county "can't put everyone on bicycles."

In fact the Technical Committee members don't think it is their responsibility to even suggest putting people on bikes. And Tuesday morning the committee approved a motion to delay all further activity on developing plans and alternatives for streets and highways until new policies are developed by the City Council and County Board.

The Technical Committee has already handed over its technical advice concerning future traffic needs and possible technical solutions including street widenings, one-way street pairs and closer spacing of arterial streets.

"We have done the technical part. Now someone has to make hard decisions," said County Engineer Marv Nuernberger, a committee member.

The committee was asked earlier this month by the Officials Committee to consider all alternatives for transportation, whether they were feasible or even legal.

But the committee doesn't think this kind of work is in their area of expertise.

"We've shown the Officials Committee what kind of traffic its preferred land use will generate. Now it's the committee's decision whether to accommodate that traffic or put up with higher levels of congestion," said Bob Holsinger, city traffic engineer.

"If they want to reduce traffic they are going to have to change the land use, unless they enact legislation to force more limited use of the automobile," he said.

Such ideas as car pooling, limiting traffic on streets, limiting employe parking in downtown areas, staggering work hours in industry are legislative functions not technical functions, the committee decided.

The technical committee is the first step in a lengthy process to update the transportation section of the city and county's Comprehensive Plan.

In another matter, County Engineer Nuernberger won one round in his continuing battle over road right of way in the country's rural areas.

The committee directed Chairman Doug Brogden, county-city planning director, to inform the County Board that the Committee knows of no existing transportation plan for the county. Therefore there is no county-plan to be updated.

Nuernberger and Brodgen have fueded over right of way and a plan for major and minor county roads for several months.

A transporation plan included in the 1961 Comprehensive Plan was simply the federal aid secondary system, according to Nuernberger. And the federal aid system has nothing to do with which roads are major or minor, only with which roads are eligible for federal funding, he said.

County zoning regulations require a minimum dedication of 80 feet (40 on each side of the road) when subdivisions are created on major county roads and a minimum right of way dedication of 40 feet on minor roads.

Nuernberger contends that all section line roads are major, while Brodgen believes that only those roads designated in the Comprehensive Plan are major.

Some County Board members, reluctant to require 80 or more feet of dedicated right of way on all county roads want some kind of joint planning effort to show which are major and minor roads.

However Nuernberger believes that no amount of planning will adequately predict which county roads will become major in the future.

"Any road that turns from agriculture to residential needs to be preserved for future improvements," he believes. "There is no way in the country that you can tell where growth will be."

County-City Building Administrator Named

A former Air Force captain will take over the new position of County-City Building Administrator Monday morning.

Porter, spent almost 15 years in the Air Force before retiring in May. He was recently stationed at Offut Air Base where he was a section commander for the civil engineering squadron.

His varied background in the service includes work as assistant chief of the operations and maintenance branch of the civil engineering squadron.

Porter received a BS degree in engineering from Arizona State University while in the service.

The Building Commission hopes that the new administrator will be able to cut maintenance expenses for the County-City Building. The maintenance budget is paid half through county and half through city funds.

Senate OKs Automatic Federal Pay Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to give all members of Congress, federal judges, the President's cabinet and top federal executives automatic annual cost-of living pay raises beginning this year.

The pay raise was sent to the House by a 58-29 roll call vote as an amendment to an unrelated bill requiring the Postal Service to comply with the Occupational Health and Safety Act.

The amendment was defended as an act of simple justice for members of Congress who have not had a raise in their $42,500 annual salaries since March 1969.

The raise would be the same as that to be granted later this year to federal employes generally.

President Ford, who supported the pay raise as necessary to meet what he called a "critical" problem in recruitment and retention of senior-level executives and judges, has indicated he will recommend a 5 per cent cost-of-living raise this year, although the actual increase is about 8.6 per cent.

It also would go to Supreme Court associate justices, now earning $60,000 a year, and to about 14,000 federal employes whose salaries have been frozen since 1969 at a $36,000 ceiling.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., calling the cost of living amendment a "guaranteed annual increase in salary," opposed it as a "backdoor" approach.

Senators Protest Smithsonian Plans

Washington (UPI) — All four senators from Iowa and Nebraska Tuesday told the Department of Interior that they will "resist strongly" any plan by the federal government to remove the priceless cargo recovered from the steamboat Bertrand which sank near Missouri Valley, Iowa, in 1865.

The action was the latest in an ongoing controversy over what is to be done with the artifacts contained in the hull of the boat, which was preserved perfectly intact by a thick layer of blue clay.

In a letter to Deputy Assistant Interior Secretary Douglas P. Wheeler and signed by Iowa Democratic Sens. Richard Clark and John Culver and Nebraska Republican Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis, the senators asked that they be consulted before a final decision is made on disposition of the artifacts.

The letter follows pleas over the weekend by the state historical preservation officers from both states that the Smithsonian Institute be prevented from obtaining the best part of the cargo.

However, Smithsonian officials claim that charges the institute plans to cut up the cargo and keep the best for itself are based on a misunderstanding. Silvio Bedini of the institute said it only wants the best item in each category for a master collection.

In a statement released by the four senators, they said Wheeler had indicated the department expects to make known Aug. 10 its recommendations for disposition of the Bertrand artifacts and cargo.

Earlier, the senators had written to Interior Secretary Stanley Hathaway urging the Interior Department to forego plans to split up the collection of artifacts.

"Perhaps we did not make it clear enough in our June 12 letter to Secretary Hathaway, but no plan except one that recommends the Bertrand cargo and artifacts remain intact at Desoto Bend is acceptable to us," the senators.

The Bertrand, a Civil War-era steamboat, sank in the Missouri River at Desoto Bend, near Missouri Valley April 1, 1865, while en route from St. Louis to Montana Territory.

Greenbugs Reported Increasing

Greenbug populations in sorghum are increasing in most areas of the state, dramatically in some, while Goss's bacterial wilt in cornfields has been discovered in two more Nebraska counties, University of Nebraska Extension specialists report.

Bob Roselle, Extension entomologist, said greenbugs have been damaging in southern counties and increasing in the northeast.

Corn leaf aphid populations are decreasing on sorghum, and to some extent corn, in many areas of the state, Roselle said. Corn rootworm and spider mite incidence is damaging in scattered counties, he said.

Light infestations of western bean cutworm are present in fields in southwest Nebraska and are increasing in the central and eastern portions, he said. Grasshoppers are also moving into corn in the central portion of the state, he added.

Dave Wysong, Extension plant pathologist, said Goss's wilt (leaf freckles) has been discovered in Greeley and Howard Counties.

This is the time of year when Goss's wilt develops rapidly, and farmers should be looking for its appearance, Wysong said.

Drugs Said Smuggled By Visitors

Omaha (AP) — Ex-offenders visiting the Douglas County Jail Annex are smuggling marijuana and other drugs into the facility, Corrections Director Charles Terry said Tuesday.

He made the comment after Commissioner Michael Albert received a letter signed by 46 inmates at the Clearview Annex. The letter protested the new visiting rules at the facility.

Albert said he does not agree with the new rules, which prohibit former inmates from visiting prisoners in the jail.

"People are sent to jail for rehabilitation, etc., but none of it does any good if the person is always discriminated against," the letter said.

Terry said he is permitted to restrict privileges if he suspects misconduct.

"If finding all this marijuana isn't suspicious, I don't know what is," Terry said.

Terry said visitors to the facility meet inmates face-to-face, and frequently pass marijuana and pills under the table between them.

"Most of the marijuana and other drugs are from guys who have been here and made a deal with somebody that they would come back and bring them drugs," said Terry, "I've got enough marijuana (confiscated from inmates) to keep you and I supplied for six months."

Court Ruling Not Expected To Force Releases Here

No patients involuntarily committed to Nebraska's three state hospitals will have to be released as a result of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling, state legal experts have decided.

Roger Hirsch, a State Department of Public Institutions lawyer, said the Lincoln, Norfolk and Hastings Regional Centers "simply could find no one who fell within the very narrow" purview of the ruling.

That ruling held that states could not involuntarily commit a nonviolent mental patient capable of living in a normal setting without providing treatment.

Hirsch said, "Since all of our patients are receiving treatment, no one fell within the class defined by the Supreme Court as being unconstitutionally confined."

In addition, Hirsch said no patients have asked to be released on the basis of the Supreme Court decision.

"We hope to stay on top of civil rights (for mental patients) developments to the extent that no Supreme Court rulings will affect our programs," he said.

Two Pesticides To Be Suspended

Washington (UPI)—The government has decided to suspend two widely used pesticides—heptachlor and chlordane—because of potential cancer risks, an environmental group said Tuesday.

The environmental Defense Agency said it understood the Environmental Protection Agency would issue a notice of intent to suspend the poisons Wednesday—a legal announcement that sets in motion the machinery for a possible ban.

The manufacturers would then be allowed to petition for a hearing. But a lawyer for the fund said she thought the pesticides could be off the market by the end of this year if the EPA followed through.

The EPA scheduled a news conference Wednesday to announce the decision.

The fund petitioned the EPA last year for a ban on use of the two pesticides, saying they pose some of the same problems that DDT and aldrin-dieldrin did.

All are of the same chlorinated hydrocarbon family of pesticides which persist in the environment, can be stored in the body fat of animals including man, and which have been linked to cancer.

The two pesticides have been produced at the rate of 20 million pounds per year. Their use is primarily agricultural, especially for corn, cotton and soybeans. But they also are a common backyard pesticide for use on lawns, ornamental shrubs and the like.

The fund said evidence of heptachlor's cancer-causing potential was developed during the EPA's hearings into aldrin-dieldrin. It also said alternative pesticides are available for most uses.

"Heptachlor epoxide, a metabolite of heptachlor, is found in biologically significant amounts in much meat, poultry and milk in the United States and in most humans," the fund said.

Weicker Expects Mischief In Future

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., embittered by the lack of reform in the wake of Watergate, Tuesday accused Congress, the press and the public of inviting future mischief by forgetting the scandal too soon.

Weicker said it is high time something is done — pointing out that none of the 98 Watergate-related bills introduced in Congress has passed.

"How's that for a two-year congressional record of straightening out the greatest scandal in the history of United States politics and government?" he said.

He also said he is "deeply disturbed" that there has been no real justice for those involved in the scandal.

"Justice has been delivered two ways — one way to the powerful and the strong and another way to those who are weak and have no political advantage," Weicker said as hearings opened on legislation to fend off future abuses of power.

Weicker was a member of the Senate Watergate Committee and also sits on the Senate's Government Operations Committee, which is considering a political reform bill based on recommendations of the Watergate panel.

It would, among other things, set up an office of public attorney, independent of the White House and the Justice Department, to investigate and prosecute abuses of power in the executive branch.

Weicker also criticized the public for "continuing to invite political mischief" by staying away from the polls in record numbers, and accused the press of failing to keep digging into government wrongdoing now that Watergate is over.

Former Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who was chairman of the Watergate Committee, declined to testify on the reform bill. But the vice chairman, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., did appear — cautioning against going too far.

"There is a danger that in trying to rectify the problems of Watergate we will diminish the authority of the presidency," Baker said. "We should not fundamentally change the relationship of the presidency, the Congress and the courts.

"We should remember that the system worked damn well during the Watergate proceedings."

Baker said a permanent independent prosecutor might be unconstitutional and suggested instead a division of government crimes in the Justice Department to deal with illegal acts whether found in the executive, Congress or the courts.

Regulation Adopted To Erase Slush Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Elections Commission adopted a new regulation Tuesday which would virtually wipe out the private cash funds many congressmen maintain in their offices.

By a 6-0 vote, the FEC approved a regulation which would treat such funds as campaign contributions and expenditures, on the assumption that their main purpose is to cultivate voters.

The regulation now goes to Congress which has 30 days to consider it. Unless a majority of Congress rejects it, the regulation becomes effective automatically.

The office funds, called "slush" funds by opponents, are maintained by many lawmakers as a supplement to the regular allowances for office expenses. They are used to hire extra staff members and pay for travel, newsletters, messages and gifts to constituents and similar activities.

While the new regulations would allow congressmen to continue the funds, most could not afford the luxury since anything spent from them would count as campaign expenditures, which are strictly limited under the 1974 Campaign Reform Act.

The one major exemption in the new ruling would allow some of the money normally going into office funds to be diverted to franking funds which are exempt by law from most of the new restrictions.

There would be no limit on the amount of money received and spent by a fund paying for anything which may be sent under the congressional frank, the free mailing privilege. However, other law does not allow franked mail to be sent out within 28 days of an election.

Reporter Says Indians Showed Him An Arsenal

San Francisco (AP)—A newspaper reporter says Oglala Sioux Indians drove him blindfolded to a weapons arsenal on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

Larry Hatfield of the San Francisco Examiner said the Indians told him they want people to know that they are serious.

Hatfield reported he recently was shown an arsenal of three cases of hand grenades, 40 gas masks, about a dozen shotguns and 60 rifles. He said the arsenal appeared large enough to arm 50 to 75 persons.

Hatfield quoted an Indian spokesman as saying there were more weapons in other places and they would be used if necessary. He added that the Indians also told him they were "tired of turning the other cheek."

Hatfield said he was contacted by two young Indian men at Gordon, Neb., and taken to the village of Pine Ridge on the reservation.

He said he was blindfolded and driven over gravel roads for about 90 minutes before stopping at three small shacks, where he was shown the arms.

The woman said she was raped in a ditch north of 48th and Cornhusker about 4 a.m. Monday, the Lancaster County sheriff's office said.

Two Pesticides To Be Suspended

Washington (UPI)—The government has decided to suspend two widely used pesticides—heptachlor and chlordane—because of potential cancer risks, an environmental group said Tuesday

The environmental Defense Agency said it understood the Environmental Protection Agency would issue a notice of intent to suspend the poisons Wednesday—a legal announcement that sets in motion the machinery for a possible ban

The manufacturers would then be allowed to petition for a hearing But a lawyer for the fund said she thought the pesticides could be off the market by the end of this year if the EPA followed through

The EPA scheduled a news conference Wednesday to announce the decision

The fund petitioned the EPA last year for a ban on use of the two pesticides, saying they pose some of the same problems that DDT and aldrin-dieldrin did

All are of the same chlorinated hydrocarbon family of pesticides which persist in the environment, can be stored in the body fat of animals including man, and which have been linked to cancer

The two pesticides have been produced at the rate of 20 million pounds per year Their use is primarily agricultural, especially for corn, cotton and soybeans But they also are a common backyard pesticide for use on lawns, ornamental shrubs and the like

The fund said evidence of heptachlor's cancer-causing potential was developed during the EPA s hearings into aldrin-dieldrin It also said alternative pesticides are available for most uses

' Heptachlor epoxide, a metabolite of heptachlor, is found in biologically significant amounts in much meat, poultry and milk in the United States and in most humans, ' the fund said

Weicker Expects Mischief In Future

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Lowell P Weicker Jr , R-Conn , embittered by the lack of reform in the wake of Watergate, Tuesday accused Congress, the press and the public of inviting future mischief by forgetting the scandal too soon

Weicker said it is high time something is done — pointing out that none of the 98 Watergate-related bills introduced in Congress has passed

'How's that for a two-year congressional record of straightening out the greatest scandal in the history of United States politics and government?' he said

He also said he is ' deeply disturbed that there has been no real justice for those involved in the scandal

Justice has been delivered two ways — one way to the powerful and the strong and another way to those who are weak and have no political advantage," Weicker said as hearings opened on legislation to fend off future abuses of power

Weicker was a member of the Senate Watergate Committee and also sits on the Senate s Government Operations Committee, which is considering a political reform 'bill based on recommendations of the Watergate panel

It would, among other things, set up an office of public attorney, independent of the White House and the Justice Department, to investigate and prosecute abuses of power in the executive branch

Weicker also criticized the public for "continuing to invite political mischief ' by staying away from the polls in record numbers, and accused the press of failing to keep digging into government wrongdoing now that Watergate is over

Former Sen Sam J Ervin Jr , D-N C , who was chairman of the Watergate Committee, declined to testify on the reform bill But the vice chairman, Sen Howard H Baker Jr , R-Tenn , did appear — cautioning against going too far

There is a danger that in trying to rectify the problems of Watergate we will diminish the authority of the presidency," Baker said "We should not fundamentally change the relationship of the presidency, the Congress and the courts

Baker said a permanent independent prosecutor might be unconstitutional and suggested instead a division of government crimes in the Justice Department to deal with illegal acts whether found in the executive, Congress or the courts

Regulation Adopted To Erase Slush Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Elections Commission adopted a new regulation Tuesday which would virtually wipe out the private cash funds many congressmen maintain in their offices

By a 6-0 vote, the FEC approved a regulation which would treat such funds as campaign contributions and expenditures, on the assumption that their main purpose is to cultivate voters

The regulation now goes to Congress which has 30 days to consider it Unless a majority of Congress rejects it, the regulation becomes effective automatically

The office funds, called slush funds by opponents, are maintained by many lawmakers as a supplement to the regular allowances for office expenses They are used to hire extra staff members and pay for travel, newsletters, messages and gifts to constituents and similar activities

While the new regulations would allow congressmen to continue the funds, most could not afford the luxury since anything spent from them would count as campaign expenditures, which are strictly limited under the 1974 Campaign Reform Act

The one major exemption in the new ruling would allow some of the money normally going into office funds to be diverted to franking funds which are exempt by law from most of the new restrictions

Pre-Schoolers Said Big Losers In State Mental Retardation Plan

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Pre-school mentally retarded children will be the primary losers if eligibility categories in Nebraska's plan for social services for the mentally retarded are not changed, the president of the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens (NebARC) said Tuesday

Mrs. Margaret Brink of York, at a news conference in Lincoln, sought public support for NebARC's efforts to change the state's current plan, scheduled for final drafting in August.

A $2 million reduction in funding to community-based mental retardation services is one of the association's targets. With the federal Title XX program, funding for services would be $8 million in 1975-76, compared with $10 million spent in 1974-75.

Another key objection is the state's maximum gross income of $5,880 for a family of four as a cutoff point for free services. The federal Title XX law, according to Mrs. Brink, allows Nebraska to set financial eligibility for free services at $10,624 for a family of four.

Also, while the federal program calls for a graduated fee scale for families of four with gross incomes between $10,624 and $15,272, Nebraska is not proposing any sliding fee schedule.

Under the state's proposed program, one-third of the mentally retarded persons currently eligible for community services will no longer be so, says Mrs. Brink.

"It is estimated that 60-70% of the pre-school mentally retarded children currently enrolled in human development programs will not be eligible to continue if the proposed eligibility categories are adopted," she said.

For example, a family of four whose gross annual income is $6,240, would be receiving free community-based pre-school development programs for a mentally retarded 2-year-old. As of Oct. 1, when Nebraska's proposed plan goes into effect, the family would no longer be eligible for free services.

The parents then have three options, Mrs. Brink said. They could pay for the pre-school at the going rate of $10-$20 a day. They could keep the child at home, which studies have shown increases the level of retardation, or they could place the child in the Beatrice State Home, which costs the government $10,000 a year.

In all three options, Mrs. Brink said, the lower middle class families carry more than their share of the total income tax load.

The association wants the plan for eligibility to disregard the income of families with retarded members up to the maximum allowed by the federal government.

Teachers Have Workshop On Student Writing Skills

Three Lincoln high school teachers have completed a workshop with 43 other junior and senior high English teachers from across Nebraska, to improve student writing skills.

Betty Turner of Lincoln Northeast, Elizabeth daSilva of Lincoln East and Mara Murphy of Lincoln Southeast attended the composition workshop, held in response to concerns of teachers and the public.

Rex Filmer, English consultant in the State Department of Education, said the department will develop curriculum materials as a result of the teachers' work, to be available to all Nebraska English teachers.

At the sessions in Lincoln, the teachers examined and developed parts of the composition process, working in particular on motivation, practical and creative writing, mechanical skills, and revising and developing a writing style.

The workshop was sponsored by the Education Department, Nebraska Council of Teachers of English, Nebraska Association of Supervision and Curriculum Development, and the Lincoln Public Schools.

Recreational Projects Along Missouri Eyed

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Rockport, Mo. — A master plan for recreational development along the Missouri River gained impetus Tuesday night as community leaders from seven bordering counties discussed the possibilities here.

Two Army Corps of Engineers representatives, Patricia Pusey and Ken Murnan of the Omaha district, reported that drafting of plans by an architectural contractor will begin in September. The preparation is expected to take eight months.

What goes into the plan depends upon a series of 12 meetings which will permit area residents and planning agencies to present specific requests. Such facilities as campsites, picnic areas and boat launching ramps have been specifically mentioned.

The Tuesday meeting, arranged by the Tri-State Missouri River Development Organization, followed a series of similar sessions in the Omaha and Sioux City areas. Joe Masopust of Peru, chairman of the Nebraska-Iowa-Missouri organization, said this was the first meeting of its kind between Omaha and Rulo.

"All we need is fire to get this going and I assure you we'll provide that," Masopust promised the corps. He explained that development along this river stretch has long been neglected.

It was explained that federal funds will be available for matching those of local agencies. Any land acquisition and maintenance for the various facilities will be up to the local sponsors.

Unanswered were such questions as how close the development must be to the river and whether existing parks will be eligible for improvement. The corps is to investigate further this week.

Plattsmouth representatives expressed interest in a boat ramp, while a Nebraska City spokesman indicated an interest in improving its Riverview Park. Other Nebraska towns represented were Peru, Brownville, Falls City and Rulo.

The possibility of developing a nature center adjacent to the Cooper Nuclear Station south of Brownville was discussed. Board member Guy Cooper of Humboldt is to present the matter to the Nebraska Public Power District board.

Industrial development is not a part of the plan, although Murnan said the corps might identify the most promising site from the standpoint of docking potential.

Murnan urged river promoters to have specific development sites and support data ready for presentation at the hearings this fall. Unless these are included in the original plans, he explained, implementation may be delayed.

The corps spokesman said $200,000 is currently available for recreational use along the Missouri, but anticipates a much greater amount once the master plan is implemented.

USDA Official Has Doubts Drought Hurt Corn Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Agriculture Department official said Tuesday he does not think drought has seriously cut into the nation's corn crop this year and believes the 1975 harvest is still headed for a record.

Don Paarlberg, USDA director of economics, said he also believes that reports of serious threats to the crop, needed for much that Americans consume as food, are premature.

Earlier on Tuesday, Iowa state Secretary of Agriculture Robert Lounsberry said that farmers in his state need rain within a few days or will risk losing much of their crop. Iowa produces about 20% of the nation's corn.

Paarlberg said he just returned from two weeks' vacation and drove "some 300 miles in Mr. Lounsberry's state" and said he saw nothing better in terms of the corn crop.

The Agriculture Department reported earlier this month that the corn crop is expected to produce 6.05 billion bushels, up about 30% from last year's drought-shriveled harvest.

The grain is needed to stimulate U.S. livestock production, meaning more meat, dairy products and poultry for American consumers, and to meet growing export demand for U.S. grain.

Paarlberg said this year's corn crop was off to a better start in the spring and that the rainfall pattern generally has been much better than in 1974.

"I never saw it looking better," Paarlberg told a reporter. "I'm an old Corn Belt type. I used to raise corn, so I can't see that it's all as bad as Mr. Lounsberry says."

At the same time, Paarlberg said, it is not accurate to estimate corn production on the basis of what he called "windshield crop forecasts" based upon people driving through crop areas.

Mosquitos Swamping Miami Pest Fighters

Miami (UPI)—A summer wind blew in clouds of mosquitos from the swamps southwest of here this week, and insect control specialists manning airplanes and trucks are waging a 24-hour-a-day war against the pests.

Officials reported "a little headway" Tuesday, but it got so bad on Key Biscayne that rangers at Cape Florida State Park felt obligated to post a sign at the entrance warning: "Mosquitos are bad—no refunds" (of the 25-cent admission fee).

James Heidt, Dade County's mosquito control supervisor, said there were many "hot spots" near the downtown area—places where a bare arm will attract a mosquito bite every three seconds.

University of Miami dermatologist Dr. Harvey Blank suggested treatments ranging from hot water and ice cubes to tincture of myrrh, but his last word of encouragement was also one of defeat: "One of the delights of life is to have an itch and be able to scratch it."

Recreational Projects Along Missouri Eyed

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Rockport, Mo — A master plan for recreational development along the Missouri River gained impetus Tuesday night as community leaders from seven bordering counties discussed the possibilities here

Two Army Corps of Engineers representatives, Patricia Pusey and Ken Murnan of the Omaha district, reported that drafting of plans by an architectural contractor will begin in September The preparation is expected to take eight months

What goes into the plan depends upon a series of 12 meetings which will permit area residents and planning agencies to present specific requests Such facilities as campsites, picnic areas and boat launching ramps have been specifically mentioned

The Tuesday meeting, arranged by the Tri-State Missouri River Development Organization, followed a series of similar sessions in the Omaha and Sioux City areas Joe Masopust of Peru, chairman of the Nebraska-Iowa-Missouri organization, said this was the first meeting of its kind between Omaha and Rulo

'All we need is fire to get this going and I assure you we ll provide that," Masopust promised the corps He explained that development along this river stretch has long been neglected

It was explained that federal funds will be available for matching those of local agencies Any land acquisition and maintenance for the various facilities will be up to the local sponsors

Unanswered were such questions as how close the development must be to the river and whether existing parks will be eligible for improvement The corps is to investigate further this week

Plattsmouth representatives expressed interest in a boat ramp, while a Nebraska City spokesman indicated an interest in improving its Riverview Park Other Nebraska towns represented were Peru, Brownville, Falls City and Rulo

The possibility of developing a nature center adjacent to the Cooper Nuclear Station south of Brownville was discussed Board member Guy Cooper of Humboldt is to present the matter to the Nebraska Public Power District board

Industrial development is not a part of the plan, although Murnan said the corps might identify the most promising site from the standpoint of docking potential

Murnan urged river promoters to have specific development sites and support data ready for presentation at the hearings this fall Unless these are included in the original plans, he explained, implementation may be delayed

The corps spokesman said $200,000 is currently available for recreational use along the Missouri, but anticipates a much greater amount once the master plan is implemented

USDA Official Has Doubts Drought Hurt Corn Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Agriculture Department official said Tuesday he does not think drought has seriously cut into the nation s corn crop this year and believes the 1975 harvest is still headed for a record

Don Paarlberg, USDA director of economics said he also believes that reports of serious threats to the crop needed for much that Americans consume as food are premature

Earlier on Tuesday Iowa state Secretary of Agriculture Robert Lounsberry said that farmers in his state need rain within a few days or will risk losing much of their crop Iowa produces about 20% of the nation s corn

Paarlberg said he just returned from two weeks vacation and drove some 300 miles in Mr Lounsberry s state" and said he saw nothing better in terms of the corn crop

The Agriculture Department reported earlier this month that the corn crop is expected to produce 6 05 billion bushels, up about 30% from last year s drought-shriveled harvest.

The grain is needed to stimulate U S livestock production, meaning more meat, dairy products and poultry for American consumers, and to meet growing export demand for U S grain

Paarlberg said this year's corn crop was off to a better start in the spring and that the rainfall pattern generally has been much better than in 1974

I never saw it looking better ' Paarlberg told a reporter ' I m an old Corn Belt type I used to raise corn, so I can't see that it s all as bad as Mr. Lounsberry says "

At the same time, Paarlberg said, it is not accurate to estimate corn production on the basis of what he called "windshield crop forecasts" based upon people driving through crop areas

Oxygen Came To System Later

. . . Discovery Hailed

©The New York Times

By WALTER SULLIVAN

New York — From variations in the nature of oxygen found in the earth, moon and a wide range of meteorites, scientists at the University of Chicago have concluded that these objects were not, as long assumed, formed from the same mix of primordial elements.

Rather, they have reported at recent scientific meetings it appears that material foreign to the Solar System penetrated parts of it early in the development of the sun and planets. It then became more extensively incorporated into some subjects than others.

This invading material was strongly enriched in one isotope, or variant of oxygen, known as Oxygen 16. It can therefore be used as a tracer to reconstruct the histories of the various Solar System components.

Some Hail Discovery

The discovery is being hailed by some planetary astronomers as the most important development in their field in several years.

It has already been shown, for example, that the earth, moon and certain meteorites stand in a class by themselves, among those celestial objects that have so far been sampled.

The remaining meteorites fall into four other classes, implying formation in different regions of the nebula, or whirling cloud of material from which the sun, planet, moons and meteorites of the Solar System were formed.

The findings have been described at several recent meetings such as that, last month, of the American Geophysical Union in Washington, D.C. The analyses have been done by Dr. Robert N. Clayton and his colleagues at the University of Chicago.

Oxygen normally occurs in three forms or isotopes: Oxygen 16, 17 and 18. The nuclei of all three contain eight protons whose positive electric charges determine the chemical properties of the element. The isotopes differ in the number of their neutrons, which is 8, 9 and 10, respectively.

Because Oxygen 18 contains two more neutrons than Oxygen 16 its weight is sufficiently greater to affect its performance in various phenomena. Water formed of Oxygen 18, for example, tends to precipitate sooner than water containing Oxygen 16. In any sample of earth oxygen, therefore, there are slight differences in the relative abundances of Oxygen 16 and 18.

However, since the oxygen all came from the same source and had the same primordial mix of isotopes, there is a consistent pattern in the relationship of all three forms. Specifically the abundance of Oxygen 17 versus oxygen 16 shows a systematic relationship to the abundance of Oxygen 18 versus Oxygen 16.

It is believed that all oxygen has been formed by the nuclear "fires" inside stars that later exploded, spewing their material into space. The earth's oxygen all appears to have been formed inside the same star or stars.

Moon Formed Later

In their presentation to the Lunar Science Conference in Houston last March, Dr. Clayton and Dr. Toshiko Mayeda concluded that the moon was not formed directly from the nebula. Rather it was built from objects that had formed earlier and been heated to high enough temperature to segregate their internal material in terms of weight.

It is believed such segregation probably accounts for the sinking of iron within the earth to form its core. The iron meteorites would then be fragments of the core of some body that was similarly differentiated.

The meteorites that fall into the same category as the earth, the two scientists noted, are those that had already passed through such differentiation at about the time the earth and moon were formed, some 4.6 billion years ago.

This, they said, "lends strong support to models of the formation of the moon by capture of such bodies." The same conclusion would appear applicable to the earth.

Landing On Mars Set For July 4, 1976

By JOHN FIALKA
(c) Washington Star

Washington — The most ambitious, expensive and far-reaching event of the American Bicentennial celebration is scheduled to occur on the afternoon of July 4, 1976.

No one will see it because it will happen at a place called Chryse, a deep, dusty valley somewhere near the equator of the planet Mars.

A Viking spacecraft, perhaps the most sophisticated robot man has yet devised, will be in the final stages of putting its lander capsule down, softly, on the "red planet."

Is There Life There?

After the expenditure of a billion dollars and seven years of effort, American scientists will then be in a position to answer a question that has fired the imaginations of generations of American boys since Edgar Rice Burroughs wrote "The Princess of Mars" a half century ago: Is there life on Mars?

To the average American televiewer, spoiled by live color telecasts from moon landings and stupefied by a day of grandiose patriotic celebrations, the event may not seem like much.

What he will see on his television screen, if everything works out right, will be a still, black and white picture of something that looks like a pie plate sitting on a desert. (The first thing the Mars lander is programmed to do is take a picture of one of its metal feet to see how it has disturbed the surface.)

But the waves of tension preceding this event have already begun to grip the world scientific community, because the complicated gear that could profoundly change man's view of his Solar System is going through its final, critical preparations.

'Moment Of Truth'

"It has been a long, long road," said Robert S. Kraemer, director of planetary programs for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "We are approaching the real moment of truth."

There are actually two Viking spacecrafts, and they will be used in tandem to explore Mars. The first one, the one designed to enhance the bicentennial, will be launched on Aug. 11. The second will be sent aloft 10 days later.

The trip to Mars will take over 10 months. A year from now, as the first Viking craft approaches Martian orbit, NASA scientists will be faced with a number of critical decisions, the answers to which will have to be based on what we already know or suspect about Martian conditions.

Mars has fooled them before, and they worry that it could again. When NASA's Mariner 9 spacecraft was sent to orbit and photograph Mars four years ago, the sophisticates knew that the old lore about the existence of canals and areas of vegetation was wrong. Mars was a dead planet, they said. It had no atmosphere and no signs of an earlier life.

So Mariner 9 arrived in the midst of a gigantic dust storm. Huge plumes of reddish, talc-like dust were being whipped around in an atmosphere of what appears to be mainly carbon dioxide.

It found no canals, but it did photograph "sinuous valleys" that scientists have admitted seem to have no explanation other than the possibility that they once were massive riverbeds.

It also found Nix Olympica, the largest known volcano in the Solar System. It is twice as high as Mt. Everest and twice as wide as the major islands of the Hawaiian volcanic chain.

Water There?

Is there still water in some of those old river-beds? Are any of the volcanic areas still active? These are some of the questions the scientists will have to try to answer as Viking prepares to go into Martian orbit.

The orbiter, the part of the Viking spacecraft that will remain in orbit as the lander descends, is fitted with a bank of instruments that will seek out evidence of water or unusual heat near the landing sites that scientists have selected. If any of them show up more promising than expected, the landing can be shifted away from Chryse.

But at the moment, Chryse looks promising. It sits in the middle of another "surprise" feature first seen by Mariner, the great rift of Mars. It is like the Grand Canyon, only four times deeper, measures 150 miles from rim to rim, and winds for 2,300 miles along the Martian equator.

The hope is that Chryse was once the mouth of an ancient river system and that there might be fossils, or simple one-celled plants or animals still remaining there.

If any of them show up more promising than expected, the landing can be shifted away from Chryse.

But at the moment, Chryse looks promising. It sits in the middle of another "surprise" feature first seen by Mariner, the great rift of Mars. It is like the Grand Canyon, only four times deeper, measures 150 miles from rim to rim, and winds for 2,300 miles along the Martian equator.

The hope is that Chryse was once the mouth of an ancient river system and that there might be fossils, or simple one-celled plants or animals still remaining there.

U.S., England Reunion Sought

Richmond, Va. (AP) — Now, upon ground once trod by Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson, comes a counter-revolutionary band of loyalists who would finally return prodigal America to the forgiving arms of Mother England.

Already these latter-day Tories have collected $83 and the support of 150 U.S. citizens who envision a happier life in a colony restored. If only another 200 million or so sign up, their petition may be ready for the Queen when she arrives for a Bicentennial visit next July.

Otherwise, the Bicentennial will be nothing but "a big fake, a piece of propaganda trying to cover up the mistakes we've made," says John T. Ambrose, co-founder of the Committee for Reunion with England.

"It's time we realized that the Revolution was nothing more than the self-serving acts of a bunch of hotheads and caused a lot of problems for this country which now can be corrected only by reunion."

According to the committee's Declaration of Reunion, the corruption and injustice which have troubled America's 199 years could have been avoided if the rebels had only been patient enough to work within the system.

It noted, for example, that slave trade was abolished in the British Empire in 1807, "two score and 16 years" before the Emancipation Proclamation.

If only the colonies had stayed in line, there would have been no Civil War, no Reconstruction and no Ku-Klux-Klan, it adds.

"World War I and II would never have occurred. Germany would never dare attack a British Empire that included both sides of the Atlantic Ocean. The American Revolution not only betrayed America, but also Mother England, nay the entire civilized world," it says.

"Mother England is kind and just," the declaration says. "If we apologize now and promise not to rebel any more, she will go easy on us. Amnesty will be offered to the rebel leaders and the present officials of this rebel government. There would be no fear that President Ford, members of Congress or the Supreme Court will be sent to prison."

Naturally "there cannot be unconditional amnesty," however. "They have made mistakes and must pay a penalty . . . perhaps a period of alternative service in the Bengal Lancers."

The committee was organized back in March when Ambrose, an advertising writer, and David A. Gambill, a Richmond bank employe, decided the Bicentennial was, on the whole, boring.

"It's lacked a sense of humor, any real comedy," said Ambrose. "So we got out a mimeograph machine, took an ad in the Richmond Mercury, rented a Post Office box and sat back to watch the fun."

The Times of London published an article on the committee noting both its plea for contributions and its mailing address. That netted about 20 letters from Britain and a check from one Londoner for 20 new pence — or enough to buy two copies of the Times.

Finding Job Hard For Short People

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Steve Nerden hopped onto a sofa with its legs cut off and said the only problem with being 4 foot 2 is getting a job to support your family.

"We don't figure we're handicapped . . . we just figure it's harder'n hell to get a job," Nerden said about himself and his 4-foot-tall wife of three months, Patricia.

"You have to prove yourself to everybody. Most people won't give you a chance," he said.

Nerden is 21 years old, 10 days older than his wife. He's working as a janitor at the Boulder County Human Resources Department, earning $16 a night with the promise of morning work in the future. Mrs. Nerden can't find work, although she was trained as a pediatric nurse's aide in her home town of Rawlins, Wyo.

"She wants to get something working with kids. Like she says, kids are scared of a big lady in white but not of a little person," Nerden said. "The problem is that apparently not many people agree with her."

The Nerdens have had trouble holding jobs in the past. He was trained as a jeweler, like his 4-foot-tall father in Denver, but he says he had difficulty polishing silver without burning his fingers and lost that job. Both Steve and Patricia once worked on a ski manufacturing assembly line, but those jobs disappeared because their small arms didn't adjust to the line and they couldn't work as fast as their coworkers.

U.S. Steel Earns Record

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steel producer, reported record first-half earnings of $311.2 million, or $5.74 per share, despite a 20 per cent decrease in income for the second quarter.

In making the announcement Tuesday, U.S. Steel noted strong first-quarter earnings, bolstered by $44.6 million from the sale of timberland, contributed to the record six-month figures.

For the quarter, U.S. Steel earned $129.1 million, or $2.38 per share, on sales of $2.07 billion. This compared to income of $160.3 million, or $2.96 per share, on sales of $2.42 billion in the second quarter of 1974.

The record six-month earnings came on sales of $4.21 billion and shipments of 9.4 million tons.

To Your Good Health:

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the cause and cure of "geographic tongue"?

Also, I have another question. What produces the feeling of a little shock when someone touches the TV knob or even, sometimes, when touching another person?

—L.G.

The surface of the tongue consists of tiny structures called papillae. Normally, these structures form a rather uniformly smooth surface. When there is an enlargement of a group of the papillae, an irregular design can appear, and the tongue will have the appearance of a map in relief.

Any irritation can cause this — from alcohol, tobacco, hot or spicy foods, toothpaste, mouth gargles, or local inflammations. Deficiency of vitamin B can also be a factor. Removal of the causative factors, and sometimes use of vitamin B supplements, is the usual treatment.

As to your other question, the one about shock from your TV. This could be due to a short in the electrical system of your set, and this must always be considered first. The phenomenon can also be caused by the static electricity you generate, as from your carpeting. This seems most prevalent in cold, dry weather. This might also explain the shock you get from other persons.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 58 years old and never had any allergies until this past year. Now my eye doctor says I have an allergy that is affecting my eyes. Is this possible?

I also had a bladder infection this past year. How can you tell if it is really cleared up? What is the best way of treating allergies that affect the eyes? Please, also, send me your booklet, "Kidneys: Facts You Need to Know About Them," for which I ams sending 25 cents to you, in care of this newspaper, and the required long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing.

—Mrs. M.J.D.

An eye irritation can be due to an allergy, a form of contact dermatitis, which is an inflammatory reaction to some material to which your skin is particularly sensitive.

A person may use the same soap or cosmetic material, including nail polish, for years without any obvious problem, then suddenly develop a sensitivity to it. In this, elimination of the causative agent is the only available treatment.

Incidentally, your bladder problem can also be allergy-based. But in such cases the agent is often in a food. Usually, the bladder infection will be detectable in urine samples. When the urine tests show the infecting organism gone, you can assume it to be cleared up at the point of origin, which can be anywhere along the urinary tract. My booklet on kidneys, which you requested, will provide a more detailed discussion of urinary tract infections.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is regional ieities? What causes it and what is the treatment? I am on a low fat, low milk and low residue diet, but that doesn't seem to control it. Do they ever recommend surgery to remove the diseased bowel?

—M.M.

This is an inflammation of unknown cause which affects the large or small intestine, also called Crohn's disease, sometimes also regional enterities, depending upon what portion of the intestine is involved. In severe cases there may be a thickening, even an ulceration, of the lining of the bowel area affected. Fistula, an abnormal passage in the tissue, may also develop.

A common symptom is pain in the lower abdomen on the right side. Sometimes there is pain around the umbilical area. Your diet is a conservative form of treatment. If it isn't successful, and if medication is not effective in removing the problem, then surgery may be recommended.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Paris — Although all of France is expensive, Paris is almost up to Tokyo for prices.

A San Francisco restaurant man said: "Four of us having a modest dinner at a three-star restaurant — no champagne, nothing fancy — caught a bill for $250!"

He said: "The wine I ordered — an inexpensive Cotes du Rhone and not a vintage year — cost twice what I charge for it in my restaurant."

The July sun filters through the chestnut trees along the great boulevards that General Haussman built for Napoleon. (They say so he could sweep them with cannon fire and control the Paris mobs. But it made a beautiful city.)

The tourist season is in full swing. And hotel rooms impossible to get.

Wine is serious business in France. As well as a serious thing in the daily eating.

Taxes on wine last year gave France $530 million. It is the leading agricultural export to the tune of $248 million. Some 2.5 million Frenchmen make their living on wine and allied industries.

I wouldn't see how. If you eat in French restaurants, you cannot see how they could pour more wine into a Frenchman with a funnel.

After taking your order, the waiter says: "And what to drink?"

He is not talking about milk. He hands you the wine card.

The wine people are crusading to pour more grape into French interiors.

All French meals are crusading to pour more grape into French interiors.

Even so, this does not seem to be enough. And the wine people have put up posters: "Who loves wine, loves life."

They have also sponsored a letter-writing contest among French moppets. The winners get a bottle of vintage wine. To give to papa.

For some time, temperance people have said that France is a nation of alcoholics. That the workman, with his bottle of wine, is on a day-long buzz.

They say this starts in youth — French youngsters are usually given wine with water at meals. I have seen a 10-year-old, at his birthday party, knock off a half bottle of champagne.

The temperance people have THEIR posters. They show a tearful boy and the slogan: "Papa, don't drink. Think of me!"

A French premier fell a few years ago. He campaigned for Frenchmen to drink milk instead of wine.

However, the youth of France is cutting down on bistro drinking. But for economy reasons. A man from one of the great cognac families told me: "These youngsters used to sit in sidewalk cafes and drink wine because they had nothing else to do. What has changed that is scooters and motorcycles.

To Your Good Health:

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the cause and cure of "geographic tongue"?

Also, I have another question. What produces the feeling of a little shock when someone touches the TV knob or even, sometimes, when touching another person?

—L.G.

The surface of the tongue consists of tiny structures called papillae. Normally, these structures form a rather uniformly smooth surface. When there is an enlargement of a group of the papillae, an irregular design can appear, and the tongue will have the appearance of a map in relief.

Any irritation can cause this — from alcohol, tobacco, hot or spicy foods, toothpaste, mouth gargles, or local inflammations. Deficiency of vitamin B can also be a factor. Removal of the causative factors, and sometimes use of vitamin B supplements, is the usual treatment.

As to your other question, the one about shock from your TV. This could be due to a short in the electrical system of your set, and this must always be considered first. The phenomenon can also be caused by the static electricity you generate, as from your carpeting This seems most prevalent in cold, dry weather. This might also explain the shock you get from other persons.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 58 years old and never had any allergies until this past year. Now my eye doctor says I have an allergy that is affecting my eyes. Is this possible?

I also had a bladder infection this past year. How can you tell if it is really cleared up? What is the best way of treating allergies that affect the eyes? Please, also, send me your booklet, "Kidneys: Facts You Need to Know About Them," for which I ams sending 25 cents to you, in care of this newspaper, and the required long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing.

—Mrs. M.J.D.

An eye irritation can be due to an allergy, a form of contact dermatitis, which is an inflammatory reaction to some material to which your skin is particularly sensitive.

A person may use the same soap or cosmetic material, including nail polish, for years without any obvious problem, then suddenly develop a sensitivity to it. In this, elimination of the causative agent is the only available treatment.

Incidentally, your bladder problem can also be allergy-based. But in such cases the agent is often in a food Usually, the bladder infection will be detectable in urine samples. When the urine tests show the infecting organism gone, you can assume it to be cleared up at the point of origin, which can be anywhere along the urinary tract. My booklet on kidneys, which you requested, will provide a more detailed discussion of urinary tract infections.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is regional ieities? What causes it and what is the treatment? I am on a low fat, low milk and low residue diet, but that doesn't seem to control it. Do they ever recommend surgery to remove the diseased bowel?

—M.M.

This is an inflammation of unknown cause which affects the large or small intestine, also called Crohn's disease, sometimes also regional enterities, depending upon what portion of the intestine is involved. In severe cases there may be a thickening, even an ulceration, of the lining of the bowel area affected. Fistula, an abnormal passage in the tissue, may also develop.

A common symptom is pain in the lower abdomen on the right side. Sometimes there is pain around the umbilical area. Your diet is a conservative form of treatment. If it isn't successful, and if medication is not effective in removing the problem, then surgery may be recommended.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Paris — Although all of France is expensive, Paris is almost up to Tokyo for prices.

A San Francisco restaurant man said "Four of us having a modest dinner at a three-star restaurant — no champagne, nothing fancy — caught a bill for $250!"

He said: "The wine I ordered — an inexpensive Cotes du Rhone and not a vintage year — cost twice what I charge for it in my restaurant"

The July sun filters through the chestnut trees along the great boulevards that General Haussman built for Napoleon. (They say so he could sweep them with cannon fire and control the Paris mobs But it made a beautiful city)

Wine is serious business in France. As well as a serious thing in the daily eating

Taxes on wine last year gave France $530 million. It is the leading agricultural export to the tune of $248 million. Some 2.5 million Frenchmen make their living on wine and allied industries.

I wouldn't see how. If you eat in French restaurants, you cannot see how they could pour more wine into a Frenchman with a funnel

After taking your order, the waiter says: "And what to drink?"

He is not talking about milk. He hands you the wine card

The wine people are crusading to pour more grape into French interiors.

All French meals are crusading to pour more grape into French interiors.

Even so, this does not seem to be enough And the wine people have put up posters. "Who loves wine, loves life"

They have also sponsored a letter-writing contest among French moppets. The winners get a bottle of vintage wine. To give to papa.

For some time, temperance people have said that France is a nation of alcoholics. That the workman, with his bottle of wine, is on a day-long buzz.

The temperance people have THEIR posters. They show a tearful boy and the slogan. "Papa, don't drink. Think of me!"

A French premier fell a few years ago. He campaigned for Frenchmen to drink milk instead of wine.

However, the youth of France is cutting down on bistro drinking But for economy reasons. A man from one of the great cognac families told me: "These youngsters used to sit in sidewalk cafes and drink wine because they had nothing else to do. What has changed that is scooters and motorcycles.

Or Write P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, NE 68501

I know that property damage accidents under $250 don't have to be reported to the state. However, I understand this isn't the case in the city of Lincoln. Can ACTION LINE explain?

—Curious, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: A property damage accident over $250 has to be reported to the state within 10 days, otherwise non-injury accidents don't have to be reported. However, city ordinances in Lincoln still require accidents involving more than $100 damage to be reported to the city. Inspector Dean Leitner says it was initially felt when the state changed its requirements that the city should maintain the old way in order to get a true picture of accident patterns. Leitner says this opinion has changed and the city attorney has been asked to draft an amendment to the ordinance to comply with the state requirements of only reporting accidents of more than $250.

I found an old wooden box in my basement that said Gillen & Boney Manufacturing Confectioners of Lincoln on it. Can ACTION LINE tell me when this store was in business and what they sold?

—N.F., Wilber

ACTION LINE: Gillen & Boney was a candy manufacturing firm founded in 1895 at 8th and P Sts. in Lincoln, according to the book Tower on The Plains which is a history of the capitol city. The book says the firm was eventually bought out by the Russell Stover Co. in 1942. The latter firm still occupies that site.

We recently had supper at a Lincoln restaurant and I found some hair on my steak. When this was pointed out to the waitress, she informed me the cooks had long hair but didn't wear hair nets. Isn't there some kind of health laws governing this?

—J.K., Pleasant Dale

ACTION LINE: Mike Hammar, acting supervisor of the food sanitation section for the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Dept., says city ordinance requires that hairnets, headbands, hats or some other effective hair restrainer must be worn by anyone connected with preparing or serving food in a public restaurant. He says the operator or manager of such establishments is reponsible for his employes obeying health laws. Hammar says this type of situation should not only be brought to the attention of the health department, but the customers should let the management know they don't appreciate this sort of thing happening.

I've heard there's recently been discussion that traffic congestion in downtown Lincoln may be causing high air pollution readings. What plans are being made to move the traffic more rapidly to alleviate this situation.

—Concerned, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: City Traffic Engineer Bob Holsinger says there isn't a simple answer to this question and that it's tied in to the overall metropolitan transit study now underway. He says the signalization of O St. is being constantly improved to insure better progression of traffic. However, he says the problem has a lot to due with other streets and corridors in addition to O St. Holsinger says the signals on O St. will eventually be fit into the computer system for traffic signals when its installed.

I've been trying to pick up an article at Bonnie's Ceramics in Beatrice that I made in a class early this year. Also, my daughter-in-law and I inadvertantly paid twice for firing some things she had made. I've been unable to get an answer from the firm concerning the item or a refund on the other matter.

—M.I., Crab Orchard

ACTION LINE: Bonnie Faathoff, the proprietor, says she received your letter just before she went on vacation and hasn't had time to mail the item to you. She says that she stayed open a couple of times longer than usual when you had told her you would be by to pick the things up, but you didn't come. She says she will mail the article to you and you should receive it in about a week. She notes that you still have to pay for the final finish on the items and says the extra money you paid for the firing can be deducted from this bill if you would like.

Social Security Checks May Go Right To Banks

Nebraskans may have their Social Security checks sent directly from the Treasury Department to the financial institution of their choice, Bob Burkley of Fairbury, president of the Nebraska Bankers Association, said Tuesday.

Burkley, president of the First National Bank at Fairbury, said the direct deposit program is being started in the central and western states following successful test marketing in Georgia and Florida and is scheduled to be nationwide by this fall.

Burkley said the August Social Security check envelopes will include formal notification that the individual may visit his or her bank to fill out a single sheet form authorizing the Social Security Administration to send future checks to the bank.

At first, he said, checks will be sent to the banks but by the end of 1976 it is expected this will be done by means of electronic funds transfer.

Treasury officials said Nebraska has 204,326 regular Social Security beneficiaries, or about 13% of the population. There also are 14,444 Nebraskans who receive supplemental Social Security benefits.

Man Accepts Reduced Charge

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man had pleaded guilty to manslaughter charges in connection with the death of an Omaha cafe manager.

George F. Beagle, 40, entered the plea after the charges were reduced to manslaughter from second-degree murder.

He is charged in the July 7 shooting death of Pete Petros.

Witnesses said Petros was shot in the stomach as he tried to settle a dispute at the Ambassador Cafe. The incident reportedly followed arguments Beagle had with several persons in the cafe.

Douglas County District Court Judge Samuel Caniglia accepted Beagle's plea, and ordered a presentence investigation.

Top Business Indicators Show Improvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Tuesday its index of leading business indicators was up 1.9% in June, a big increase that points to a solid improvement in the economy in months ahead.

The indicators index now has increased for four consecutive months and it stood at 98.3 in June, the highest since last October when it was 100.3.

In another report on the economy, the Commerce Department said the nation had a record merchandise trade surplus in the second quarter of $3.5 billion and also a record in the first six months of nearly $5.5 billion.

The surplus was attributed to a steep decline in imports, although exports also fell. Imports were off in the second quarter by $3 billion to a total of $22.3 billion, while exports fell $1.4 billion to a total $25.8 billion.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said, meanwhile, that the value of U.S. farm exports in the fiscal year ended June 30 rose to a record $21.6 billion. He said agriculture exports exceeded imports by $12 billion.

"The surplus in agricultural trade the past year has helped to stabilize the dollar, to strengthen our international economic position and to pay for high-cost petroleum imports," Butz said in his statement.

The Commerce Department uses the index of leading indicators to forecast future trends of the economy. It was at its record high of 126.6 in June, 1973.

Eight of nine categories in the index increased in June, with the strongest rise occurring in liquid assets, which are the cash-term securities held by banks and thrift institutions.

Also increasing was the average work week, up one-tenth of an hour to 39.1 hours.

There were improvements in sales price changes for a certain group of crude materials; stock prices; the money supply; new orders from manufacturers and building permits.

Declining were contracts and orders for plant and equipment. Data was not yet available for three other categories, the job layoff rate, business investment and inventory changes.

The Commerce Department revised its indicators index in April to include economic measures whose movement in the past have paralleled business cycles.

According to the old index, which the Commerce Department continues to report, the indicators declined 1.4% in June.

In its report on trade activity in the second quarter of the year, the Commerce Department said agriculture exports, especially grain and soybeans were down and that imports of petroleum were off sharply, averaging 5.7 million barrels a day in the second quarter compared with 6.2 million barrels a day in the first quarter.

The Commerce Department reported Monday that the nation had a record trade surplus in the month of June of $1.7 billion.

Burns Optimistic On Unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns presented a relatively optimistic projection on unemployment to the Senate-House Economic Committee Tuesday, estimating it would drop to 7% by the end of next year.

The panel had been told earlier by government and private economists that the rate, now 8.9%, is not likely to fall below 8% by the close of 1976.

Burns said he was presenting his own view, not necessarily that of other members of the Federal Reserve Board or of its staff.

But he said many observers were underestimating the momentum that the recovery from the recession would generate.

Skeptical Democrats on the committee urged the Federal Reserve head to pursue a looser monetary policy, declaring they feared the recovery might be very weak.

They suggested an 11 or 12% expansion of the money supply instead of the 5 to 7.5% target Burns favors.

However, Burns defended what he called the moderate view of his board on monetary policy, insisting that inflation still is a major threat.

For one thing, he said, the large grain sales to Russia may touch off further food price increases as did similar shipments two years ago.

Burns said that, in order to keep the economy under control, Congress should consider a tougher incomes policy aimed at wages and prices than is embodied in the law creating the Council on Wage and Stability.

It could create a Wage and Price Review Board with broad investigative powers to hold public hearings on proposed price and wage hikes that have inflationary implications, but with no enforcement powers, he said.

Burns declined to endorse at this time extension into 1976 of the tax cuts voted in March, saying it was premature to decide this question.

But he urged Congress to pursue a restrained fiscal policy on both tax reductions and federal spending.

Such a policy, combined with the moderate Federal Reserve stance on the money supply, will be sufficient to get the country out of the recession and will offer a guarantee against renewed inflation he said.

Rock Island Seeks Loan To Prevent Deterioration

CHICAGO (AP) — The financially troubled Rock Island Lines asked for court permission Tuesday to borrow $22.6 million to prevent what it described as a threatened deterioration of the railroad's services.

Attorney Nicholas G. Manos, who represents Rock Island Trustee William M. Gibbons, said that the railroad has "enough cash flow to operate, but without this money the condition of the road would deteriorate."

Manos said Judge Frank J. McGarr of U.S. District Court probably will order a hearing in September on the request. He said the railroad hopes the U.S. Department of Transportation will guarantee trustees certificates for the loan.

Court approval is needed because the railroad has filed for financial reorganization.

The Rock Island proposes to borrow the funds from the Federal Financing Bank if it obtains a government guarantee of the loan, Manos said. The petition he filed asking approval of the loan declared that the marketing of such trustees certificates would be impossible without a federal guarantee.

The transportation department could guarantee at least $19 million and perhaps all of the loan with money provided by the Emergency Rail Services Act of 1970, Manos said.

The Interstate Commerce Commission also must pass upon the proposal.

Rock Island Seeks Loan To Prevent Deterioration

CHICAGO (AP) — The financially troubled Rock Island Lines asked for court permission Tuesday to borrow $22 6 million to prevent what it described as a threatened deterioration of the railroad's services.

Attorney Nicholas G. Manos, who represents Rock Island Trustee William M. Gibbons, said that the railroad has "enough cash flow to operate, but without this money the condition of the road would deteriorate."

Manos said Judge Frank J. McGarr of U.S. District Court probably will order a hearing in September on the request. He said the railroad hopes the U.S. Department of Transportation will guarantee trustees certificates for the loan.

Third Kearney Bank Approved

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

State Banking Director William Riley Tuesday chartered a third bank for Kearney but refused the application of a fourth.

Approved was the Mid-Nebraska Bank; the proposed State Bank of Kearney was denied.

Riley said Kearney has experienced sufficient growth in population and business to warrant a third bank but not a fourth. (An application in 1973 for a third Kearney bank was turned down by then-Director Henry Ley.)

Mid-Nebraska was chosen by Riley over the State Bank of Kearney for three reasons:

—The public will find the Mid-Nebraska location at 31st and 2nd Ave. more convenient.

—The State Bank of Kearney is smaller than the Mid-Nebraska Bank. The total capital proposed by the State Bank is $800,000 while the Mid-Nebraska Bank will have $1.2 million in capital.

—The officers and directors of the Mid-Nebraska Bank are more representative of the community than the State Bank officers and therefore are more likely to serve Kearney better.

State Bank of Kearney officers are listed as Willard Anderson of Holdrege, president; Adna Dobson of Lincoln, director; and Carl Norden, director.

Both applications had been protested by the existing banks in Kearney, First National Bank and Platte Valley State Bank, on grounds that the community did not need them.

However, testimony at the hearings brought out data that First National experienced a $2.7 million, or 16%, increase in savings in a year, while Platte Valley reported a $2.3 million or 14% increase.

Mid-Nebraska's net operating income projections show losses for the first two years of operation totaling $38,000. However, the third year will show $84,200 in net operating income, the projection indicated.

Mid-Nebraska's building will have 5,000 square feet of space and will cost $200,000 to construct, its application indicated.

However, Riley denied Mid-Nebraska's request for a branch facility at 22nd and 1st Ave. on the grounds it would violate the state's branch banking laws.

He also stipulated that the Mid-Nebraska Bank must join the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Hardy Longhorns Bring Top Prices

He was selling his animals for $850 for a cow with calf at side. A heifer calf brought $350.

They were part of his herd of registered Texas Longhorns, descendants of the hardy beef animals once driven hundreds of miles across the old cattle trails to Nebraska.

Anyone thinking the Longhorns are wild "has seen too many movies," Haberman says. He describes them as gentle and easy to keep fenced.

Haberman says his Longhorns, believed to be the only registered herd in Nebraska, thrive on weeds, cactus plants, leaves and "stuff other cattle turn their nose up at."

He says they can go several days without water, they don't get pinkeye, they survive heat and blizzards, and apparently resist a number of parasites and diseases.

Haberman says they are long-lived and a cow can have 18 or 20 calves during her lifetime.

"Too many of our other cattle are too finely bred," he says, and a conventional beef cow having a calf from a Longhorn bull is much less likely to have calving problems because a Longhorn calf is long and narrow.

Longhorn calves weigh 40 to 60 pounds at birth and probably will weigh 300 to 325 pounds when weaned in mid-October. Boosters of the breed say they will put on a pound a day on a ration of silage, alfalfa hay and pellets, and claim they will thrive on 16 cents worth of feed a day compared to 75 to 85 cents for other beef animals.

Haberman says Longhorn beef is good but not as fat as from other breeds.

He got into the Longhorn business when he bought a heifer at the Fort Niobrara Wildlife Refuge surplus animal auction in 1971. Later he bought 14 cows with calves, in addition to a bull, in Texas.

Haberman's first sale was to the Peters Cattle Co. of Wyoming, which paid $5,100 for two cows and seven heifers. Since then prices have gone up for Longhorns as ranchers have purchased them for cross breeding purposes as well as to raise registered Longhorns of their own.

Man Commits Suicide As Troopers Approach

Henry (AP) — Sioux County officials said a rural Morrill man held his estranged wife and another woman in a farm house about seven miles north of here early Tuesday, then committed suicide as officers approached the home.

After receiving a call about a domestic disturbance, state troopers and county authorities went to the home to investigate.

As three troopers approached, they saw Larry D. Barney, 34, and his wife in a car about a half mile from the home.

Power Conservation Urged

Columbus (AP) — Saying its generating capacity has been curtailed and the import of electricity from other sources has become more difficult, the Nebraska Public Power District Tuesday appealed to its customers to conserve as much electricity as possible during the current heat wave.

Officials said NPPD has the capability of importing enough power from other sources, but because of the wide area covered by the current heat wave pattern, additional power is becoming hard to find.

Monday's peak demand on the NPPD system, which occurred during the hour ending at 6 p.m., was 1,464,000 kilowatts, a little below the one-hour record peak of 1,510,000 kilowatts set on July 18, 1974.

Officials said their appeal to customers involves the normal peak hours of electrical usage in the state, between 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Northern Earnings Up This Year

Omaha (UPI) — Northern Natural Gas Co. reported Tuesday increased earnings during the first half of 1975 compared with the same period a year ago. Officials said Northern had net income of $66,869,000 on sales of $564,401,000 during the first six months compared with income of $62,410,000 on sales of $496,379,000 in 1974. Per share earnings during the first six months of 1975 were $5.92 compared with $5.52 in 1974, a 7.2% increase. However, earnings for the second quarter of 1975 dropped from $2.42 in 1974 to $2.32 this year.

North Platte Patrol Building OKd

Gov. J. James Exon has approved construction of a State Patrol office building at North Platte, Stan Matzke, director of the Department of Administrative Services, said Tuesday. The low bidder on the general contract was the James E. Simon Co., Inc., North Platte, with an offer of $301,750, and the low bidder on the mechanical work was Hansen Plumbing & Heating, Inc., North Platte, with a bid of $77,451. The electrical contract went to Ensley Electric Co., Grand Island, which bid $44,900. Total cost of the project was set at $445,101.

Mullen Hospital Reopening Next Month

Mullen — Plans are under way for the reopening of the Mullen clinic and hospital Aug. 4, according to Dr. Jay Reppert, who is moving to Mullen from Colorado. The hospital and clinic have been closed for most of the past year as the result of the retirement of a longtime physician in the community. In addition to Dr. Reppert, Mullen is expected to be served by a Vietnamese refugee physician, Dr. Nyugen Quang Binh, who is studying to become licensed in Nebraska.

Storm's Cost To Lincoln Said $27,000

The July 19-20 thunderstorms which pounded Lincoln with 62 mile per hour winds cost the city about $27,000.

The winds caused power outages to about 6,000 customers, the worst storm damage in the Lincoln area since the July 1 and July 3 storms in 1973, reported Lincoln Electric System Administrator Walt Canney.

Canney said 2,200 man-hours were worked during the July 20 cleanup. Crews cleared trees, branches, wires and poles that affected 13 substations, 13 high-voltage transmission lines, 11 major feeder lines, 55 circuits, 31 other lines and 122 service drops to homes and businesses.

Canney said LES had 177 separate line or substation outages. Personnel handled more than 1,775 customer telephone calls.

Within eight hours after the storm hit the city, Canney said about 4,000 of the 6,000 customers had service restored. A few customers were without electricity for 20 hours.

'Bottle Bill' Discussed At Meeting

Several proposals to put a law in effect in Nebraska to require deposits on beverage containers were discussed at a meeting called by Axtell Sen. Gary Anderson.

A "bottle bill" is currently held in Anderson's own Miscellaneous Subjects Committee. Anderson said it might be difficult to get the bill out of the committee without a floor fight.

Anderson and Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler met with representatives of the Sierra Club, the Nebraska Wildlife Federation, the Nebraska Environmental Coalition, the Farmers Union and 4-H.

The group also discussed the possibility of a referendum if the Legislature failed to pass the bill during the coming year.

The bottle bill now before the Legislature would require a five-cent deposit on beverage containers. Some beverage containers which could be used by several manufacturers would carry only a two-cent deposit.

Hastings, G.I. Councils Favor Joint Generator

Grand Island (AP) — The Grand Island and Hastings City Councils are apparently moving closer together in a proposed project to construct a power generating facility to serve both cities.

The Grand Island Council gave approval to recommendations submitted by a power committee representing both cities.

The recommendations call for the consultation with legal and financial firms.

The Hastings Council took similar action.

Grand Island City Manager John Carpenter told the council that it's hoped portions of the engineering study can be completed by the first of the year. Based on current dicussions, Carpenter said $50 million in bonds would be issued for Grand Island's share of the proposed 150-megawatt facility, and Hastings would issue bonds for $30 million.

In other action, the Grand Island Council, voting 5-2, rejected a request that the city's newly-formed free, off-street parking district be dissolved.

The request was made by a number of downtown businessmen, who were represented by Gwyer Grimminger, a local attorney.

Grimminger presented petitions bearing 112 signatures. He said they represented 102 downtown businesses, but Carpenter later pared that number to 97.

The creation of the parking district provides for an occupation tax to be assessed against the businesses to cover operational and maintenance costs of the free parking lots. In addition, an "ad velorem" tax is also to be levied to pay off the bonded indebtedness of the parking district.

Grimminger said many of the businesses in the district feel the actual costs are too high, and other did not know about the "ad velorem" tax.

After his arguments were rejected, Grimminger said the businesses are contemplating further pursuit of the matter, but he did not elaborate.

The Downtown Improvement Board also met to finalize details for the operation of the free parking lots, and has set Aug. 15 as the target date for beginning the free parking operations.

NEW FAIRGROUNDS BUILDING . . . to house children's barnyard, Farmland exhibits.

Children's Barnyard Will Have New Home At State Fair

The children's barnyard will again be a feature of the Nebraska State Fair but this year will be housed in a new building.

Gilbert Erickson of Lincoln, an executive of Farmland Industries, Inc., and State Fair Manager Henry Brandt said construction on the 60 by 120-foot steel structure is proceeding on schedule.

The building will be used for Farmland exhibits during the fair as well as for the children's barnyard.

Run by the Nebraska Future Farmers of America, the barnyard has been a popular feature with its baby farm and domestic animals that young visitors love to watch, hold and pet.

Farmland is erecting the structure and will pay regular rates for use of display space during the fair. Farmland will also be permitted to occupy the facility for employe training sessions and meetings during the off-season. Erickson said he anticipates such use four to six days annually. The State Fair Board will have control of the building the rest of the time. "It could accommodate certain events that wouldn't require the size of the Exposition Building or Agricultural Hall," Brandt said. "But at this time we have no definite plans for how it will be used, if at all."

Exon To Review Beatrice Home Settlement Plan

Gov. J. James Exon will begin reviewing a proposed settlement in the Beatrice State Home lawsuit when he returns to Lincoln Wednesday.

Bill Hoppner, an Exon aide, said Exon will probably not act on the settlement until late in the week.

Exon authorized Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas to negotiate a settlement in the case, and consequently Hoppner said he sees no reason why Exon would not sign the agreement.

The settlement's details, which reportedly call for placing many of the retarded children at the home in community-based programs, have remained secret pending approval by Exon and others.

The case against the state was filed by the parents of a number of children who are residing at the Beatrice State Home.

Exon has been out-of-state conferring with federal and union officials about the longshoremen's refusal to load American grain sold to Russia.

High Costs Seen In Papio Channelization

Omaha (AP) — Two officials expressed belief it would be costly and unwise to try to control floodwaters from Big Papio Creek by channelization instead of upstream dams.

Sarpy County Board Chairman Norman Magnusson and Omaha City Planner S. P. Benson said Omaha and Sarpy residents would pay millions more in taxes and get less protection if the Big Papio were channelized.

The Omaha City Council was to consider a recommendation late Tuesday to oppose channelization and, instead, have the Corps control floodwaters by constructing a dam near Bennington.

According to the recommendation, the dam would provide the most flood protection for the least money and would disrupt the fewest people.

The Army Corps of Engineers has set a Thursday deadline for comments on its recommendations for the Papio flood control and recreation project.

The Corps has congressional authorization for 20 dams on the Big, Little and West Papio Creeks, but last month announced a cutback, saying the project no longer could be economically justified.

The Papio Valley Preservation Association, which opposes the dams, has been circulating petions supporting channelization instead of dams.

Magnuson and Benson said petition signers apparently don't realize channelization would raise local taxes considerably, increase the flood threat in Sarpy County and wouldn't provide as much flood protection as would a dam or dams on the Big Papio.

If dams are built, the federal government picks up the tab. If channelization is the end result, local citizens pay.

Central Nebraska College Board Approves Budget Of $6 Million

Grand Island (UPI) — The Central Nebraska Technical Community Area board of governors has approved a 1975-76 budget of $6,032,026, an increase of $750,000 over the administration's recommendations.

The board approved the budget, adding $365,640 as necessary cash reserve, $300,000 for new programs and $86,157 for the emergency fund. The tax levy will remain at 1.68 mills, but board officials said the budget will require warrants to be issued during months when tax collections arrive late.

The administration budget recommendation called for spending $5.2 million, which would have eliminated the need for warrants. However, board members said the programs approved for the institutions during the past two years should be implemented.

A group of dentists appeared at the hearing requesting implementation of a dental hygiene program at the Central Technical Community College in Hastings. The board approved the program earlier, but the program had been left out of the proposed budget because of its $318,000 cost.

Inclusion of $300,000 for new programs means the hygiene program could be included if the board gives approval at a later date, officials said.

The 1975-76 capital construction levy will be .26 mills or $373,476. The board instructed area administration to draw up plans for installation of food services at Platte Technical Community College at Columbus and for a maintenance building at the Columbus school. The estimated cost of $115,000 will come from cash already on hand.

In other action, the board elected Irvin Schwartz, of Hildreth, chairman of the board for the next year. Ralph Kissinger Jr., of Fairfield, was elected vice chairman, Chester Marshall, of Kearney, secretary, and Robert Schnuelle of Grand Island, treasurer.

Hospital Board Asks Authority Formed In G.I.

Grand Island (UPI) — The board of directors of St. Francis Hospital Tuesday filed a request to form a Hall County Hospital Authority designed to help finance construction of a new $7 million to $9 million hospital.

City Clerk Walt Loescher set Sept. 9 as a tentative date for a public hearing on the request.

Dick Speltz, vice chairman of the board of directors, said the proposed hospital authority is a vehicle for issuing tax exempt revenue bonds that could save the hospital 2% on interest rates.

"The principal reason for this application," Speltz said, "is to lower the interest cost of financing the new structure, and, of course, lower the cost of patient care because the overhead would be reduced."

He said architects have been hired to work on plans for the hospital, which is to replace the present facility. He said construction could begin in early 1976.

ConAgra Post Given Lewis

Omaha (AP) — ConAgra, an Omaha-based food processing conglomerate, has named George W. Lewis of Quincy, Mass., as the general superintendent of its grain milled products division.

Third Kearney Bank Approved

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

State Banking Director William Riley Tuesday chartered a third bank for Kearney but refused the application of a fourth.

Approved was the Mid-Nebraska Bank, the proposed State Bank of Kearney was denied.

Riley said Kearney has experienced sufficient growth in population and business to warrant a third bank but not a fourth. (An application in 1973 for a third Kearney bank was turned down by then-Director Henry Ley.)

Mid-Nebraska was chosen by Riley over the State Bank of Kearney for three reasons:

—The public will find the Mid-Nebraska location at 31st and 2nd Ave. more convenient.

—The State Bank of Kearney is smaller than the Mid-Nebraska Bank. The total capital proposed by the State Bank is $800,000 while the Mid-Nebraska Bank will have $1.2 million in capital.

—The officers and directors of the Mid-Nebraska Bank are more representative of the community than the State Bank officers and therefore are more likely to serve Kearney better.

State Bank of Kearney officers are listed as Willard Anderson of Holdrege, president; Adna Dobson of Lincoln, director; and Carl Norden, director.

Both applications had been protested by the existing banks in Kearney, First National Bank and Platte Valley State Bank, on grounds that the community did not need them.

However, testimony at the hearings brought out data that First National experienced a $2.7 million, or 16%, increase in savings in a year, while Platte Valley reported a $2.3 million or 14% increase.

Mid-Nebraska's net operating income projections show losses for the first two years of operation totaling $38,000. However, the third year will show $84,200 in net operating income, the projection indicated.

Mid-Nebraska's building will have 5,000 square feet of space and will cost $200,000 to construct, its application indicated.

However, Riley denied Mid-Nebraska's request for a branch facility at 22nd and 1st Ave. on the grounds it would violate the state's branch banking laws.

He also stipulated that the Mid-Nebraska Bank must join the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Hardy Longhorns Bring Top Prices

He was selling his animals for $850 for a cow with calf at side. A heifer calf brought $350.

They were part of his herd of registered Texas Longhorns, descendants of the hardy beef animals once driven hundreds of miles across the old cattle trails to Nebraska.

Anyone thinking the Longhorns are wild "has seen too many movies," Haberman says He describes them as gentle and easy to keep fenced.

Haberman says his Longhorns, believed to be the only registered herd in Nebraska, thrive on weeds, cactus plants, leaves and "stuff other cattle turn their nose up at."

He says they can go several days without water, they don't get pinkeye, they survive heat and blizzards, and apparently resist a number of parasites and diseases.

Haberman says they are long-lived and a cow can have 18 or 20 calves during her lifetime.

"Too many of our other cattle are too finely bred," he says, and a conventional beef cow having a calf from a Longhorn bull is much less likely to have calving problems because a Longhorn calf is long and narrow.

Longhorn calves weigh 40 to 60 pounds at birth and probably will weigh 300 to 325 pounds when weaned in mid-October. Boosters of the breed say they will put on a pound a day on a ration of silage, alfalfa hay and pellets, and claim they will thrive on 16 cents worth of feed a day compared to 75 to 85 cents for other beef animals.

Haberman says Longhorn beef is good but not as fat as from other breeds.

He got into the Longhorn business when he bought a heifer at the Fort Niobrara Wildlife Refuge surplus animal auction in 1971. Later he bought 14 cows with calves, in addition to a bull, in Texas.

Haberman's first sale was to the Peters Cattle Co. of Wyoming, which paid $5,100 for two cows and seven heifers. Since then prices have gone up for Longhorns as ranchers have purchased them for cross breeding purposes as well as to raise registered Longhorns of their own.

Man Commits Suicide As Troopers Approach

Henry (AP) — Sioux County officials said a rural Morrill man held his estranged wife and another woman in a farm house about seven miles north of here early Tuesday, then committed suicide as officers approached the home.

After receiving a call about a domestic disturbance, state troopers and county authorities went to the home to investigate.

As three troopers approached, they saw Larry D. Barney, 34, and his wife in a car about a half mile from the home.

Power Conservation Urged

Columbus (AP) — Saying its generating capacity has been curtailed and the import of electricity from other sources has become more difficult, the Nebraska Public Power District Tuesday appealed to its customers to conserve as much electricity as possible during the current heat wave.

Officials said NPPD has the capability of importing enough power from other sources, but because of the wide area covered by the current heat wave pattern, additional power is becoming hard to find

Monday's peak demand on the NPPD system, which occurred during the hour ending at 6 p.m., was 1,464,000 kilowatts, a little below the one-hour record peak of 1,510,000 kilowatts set on July 18, 1974.

Officials said their appeal to customers involves the normal peak hours of electrical usage in the state, between 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Northern Earnings Up This Year

Omaha (UPI) — Northern Natural Gas Co. reported Tuesday increased earnings during the first half of 1975 compared with the same period a year ago. Officials said Northern had net income of $66,869,000 on sales of $564,401,000 during the first six months compared with income of $62,410,000 on sales of $496,379,000 in 1974. Per share earnings during the first six months of 1975 were $5.92 compared with $5.52 in 1974, a 7.2% increase. However, earnings for the second quarter of 1975 dropped from $2.42 in 1974 to $2.32 this year.

North Platte Patrol Building OKd

Gov. J. James Exon has approved construction of a State Patrol office building at North Platte, Stan Matzke, director of the Department of Administrative Services, said Tuesday. The low bidder on the general contract was the James E. Simon Co., Inc., North Platte, with an offer of $301,750, and the low bidder on the mechanical work was Hansen Plumbing & Heating, Inc., North Platte, with a bid of $77,451. The electrical contract went to Ensley Electric Co. Grand Island, which bid $44,900. Total cost of the project was set at $445,101.

Mullen Hospital Reopening Next Month

Mullen — Plans are under way for the reopening of the Mullen clinic and hospital Aug. 4, according to Dr. Jay Reppert, who is moving to Mullen from Colorado. The hospital and clinic have been closed for most of the past year as the result of the retirement of a longtime physician in the community. In addition to Dr. Reppert, Mullen is expected to be served by a Vietnamese refugee physician, Dr Nyugen Quang Binh, who is studying to become licensed in Nebraska

Storm's Cost To Lincoln Said $27,000

The July 19-20 thunderstorms which pounded Lincoln with 62 mile per hour winds cost the city about $27,000.

The winds caused power outages to about 6,000 customers, the worst storm damage in the Lincoln area since the July 1 and July 3 storms in 1973, reported Lincoln Electric System Administrator Walt Canney.

Canney said 2,200 man-hours were worked during the July 20 cleanup. Crews cleared trees, branches, wires and poles that affected 13 substations, 13 high-voltage transmission lines, 11 major feeder lines, 55 circuits, 31 other lines and 122 service drops to homes and businesses.

Canney said LES had 177 separate line or substation outages. Personnel handled more than 1,775 customer telephone calls.

Within eight hours after the storm hit the city, Canney said about 4,000 of the 6,000 customers had service restored. A few customers were without electricity for 20 hours

'Bottle Bill' Discussed At Meeting

Several proposals to put a law in effect in Nebraska to require deposits on beverage containers were discussed at a meeting called by Axtell Sen. Gary Anderson.

A "bottle bill" is currently held in Anderson's own Miscellaneous Subjects Committee. Anderson said it might be difficult to get the bill out of the commi tee without a floor fight.

Anderson and Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler met with representatives of the Sierra Club, the Nebraska Wildlife Federation, the Nebraska Environmental Coalition, the Farmers Union and 4-H.

The group also discussed the possibility of a referendum if the Legislature failed to pass the bill during the coming year.

The bottle bill now before the Legislature would require a five-cent deposit on beverage containers. Some beverage containers which could be used by several manufacturers would carry only a two-cent deposit.

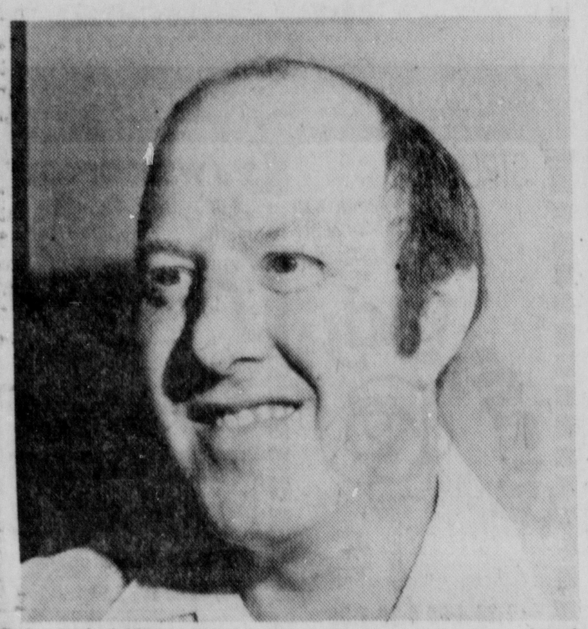
Bald Must Grin, Bare It

WARNER . . . wants cheaper haircuts.

MAHONEY . . . 'like long nose, big feet.'



A NEW MAN . . . Stevens wishes he hadn't put off getting hairpiece so long.

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

There's a new wind blowing among the baldies. Instead of lamenting their defoliated domes, Lincoln's baldies (and balding) just grin and bare it.

Paul Amen, National Bank of Commerce's head man, so to speak, says he wouldn't be an Amen if he wasn't bald. "It's a mark of distinction," he says.

State Sen. Loren Schmit insists he saves money this way — "I've been using the same bottle of hair oil for 15 years," Schmit says. "And the way my hair and hair oil are going, it'll last at least another five."

'Few Perfect Heads'

Star editor Bill Dobler says, "God created very few perfect heads. The rest he covered with hair." He also likes to remind people, "Grass doesn't grow on a busy street."

University of Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano says friends who sit in the bleachers above him comment from year to year about how he's getting easier to pick out in the coliseum crowd.

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas, after trying to find out which stool pigeon tipped the reporter off that he was balding, said he's not self-conscious until he sees pictures of himself.

"I don't see the top of my head much except for the couple of hours I spend in front of a mirror admiring myself," he insists, barely keeping a solemn expression.

Crewcut Average

State Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly confides that his is not a problem of baldness, it's simply distribution. "I wear it longer on the sides," so "on the average I have a crewcut," he reasons.

In more candid moments, most baldies confide that despite their banter it's not all Brylcreamless bliss.

A bald person has all the disadvantages of hair but none of the advantages, Dobler pointed out. Baldness "can never add anything to your appearance but you'll look like the devil if you get out in the wind and your hair blows all around."

Associated With Aging

Because most men lose more hair as they get older, baldness becomes psychologically associated with aging and nobody likes to watch him (her) self get older.

Down through the ages, man has tried to cure the bane of baldness with onions, cortisone, elm-tree bark and watercress. All to no avail. Even in the age of space travel and moon walks, scientists haven't uncovered the secret of growing hair on denuded noggins.

Unless the winds of change blow too strongly, hairpieces seem to be the best answer.

If Just Younger

Lincoln businessman Harry Simon says that if he were three or four decades younger, he'd don a hairpiece. "It's the modern thing to do," the dapper-looking man of 70 says.

Cipriano said he has a hairpiece but it is still sitting in a box on the shelf. "It was my barber's idea," he said. "I've never worn it.

"I'd have difficulty keeping it on during games . . . Besides, I still have a lot of hair," he said, touching the curly tuft in front lightly, as if for reassurance.

Noticeably Balder

Sen. Warner also has a toupe his barber sent home for his wife's approval. "It was fun," he admits fiendishly, "but Betty (his wife) didn't like it." Why not? "She thinks my hair is neater like it is — or it isn't, I guess is a better way to put it."

Sen. Schmit had some down-to-earth reasons why toupes aren't for him. For one, they're expensive and being a farmer during the off season, he figures they'd be difficult to keep clean in a cornfield.

And for two, Schmit run a helicopter business on the side. "It gets pretty windy up there. I've lost hats. I don't want to be down in a cornfield looking for a $400 toupe that flew out the window."

Dobler said a barber put a wig on him once. "It's the funniest darn thing to see yourself in hair . . . That was more hair than I had ever had."

'I Save A Lot'

Schmit was the only one of those interviewed who cited advantages to being a chrome dome: "I save a lot of time this way," he says. "I can comb my hair with a washcloth and go two extra weeks without a haircut."

And a haircut "only takes three minutes flat," he went on. "It takes two minutes to find my hair."

Nearly all the baldies had a cutting word or two about the prices barbers charge these days.

Periodically, Warner and Schmit draft bills for reduced haircut rates for baldies. Schmit points out that everything else is regulated "down to the ton, yard or pound. So why don't we regulate haircuts by the hair?"

Douglas, however, said his barber "more than makes up for" the price of a haircut "by giving his personal views on the law and how to clarify many of the world's problems."

Money's Worth

Then, too, "it's fun to watch him cut the air a couple of times," Douglas said. "I guess he feels he has to give me my 10 or 12 minutes worth for the outrageous prices he charges."

Whatever the status of their hairlines — going, going or gone — all the men interviewed seem to take good-natured ribbing as easily as they hand it out.

Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha said, as he rested his left hand on his hairless head, he considers baldness "simply a matter of appearance . . . like a long nose or big feet."

Once in awhile, people's innocent comments border on insults, but only if the bald person's skin is as thin as his hair.

At Class Reunion

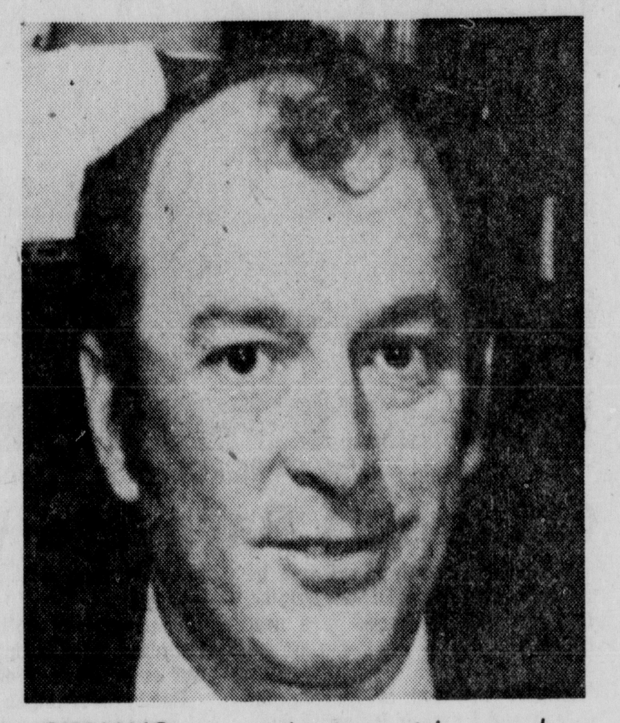
He was attending a high school class reunion a few years ago; it was the first time his graduating class had gotten together in 35 years.

An attractive woman came up to him and apparently didn't recognize her former classmate.

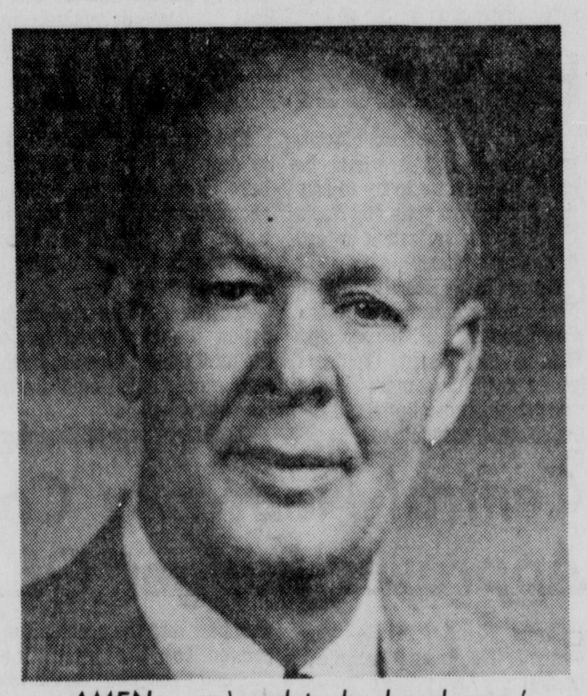
"I knew her but she looked at me, puzzled, then stared at my nametag," Amen recalled. "Her eyes opened wide and her hands flew up in the air and she blurted out: " 'Why, you used to be handsome . . .' "

What could he say? Even today Amen just grins ear to ear when he tells that story.

SCHMIT . . . same bottle of hair oil.



CIPRIANO . . . easier to spot in crowd.



AMEN . . . 'used to be handsome.'

Toupe Shoppers Ask 3 Questions

Is it hot? How much will it cost? Will it blow off?

When a man goes shopping for a hairpiece, he invariably asks those three questions first, said Bob Taylor, owner of El Toro barbershop at 13th and P Sts.

"If it's 400 degrees hot and he looks good, he'll stand the heat," said Taylor, answering the first question.

Cost is between $150 and $450.

Scratching Head

And "if he has any sense at all, when the wind's blowing hard, he'll walk down the street scratching his head."

Chuck Stevens, salesman for a local radio station and part-time television sportscaster, started wearing a hairpiece about 18 months ago.

"I procrastinated two and a half or three years before I got guts enought to do it," he said. "Now I really wish I hadn't messed around . . . thinking about it.

"I definitely like how I look now as opposed to beforehand," he confided. "I'm 34 but I looked 44. There's nothing wrong with 44, but I'll be there soon enough."

Worried About Blend

Stevens said his biggest concern was whether or not he could comb the hairpiece into his own hair and have it look as natural as when the experts did it.

"It was easy for them, but could I do it day after day? I got over that fast. I found I certainly can!"

Taylor said he usually tells his clients it takes a minimum of 21 days to accept or reject a hairpiece.

First day at work with a new hairpiece "is a toughie," he warns. "We recommend he tell some of his associates so when he does show up in a hairpiece they'll say: 'Oh. You finally did it.' "

Otherwise, friends and associates don't know whether to comment or not.

Join Laughter

Another trade secret he sometimes recommends is that a customer grow a mustache before he gets a hairpiece. Then, when he dons a hairpiece and shaves his mustache, people say, "Oh, you shaved your mustache."

Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't, he admitted.

Stevens said he was surprised by some peoples' reactions the first few times he wore his hairpiece. Several people he works with regularly asked — apparently in all sincerity — if he had his hair styled differently.

"Generally, they have to know me pretty well or they won't say much. Unless they knew the situation before, a lot wouldn't notice at all."

Marvin Kroeger, who operates Marvin's for Men barbershop in the Meadowlane Shopping Center, said "all classes of people" are buying toupes. "If they want hair and if they have the money, they buy — farmers, ministers, college students, all walks," but especially men in their 20s or 30s.

Kroeger said the price of a hairpiece depends mainly on the quality of materials and workmanship.

The largest percentage of hairpieces are made of synthetic hair but the most expensive are made with European hair, which is becoming more and more scarce, he noted.

Must Be Good Hair

Hair used in hairpieces must be virgin hair — hair that has never been colored or given a permanent. Manufacturers won't use U.S. women's hair, he said. "We do so much to our hair that it doesn't have the quality."

Kroeger said he tells his clients to be proud of their hairpieces, not ashamed. "Don't try to conceal it. That would make it all the more noticeable."

Women went through a similar phase 20 or 30 years ago with coloring their hair, he noted.

Hastings, G.I. Councils Favor Joint Generator

Grand Island (AP) — The Grand Island and Hastings City Councils are apparently moving closer together in a proposed project to construct a power generating facility to serve both cities.

The Grand Island Council gave approval to recommendations submitted by a power committee representing both cities.

The recommendations call for the consultation with legal and financial firms.

The Hastings Council took similar action.

Grand Island City Manager John Carpenter told the council that it's hoped portions of the engineering study can be completed by the first of the year. Based on current dicussions, Carpenter said $50 million in bonds would be issued for Grand Island's share of the proposed 150-megawatt facility, and Hastings would issue bonds for $30 million.

In other action, the Grand Island Council, voting 5-2, rejected a request that the city's newly-formed free, off-street parking district be dissolved.

The request was made by a number of downtown businessmen, who were represented by Gwyer Grimminger, a local attorney.

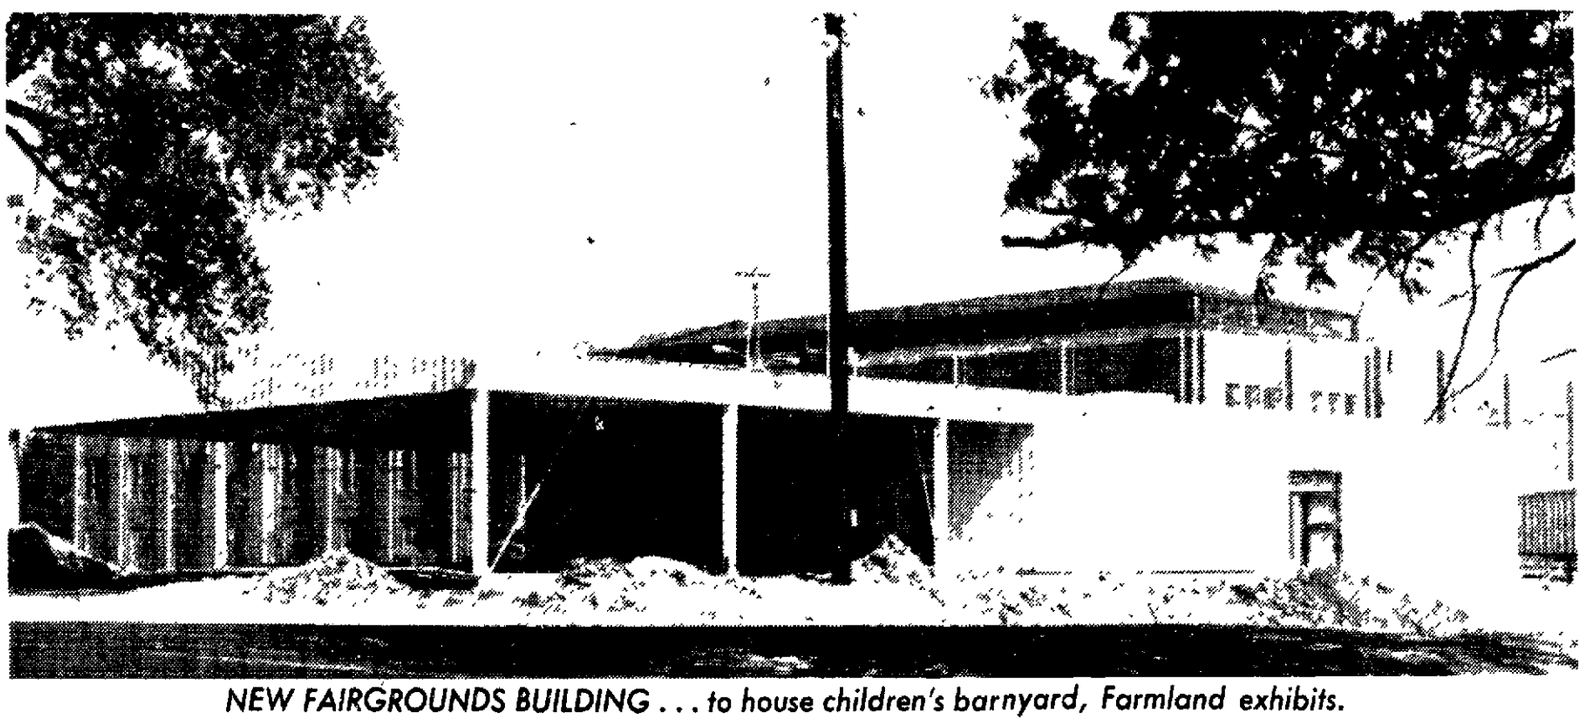
Grimminger presented petitions bearing 112 signatures. He said they represented 102 downtown businesses, but Carpenter later pared that number to 97.

The creation of the parking district provides for an occupation tax to be assessed against the businesses to cover operational and maintenance costs of the free parking lots. In addition, an "ad velorem" tax is also to be levied to pay off the bonded indebtedness of the parking district.

Grimminger said many of the businesses in the district feel the actual costs are too high, and other did not know about the "ad velorem" tax.

After his arguments were rejected, Grimminger said the businesses are contemplating further pursuit of the matter, but he did not elaborate.

The Downtown Improvement Board also met to finalize details for the operation of the free parking lots, and has set Aug. 15 as the target date for beginning the free parking operations.



NEW FAIRGROUNDS BUILDING . . . to house children's barnyard, Farmland exhibits.

Children's Barnyard Will Have New Home At State Fair

The children's barnyard will again be a feature of the Nebraska State Fair but this year will be housed in a new building.

Gilbert Erickson of Lincoln, an executive of Farmland Industries, Inc., and State Fair Manager Henry Brandt said construction on the 60 by 120-foot steel structure is proceeding on schedule.

The building will be used for Farmland exhibits during the fair as well as for the children's barnyard.

Run by the Nebraska Future Farmers of America, the barnyard has been a popular feature with its baby farm and domestic animals that young visitors love to watch, hold and pet.

Farmland is erecting the structure and will pay regular rates for use of display space during the fair. Farmland will also be permitted to occupy the facility for employe training sessions and meetings during the off-season. Erickson said he anticipates such use four to six days annually. The State Fair Board will have control of the building the rest of the time. "It could accommodate certain events that wouldn't require the size of the Exposition Building or Agricultural Hall," Brandt said. "But at this time we have no definite plans for how it will be used, if at all."

Exon To Review Beatrice Home Settlement Plan

Gov. J. James Exon will begin reviewing a proposed settlement in the Beatrice State Home lawsuit when he returns to Lincoln Wednesday.

Bill Hoppner, an Exon aide, said Exon will probably not act on the settlement until late in the week.

Exon authorized Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas to negotiate a settlement in the case, and consequently Hoppner said he sees no reason why Exon would not sign the agreement.

The settlement's details, which reportedly call for placing many of the retarded children at the home in community-based programs, have remained secret pending approval by Exon and others.

The case against the state was filed by the parents of a number of children who are residing at the Beatrice State Home.

Exon has been out-of-state conferring with federal and union officials about the longshoremen's refusal to load American grain sold to Russia.

High Costs Seen In Papio Channelization

Omaha (AP) — Two officials expressed belief it would be costly and unwise to try to control floodwaters from Big Papio Creek by channelization instead of upstream dams.

Sarpy County Board Chairman Norman Magnusson and Omaha City Planner S P Benson said Omaha and Sarpy residents would pay millions more in taxes and get less protection if the Big Papio were channelized.

The Omaha City Council was to consider a recommendation late Tuesday to oppose channelization and, instead, have the Corps control floodwaters by constructing a dam near Bennington.

According to the recommendation, the dam would provide the most flood protection for the least money and would disrupt the fewest people.

The Army Corps of Engineers has set a Thursday deadline for comments on its recommendations for the Papio flood control and recreation project.

The Corps has congressional authorization for 20 dams on the Big, Little and West Papio Creeks, but last month announced a cutback, saying the project no longer could be economically justified.

The Papio Valley Preservation Association, which opposes the dams, has been circulating petions supporting channelization instead of dams.

Magnuson and Benson said petition signers apparently don't realize channelization would raise local taxes considerably, increase the flood threat in Sarpy County and wouldn't provide as much flood protection as would a dam or dams on the Big Papio.

If dams are built, the federal government picks up the tab. If channelization is the end result, local citizens pay.

Central Nebraska College Board Approves Budget Of $6 Million

Grand Island (UPI) — The Central Nebraska Technical Community Area board of governors has approved a 1975-76 budget of $6,032,026, an increase of $750,000 over the administration's recommendations.

The board approved the budget, adding $365,640 as necessary cash reserve, $300,000 for new programs and $86,157 for the emergency fund. The tax levy will remain at 1.68 mills, but board officials said the budget will require warrants to be issued during months when tax collections arrive late.

The administration budget recommendation called for spending $5.2 million, which would have eliminated the need for warrants. However, board members said the programs approved for the institutions during the past two years should be implemented.

A group of dentists appeared at the hearing requesting implementation of a dental hygiene program at the Central Technical Community College in Hastings. The board approved the program earlier, but the program had been left out of the proposed budget because of its $318,000 cost.

Inclusion of $300,000 for new programs means the hygiene program could be included if the board gives approval at a later date, officials said.

The 1975-76 capital construction levy will be .26 mills or $373,476. The board instructed area administration to draw up plans for installation of food services at Platte Technical Community College at Columbus and for a maintenance building at the Columbus school. The estimated cost of $115,000 will come from cash already on hand.

In other action, the board elected Irvin Schwartz, of Hildreth, chairman of the board for the next year. Ralph Kissinger Jr., of Fairfield, was elected vice chairman, Chester Marshall, of Kearney, secretary, and Robert Schnuelle of Grand Island, treasurer.

Hospital Board Asks Authority Formed In G.I.

Grand Island (UPI) — The board of directors of St. Francis Hospital Tuesday filed a request to form a Hall County Hospital Authority designed to help finance construction of a new $7 million to $9 million hospital.

City Clerk Walt Loescher set Sept. 9 as a tentative date for a public hearing on the request.

Dick Speltz, vice chairman of the board of directors, said the proposed hospital authority is a vehicle for issuing tax exempt revenue bonds that could save the hospital 2% on interest rates.

"The principal reason for this application," Speltz said, "is to lower the interest cost of financing the new structure, and, of course, lower the cost of patient care because the overhead would be reduced."

He said architects have been hired to work on plans for the hospital, which is to replace the present facility. He said construction could begin in early 1976.

ConAgra Post Given Lewis

Omaha (AP) — ConAgra, an Omaha-based food processing conglomerate, has named George W. Lewis of Quincy, Mass., as the general superintendent of its grain milled products division.

At 100, Mrs. Mook Doesn't Act Old

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

When Mrs. Emily Mook received a personally signed card from President Gerald Ford congratulating her on her 100th birthday, she was so excited she "wanted to shout it from the housetops."

And those who know the lively centenarian are probably surprised she didn't do just that.

"I've seen a lot of living," says Mrs. Mook, who was born 100 years ago today. "But I don't feel ancient."

Plants Own Garden

She still does her own housework and cooking in the small, white frame house she has occupied since 1935. And this spring, she planted a rather impressive vegetable garden all by herself.

Born in a sod house near Waco, Mrs. Mook has "lived in Nebraska all my life. I feel like I helped build Nebraska," she says proudly.

Her father — Christian Bristol — was a homesteader who emigrated to the United States from Saxony, Germany. In 1872, he drove an oxcart all the way from Oshkosh, Wis., to the fledgling state of Nebraska where he planned to stake his claim.

Hard To Choose

The trip took her father six weeks, Mrs. Mook says, and when he arrived, he saw nothing but "vast prairieland." In the midst of all that open space, Mrs. Mook's father had to make a difficult decision.

"He didn't know where to pick that 160 acres" allowed him by the Homestead Act, Mrs. Mook says. But a decision was made, and to this day, the land he chose is still in the Bristol family name.

With a razor-sharp memory that belies her 100 years, Mrs. Mook recalls a lifestyle long since vanished.

"There were Indians and antelope roaming the country" when she was a child. "They were friendly Indians," she adds matter of factly.

Two-Week Trip

Travel was slow and infrequent. Her father once made a trip from WAco to Nebraska City to pick up lumber, she remembers. The journey took him two weeks.

She remembers her first teacher — Mr. Klepper — whose domain was the one-room schoolhouse children began attending when they reached the age of 7.

During the famous blizzard of 1888, Mrs. Mook's schoolmates were stranded in that schoolhouse. But Mrs. Mook and her sister weren't in school that day because their father — a "weather prophet" in Mrs. Mook's words — had kept them home because he felt that a storm was coming.

"We missed the time of our lives" by not being there, Mrs. Mook says. A neighbor "walked along the fence" to the schoolhouse carrying biscuits and hot coffee for the stranded students and teacher.

Everything Fun

People had fun "over every little thing" in those days, Mrs. Mook says, recalling such things as the annual Christmas program at the Ebenezer Methodist Church south of Waco. Every Christmas, each child received an orange — a real treat since it was the only orange they got all year.

In 1908, Mrs. Mook — them Emily Bristol — married Simon Mook, and they lived in Malcolm and Walton before moving to Lincoln in 1935. Mr. Mook died in 1937.

Congratulations

She has received countless cards and letters congratulating her on her 100th birthday, and has been honored at two parties — one of which was given by members of the Kings and Queens card club with whom she plays pinochle and pitch every Tuesday.

Out in her backyard garden two days prior to her birthday, Mrs. Mook carefully examined her crops, pinching back a plant here and there, stooping over to uncover a sizeable muskmelon.

On her way back to the house — walking briskly, without the aid of a cane or helping arm — she passed under a fruit-laden apple tree.

"I'd like to sit in the shade of the old apple tree . . . but I don't have time," she quipped.

MRS. MOOK . . . remembers days of Indians, antelope.

DEAR ABBY: A women's libber (obviously) wanted to know why no woman's face had ever appeared on a U.S. dollar bill or any other denomination. You polled 12 women, asking how they felt about it. Nine agreed that it was time a woman got her face on paper money, two said they didn't care one way or the other and one said, "I don't want to get my face on any folding money, but I'd like to get my HANDS on some."

T.O.W.

DEAR T.O.W.: I do now. I also learned from my readers that Martha wasn't the first female to have her face on folding money. Pocahontas appeared on a $20 National Bank Note in 1875.

DEAR ABBY: By 73-year-old husband has been providing my best friend (she is 71) with friendship, affection and all manner of "looking after" since her husband's death 15 months ago.

She has been my friend for 38 years. Her husband, also an old friend, was an invalid for several years, and when he died, she needed the strong shoulder of a man. My husband volunteered with my full approval.

I slowly came to realize that my husband was spending more time with my friend than with me.

He admitted that he had grown very "fond" of her and enjoyed being "needed." Then she confessed to having developed a deep affection for my husband. Of course, they both said they "love me" and don't want to hurt me.

She advised me to "stay put" until we could work things out. Does this happen frequently in the geriatric set? And what should I do? I am 72. This is my second marriage. It has lasted 30 years. Thirty years ago, I was the other woman. Ironic, isn't it?

HARD STAYING

DEAR HARD: What was, was. Your husband is trying to catch a few moonbeams in the twilight of his life. Stay put, and he'll probably get things in focus again.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15, and my parents are in the process of getting a divorce.

I can understand their wanting to be apart because they fought when they were together, but the pressure I get from both is something terrible.

Each puts down the other one, and both try to find out who the other is seeing.

Please help me. How can I tell them to get off my back?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Tell them both that you don't want to report to either one. And that should settle it.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Dutch Tourism Down

The Hague (UPI) — The ministry of economic affairs said the number of overnight stays by foreign guests in Holland dropped by 4.7% last year when compared with 1973. The ministry put the number of arrivals at 2,452,000 and the number of overnight stays in Dutch hotels at 5,618,000 last year. The decline was the worst as far as the Americans were concerned. Their respective figures were 332,000 (down 16.5%) and 730,000 (down 13.6%).

Soft Signpost Must Work

One of the devices placed on a San Antonio highway was found destroyed, apparently by an auto traveling between 40 and 60 miles an hour. After the accident, the auto still must have been in good enough shape to keep going. The accident was never reported.

Opening lead - six of hearts.

Properly considered, there is no such thing as a blind guess in bridge, for there is always some clue a zealous player can uncover. Some of the clues he leans on are, admittedly, very thin, but still they are better than no clue at all.

Take this deal played by France and Canada in the 1968 World Bridge Olympiad. When the French held the North-South cards, West led the six of hearts to East's ace and East continued with the jack, South (Bourchtoff) contributing the four and West the eight.

Had Bourchtoff led a low club to the king — which would seem to be the normal thing to do — he would have gone down one, due to the 4-0 club division.

But Bourchtoff, having observed how purposefully the defenders had played their hearts, concluded that West had fewer hearts than East and was therefore more likely to have all four missing clubs than East — if indeed there was a 4-0 club division.

Accordingly, at trick four, Bourchtoff led the queen of clubs rather than a low club to the king. This proved to be a highly inspired play when East showed out on the queen of clubs.

Bourchtoff was now able to trap West's remaining clubs by leading through the J-9-4. The outcome was that he wound up making four notrump for a score of 630 points

Bald Must Grin, Bare It

WARNER . . . wants cheaper haircuts.

MAHONEY . . . 'like long nose, big feet.'

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

There's a new wind blowing among the baldies. Instead of lamenting their defoliated domes, Lincoln's baldies (and balding) just grin and bare it.

Paul Amen, National Bank of Commerce's head man, so to speak, says he wouldn't be an Amen if he wasn't bald. "It's a mark of distinction," he says.

State Sen. Loren Schmit insists he saves money this way — "I've been using the same bottle of hair oil for 15 years," Schmit says. "And the way my hair and hair oil are going, it'll last at least another five."

'Few Perfect Heads'

Star editor Bill Dobler says, "God created very few perfect heads. The rest he covered with hair." He also likes to remind people, "Grass doesn't grow on a busy street."

University of Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano says friends who sit in the bleachers above him comment from year to year about how he's getting easier to pick out in the coliseum crowd

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas, after trying to find out which stool pigeon tipped the reporter off that he was balding, said he's not self-conscious until he sees pictures of himself.

"I don't see the top of my head much except for the couple of hours I spend in front of a mirror admiring myself," he insists, barely keeping a solemn expression.

Crewcut Average

State Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly confides that his is not a problem of baldness, it's simply distribution. "I wear it longer on the sides," so "on the average I have a crewcut," he reasons.

In more candid moments, most baldies confide that despite their banter it's not all Brylcreamless bliss.

A bald person has all the disadvantages of hair but none of the advantages, Dobler pointed out. Baldness "can never add anything to your appearance but you'll look like the devil if you get out in the wind and your hair blows all around."

Associated With Aging

Because most men lose more hair as they get older, baldness becomes psychologically associated with aging and nobody likes to watch him (her) self get older.

Down through the ages, man has tried to cure the bane of baldness with onions, cortisone, elm-tree bark and watercress. All to no avail. Even in the age of space travel and moon walks, scientists haven't uncovered the secret of growing hair on denuded noggins.

Unless the winds of change blow too strongly, hairpieces seem to be the best answer.

If Just Younger

Lincoln businessman Harry Simon says that if he were three or four decades younger, he'd don a hairpiece. "It's the modern thing to do," the dapper-looking man of 70 says.

Cipriano said he has a hairpiece but it is still sitting in a box on the shelf. "It was my barber's idea," he said. "I've never worn it.

"I'd have difficulty keeping it on during games . . . Besides, I still have a lot of hair," he said, touching the curly tuft in front lightly, as if for reassurance.

Noticeably Balder

Sen. Warner also has a toupe his barber sent home for his wife's approval. "It was fun," he admits fiendishly, "but Betty (his wife) didn't like it." Why not? "She thinks my hair is neater like it is — or it isn't, I guess is a better way to put it."

Sen. Schmit had some down-to-earth reasons why toupes aren't for him. For one, they're expensive and being a farmer during the off season, he figures they'd be difficult to keep clean in a cornfield.

And for two, Schmit run a helicopter business on the side. "It gets pretty windy up there. I've lost hats. I don't want to be down in a cornfield looking for a $400 toupe that flew out the window."

Dobler said a barber put a wig on him once. "It's the funniest darn thing to see yourself in hair . . . That was more hair than I had ever had."

'I Save A Lot'

Schmit was the only one of those interviewed who cited advantages to being a chrome dome: "I save a lot of time this way," he says. "I can comb my hair with a washcloth and go two extra weeks without a haircut."

And a haircut "only takes three minutes flat," he went on. "It takes two minutes to find my hair."

Nearly all the baldies had a cutting word or two about the prices barbers charge these days.

Periodically, Warner and Schmit draft bills for reduced haircut rates for baldies. Schmit points out that everything else is regulated "down to the ton, yard or pound. So why don't we regulate haircuts by the hair?"

Douglas, however, said his barber "more than makes up for" the price of a haircut "by giving his personal views on the law and how to clarify many of the world's problems."

Money's Worth

Then, too, "it's fun to watch him cut the air a couple of times," Douglas said. "I guess he feels he has to give me my 10 or 12 minutes worth for the outrageous prices he charges."

Whatever the status of their hairlines — going, going or gone — all the men interviewed seem to take good-natured ribbing as easily as they hand it out.

Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha said, as he rested his left hand on his hairless head, he considers baldness "simply a matter of appearance . . . like a long nose or big feet."

Once in awhile, people's innocent comments border on insults, but only if the bald person's skin is as thin as his hair.

At Class Reunion

He was attending a high school class reunion a few years ago; it was the first time his graduating class had gotten together in 35 years

An attractive woman came up to him and apparently didn't recognize her former classmate.

"I knew her but she looked at me, puzzled, then stared at my nametag," Amen recalled. "Her eyes opened wide and her hands flew up in the air and she blurted out: " 'Why, you used to be handsome . . . ' "

What could he say? Even today Amen just grins ear to ear when he tells that story.

SCHMIT . . . same bottle of hair oil.

CIPRIANO . . . easier to spot in crowd.

A NEW MAN . . . Stevens wishes he hadn't put off getting hairpiece so long.

Toupe Shoppers Ask 3 Questions

Is it hot? How much will it cost? Will it blow off?

When a man goes shopping for a hairpiece, he invariably asks those three questions first, said Bob Taylor, owner of El Toro barbershop at 13th and P Sts.

"If it's 400 degrees hot and he looks good, he'll stand the heat," said Taylor, answering the first question

Cost is between $150 and $450.

Scratching Head

And "if he has any sense at all, when the wind's blowing hard, he'll walk down the street scratching his head."

Chuck Stevens, salesman for a local radio station and part-time television sportscaster, started wearing a hairpiece about 18 months ago.

"I procrastinated two and a half or three years before I got guts enought to do it," he said. "Now I really wish I hadn't messed around . . . thinking about it.

"I definitely like how I look now as opposed to beforehand," he confided. "I'm 34 but I looked 44 There's nothing wrong with 44, but I'll be there soon enough."

Worried About Blend

Stevens said his biggest concern was whether or not he could comb the hairpiece into his own hair and have it look as natural as when the experts did it

"It was easy for them, but could I do it day after day? I got over that fast. I found I certainly can!"

Taylor said he usually tells his clients it takes a minimum of 21 days to accept or reject a hairpiece.

First day at work with a new hairpiece "is a toughie," he warns. "We recommend he tell some of his associates so when he does show up in a hairpiece they'll say: 'Oh. You finally did it.' "

Otherwise, friends and associates don't know whether to comment or not.

Join Laughter

Another trade secret he sometimes recommends is that a customer grow a mustache before he gets a hairpiece Then, when he dons a hairpiece and shaves his mustache, people say, "Oh, you shaved your mustache "

Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't, he admitted

Stevens said he was surprised by some peoples' reactions the first few times he wore his hairpiece. Several people he works with regularly asked — apparently in all sincerity — if he had his hair styled differently.

"Generally they have to know me pretty well or they won't say much. Unless they knew the situation before, a lot wouldn't notice at all."

Marvin Kroeger, who operates Marvin's for Men barbershop in the Meadowlane Shopping Center, said "all classes of people" are buying toupes. "If they want hair and if they have the money, they buy — farmers, ministers, college students, all walks," but especially men in their 20s or 30s.

Kroeger said the price of a hairpiece depends mainly on the quality of materials and workmanship.

The largest percentage of hairpieces are made of synthetic hair but the most expensive are made with European hair, which is becoming more and more scarce, he noted.

Must Be Good Hair

Hair used in hairpieces must be virgin hair — hair that has never been colored or given a permanent. Manufacturers won't use U.S. women's hair, he said. "We do so much to our hair that it doesn't have the quality."

Kroeger said he tells his clients to be proud of their hairpieces, not ashamed. "Don't try to conceal it. That would make it all the more noticeable."

Women went through a similar phase 20 or 30 years ago with coloring their hair, he noted.

At 100, Mrs. Mook Doesn't Act Old

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

When Mrs. Emily Mook received a personally signed card from President Gerald Ford congratulating her on her 100th birthday, she was so excited she "wanted to shout it from the housetops."

And those who know the lively centenarian are probably surprised she didn't do just that.

"I've seen a lot of living," says Mrs. Mook, who was born 100 years ago today. "But I don't feel ancient."

Plants Own Garden

She still does her own housework and cooking in the small, white frame house she has occupied since 1935. And this spring, she planted a rather impressive vegetable garden all by herself.

Born in a sod house near Waco, Mrs. Mook has "lived in Nebraska all my life. I feel like I helped build Nebraska," she says proudly.

Her father — Christian Bristol — was a homesteader who emigrated to the United States from Saxony, Germany. In 1872, he drove an oxcart all the way from Oshkosh, Wis., to the fledgling state of Nebraska where he planned to stake his claim.

Hard To Choose

The trip took her father six weeks, Mrs. Mook says, and when he arrived, he saw nothing but "vast prairieland." In the midst of all that open space, Mrs. Mook's father had to make a difficult decision.

"He didn't know where to pick that 160 acres" allowed him by the Homestead Act, Mrs. Mook says. But a decision was made, and to this day, the land he chose is still in the Bristol family name.

With a razor-sharp memory that belies her 100 years, Mrs. Mook recalls a lifestyle long since vanished.

"There were Indians and antelope roaming the country" when she was a child. "They were friendly Indians," she adds matter of factly.

Two-Week Trip

Travel was slow and infrequent. Her father once made a trip from WAco to Nebraska City to pick up lumber, she remembers. The journey took him two weeks.

She remembers her first teacher — Mr. Klepper — whose domain was the one-room schoolhouse children began attending when they reached the age of 7.

During the famous blizzard of 1888, Mrs. Mook's schoolmates were stranded in that schoolhouse. But Mrs. Mook and her sister weren't in school that day because their father — a "weather prophet" in Mrs. Mook's words — had kept them home because he felt that a storm was coming.

"We missed the time of our lives" by not being there, Mrs. Mook says. A neighbor "walked along the fence" to the schoolhouse carrying biscuits and hot coffee for the stranded students and teacher.

Everything Fun

People had fun "over every little thing" in those days, Mrs. Mook says, recalling such things as the annual Christmas program at the Ebenezer Methodist Church south of Waco. Every Christmas, each child received an orange — a real treat since it was the only orange they got all year.

In 1908, Mrs. Mook — them Emily Bristol — married Simon Mook, and they lived in Malcolm and Walton before moving to Lincoln in 1935. Mr. Mook died in 1937.

Congratulations

She has received countless cards and letters congratulating her on her 100th birthday, and has been honored at two parties — one of which was given by members of the Kings and Queens card club with whom she plays pinochle and pitch every Tuesday.

Out in her backyard garden two days prior to her birthday, Mrs. Mook carefully examined her crops, pinching back a plant here and there, stooping over to uncover a sizeable muskmelon.

On her way back to the house — walking briskly, without the aid of a cane or helping arm — she passed under a fruit-laden apple tree.

"I'd like to sit in the shade of the old apple tree . . . but I don't have time," she quipped.

Currency Has So Featured Women

DEAR ABBY: A women's libber (obviously) wanted to know why no woman's face had ever appeared on a U.S. dollar bill or any other denomination. You polled 12 women, asking how they felt about it. Nine agreed that it was time a woman got her face on paper money, two said they didn't care one way or the other and one said, "I don't want to get my face on any folding money, but I'd like to get my HANDS on some."

T.O.W.

DEAR T.O.W.: I do now. I also learned from my readers that Martha wasn't the first female to have her face on folding money. Pocahontas appeared on a $20 National Bank Note in 1875.

DEAR ABBY: By 73-year-old husband has been providing my best friend (she is 71) with friendship, affection and all manner of "looking after" since her husband's death 15 months ago.

She has been my friend for 38 years. Her husband, also an old friend, was an invalid for several years, and when he died, she needed the strong shoulder of a man. My husband volunteered with my full approval.

I slowly came to realize that my husband was spending more time with my friend than with me.

He admitted that he had grown very "fond" of her and enjoyed being "needed." Then she confessed to having developed a deep affection for my husband. Of course, they both said they "love me" and don't want to hurt me.

She advised me to "stay put" until we could work things out.

Does this happen frequently in the geriatric set? And what should I do? I am 72. This is my second marriage. It has lasted 30 years. Thirty years ago, I was the other woman. Ironic, isn't it?

HARD STAYING

DEAR HARD: What was, was. Your husband is trying to catch a few moonbeams in the twilight of his life. Stay put, and he'll probably get things in focus again.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15, and my parents are in the process of getting a divorce.

I can understand their wanting to be apart because they fought when they were together, but the pressure I get from both is something terrible.

Each puts down the other one, and both try to find out who the other is seeing.

Please help me. How can I tell them to get off my back?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Tell them both that you don't want to report to either one. And that should settle it.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20c) envelope.

Dutch Tourism Down

The Hague (UPI) — The ministry of economic affairs said the number of overnight stays by foreign guests in Holland dropped by 4.7% last year when compared with 1973. The ministry put the number of arrivals at 2,452,000 and the number of overnight stays in Dutch hotels at 5,618,000 last year. The decline was the worst as far as the Americans were concerned. Their respective figures were 332,000 (down 16.5%) and 730,000 (down 13.6%).

Soft Signpost Must Work

One of the devices placed on a San Antonio highway was found destroyed, apparently by an auto traveling between 40 and 60 miles an hour. After the accident, the auto still must have been in good enough shape to keep going. The accident was never reported.

Council Faces Crucial Votes

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City lawmakers found out Tuesday night they are going to have to make some crucial decisions before the transportation study and Comprehensive Plan are completed.

During a discussion on the Public Works Department budget, director Bob Obering said all planning for street improvement projects is in limbo because of recent council action rejecting the widening of 48th and Holdrege Sts.

Earlier Tuesday the Technical Committee, which is doing the legwork on the transportation study for the new Comprehensive Plan, put a halt on all further transportation planning. Obering said there are too many undecided questions which the council and County Board need to answer.

Only a decision by the elected officials can remove those roadblocks, Obering said, and put the transportation study back on the planning road again.

Alternative Plans

The Technical Committee has been developing plans and alternatives for streets and highways based on projected population growth in the city and country. The plan also is based on the preliminary land use plan set by the planning commission.

Obering said Tuesday night that the committee realized there isn't a concensus over the population estimates and the land use plan.

Additionally, Obering said, citizens seem to want a different type of street system, as evidenced by the recent opposition registered against those street widening projects.

And, he said, there are disagreements over energy conservation uses.

Council members listened to Obering in a rather stunned silence as they realized they were going to have to resolve those questions. The lawmakers have agreed to meet in September to discuss the formulation of energy and transportation policies.

Plan Pushed Back

Mayor Helen Boosalis said completion of the Comprehensive Plan will be pushed back because of this latest daley, although she said she concurred with the action taken by the council to re-examine street policy.

Councilman John Robinson couldn't understand why those issues were not raised earlier by the Technical Committee and brought to the council.

"We've never talked about any of it," Robinson said.

Obering answered that the committee was "maybe misled. We were told to react to a given set of facts and assumed they were agreed upon."

Apparently, he said, there is no such agreement.

The lawmakers took no action on the Public Works Department's budget, although the council indicated it will not make any major changes in the proposals.

Included in the street construction's $2.9 million budget for 1975-76 are $90,000 to conduct a downtown and citywide parking study, $800,000 for arterial street resurfacing projects, $200,000 for subsidies to paving and resurfacing districts, $875,000 to build the new road division building at 7th and Vine, replacing the 19th and Q St. facility, and $300,000 to commuterize the traffic signal system.

Centrum Budget

Another $200,000 is budgeted for the Centrum. Obering said another $1 million will be transferred over to that account, since the money wasn't used this year.

The $1.2 million will help buy land in the block and demolish buildings located on the southern portion of the block, from N to O, 11th to 12th. The city parking garage is scheduled to be built on that half of the block.

The traffic engineering's $606,700 budget includes funds to install school crossing signals at 27th and Sheridan Blvd., at 56th and Normal Blvd. and at 9th and 10th at Van Dorn.

New traffic signals would be installed at 48th and Superior Ave. and at 33rd and Huntington Ave.

The $717,998 paving repair budget includes $49,000 to purchase 800 new street barricades and publish a barricade manual for use by contractors who block city streets.

Other budgets discussed by the council included $366,506 for engineering, $342,479 for building inspections, $9,310 for real property and relocation assistance, $1.21 million for roads, $325,817 for street lights, $291,147 for the sanitary landfill and $1.27 million for storm sewers.

City Negotiators Continue Talking

The City Council told its labor negotiating team to keep on talking with city workers in a closed door session Tuesday night.

Council chairman Max Denney said after the meeting that the lawmakers didn't change their instructions to the negotiating team, although council members considered it.

The city negotiating team, consisting of Personnel Director Walt Mitchell and Deputy City Atty. Dana Roper, has been meeting with various employe groups and unions for several months.

One of the big areas of disagreement is reportedly the size of workers' salary increases for next year. The council soon will have to budget money for those increases before the budget goes into effect Sept. 1.

Last year the council granted a 7.5% across-the-board increase to all workers. Some city workers also are given 5% merit increases in addition to any straight salary increases. Department heads recommend employes for merit increases.

The firefighters are reportedly negotiating with the city on the matter of wearing apparel. Firefighters now receive a $108 yearly clothing allowance.

In a City Council budget meeting last week, the council was told that the city agreed to pay for firefighters' uniforms in a previous contract. The lawmakers then added $10,000 to the budget to cover those costs, bringing the total budget for clothing to $40,000. The council agreed to pick up the costs of police officers' uniforms also.

However, the firefighters still are negotiating with the city over the clothing item.

Minimum Competency Test Concepts Studied

Lincoln high school students may soon have to prove they are able to do the things necessary to get along in everyday life by taking tests.

The Lincoln high school system is holding a symposium through Thursday to determine just what those essential functions are.

Ron Brand, associate superintendent for instruction, explained it as "those fundamental skills necessary for everyone to get along in normal life. These skills are defined as ones most people think high school graduates should have."

The program is patterned after the Oregon school system that requires students to pass, prior to graduation, certain tests that educators in that state feel are needed to survive in today's society.

Many parents and several school officials said the program should not be geared merely to survival, but to enabling the graduate to be happy in society.

"I would think that Lincoln should have a competency level above (survival level)," Louis L. Roper, school board president, said.

The session dealt with examining math skills students should have for everyday life. Parents suggested the school put more emphasis in an exam on math that deals with consumer and business problems and helps students convert to the metric system rather than testing complicated geometric concepts.

In the proposed system, a student would take a test in five different minimum competency areas. If he passed the test, he would not be required to take further courses in that area.

Lincoln students in the 9th grade took such a math test this year as an experiment. About 24% passed the test. Next year the test will be administered to determine which students must take high school math.

Brandt and John Prasch, school superintendent, said that although there was no definite figure on the cost of starting such a system, it should not be a major expense.

Madison Wins Courthouse Election

From Press Reports

With all 35 precincts reporting, the final unofficial tally was 5,560 to keep the county seat in Madison and 4,277 to move it to Norfolk.

In order to get the county seat moved, those voting in favor of Norfolk needed at least 60% of the votes for a victory.

By state law, the issue can not be voted again for a decade.

Election officials said in the community of Madison, some precincts turned in 100% turnout rates Tuesday, but the same was not true in Norfolk. About 16,000 residents in the county were eligible to cast votes.

The issue to move the county seat has flared up at intervals through the years. Norfolk with a population of near 17,000 is by far the largest town in the county and residents have expressed displeasure at driving the 15 miles to Madison for courthouse business.

Location of the courthouse at Madison has been valued by residents here as a tradition and economic advantage.

This latest battle has been simmering for over three years and was the target of two petition drives by Norfolk area residents, one ruled invalid by County Clerk David DeCamp. He said the petition lacked the necessary number of valid signatures.

A court action was initiated in District Court against the county commissioners after the decision. However the suit, filed by petition committee chairman Burt Nixon, was withdrawn when a second petition drive was announced last Dec. 28.

Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Adams of Norfolk led the drive to move the county seat to Norfolk and exceeded the necessary 5,022 signatures by 552.

The county seat started out in Norfolk, but because it was the only community north of the Elkhorn River in the county in 1867, the decision was made to move it to Madison.

In 1886 the question of a move was put to a vote and Norfolk wound up with the majority of votes but ran into the 60% rule and failed to get the courthouse. The vote that year was 809 for Norfolk and 782 for Madison.

The year after the election, the present courthouse structure was built.

Then again in 1916 voters again went to the polls. Norfolk won a second time with 2,895 votes, as opposed to 2,564 to leave it in Madison, but didn't have the majority edge required.

Iowa Patrolman Named Sheriff In Pottawattamie

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP)—Lynn Ford, 31, a native of Coon Rapids, was named by the Pottawattamie County board of supervisors to succeed Roy Wichael as sheriff.

Wichael retired June 30.

Ford has been stationed with the Iowa Highway Patrol in Council Bluffs for seven years.

He will take office in two weeks to fill the unexpired term ending Dec. 31, 1976.

Twister Damage Said $20 Million

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — National Guard troops pulled out of Canton Tuesday and one official estimated damage at $20 million from a tornado that ravaged the city last week.

Fire Hits Printing Plant

Production workers at Mid-America Webpress, 3700 N.W. 12th, will be off work today and possibly longer due to a fire at the printing plant Tuesday night.

The fire was caused by a short in the main transformer system. Although no one was injured, fire officials reported that the damage to the transformer was considerable.

Dan Kodak, company vice-president, said the extent of the damage would not be determined until sometime Wednesday. A decision will be made then on how long production workers will be off.

Kodak said, however, that administrative personnel should continue to report to work.

Orona Finds Success In First Fairgrounds' Appearance

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Starting in a strange town has been a problem for Walter Orona.

The 22-year-old jockey admits two problems have caused him some concern when he began riding at the State Fairgrounds two weeks ago.

"I guess getting used to this heat is tough," he said. "But it's tough starting here new and not knowing very many people. I know lots of people who raced at Grand Island (the Fonner Park meet in March and April), so that helped."

Apparently, Orona is not all that unfamiliar to Lincoln horsemen. Entering the third week, he had ridden 45 mounts with four wins, six seconds and four thirds to rank seventh among Capital City riders.

Much of the credit for Orona's success must go to jockey agent Bob Bates, a long-time Lincoln resident, who arranges mounts for the four-year riding veteran.

"Bob Bates has really helped me out here," he said. "He talked to me about coming to Lincoln and I guess he's the main reason I decided to come here."

Walter Orona

Orona started his career in 1969 when his brother, Larry, was drafted by the armed services. Larry had been working for a horseman who had his contract in Phoenix.

Orona then spent six months working as a substitute for his brother, cleaning stalls and doing general chores.

Then he left to work for Rex Ladd, a Merino, Colo., horseman who has long been a fixture on the Nebraska racing circuit.

"He didn't think I was ready to ride yet, but I left anyway to start riding," Orona explained. "I broke my maiden on a horse called Mink Set at LaMesa (Park in Raton, N.M.). I won four races in 1971 at Raton and then I came back to Rex Ladd during the 1972 Ak-Sar-Ben meet (in Omaha)."

He won the leading apprentice title that year at Ak-Sar-Ben and it convinced him that perhaps he could do all right staying in the Cornhusker state.

This year at Grand Island, he only rode 98 mounts (the least of any top ten rider). Yet he scored 16 triumphs, 16 seconds and 14 thirds to rank seventh.

"This is the first year that I'm planning to ride straight through in Nebraska," Orona said. "I'd rather stay here than ride at Denver. I think I can ride more horses here.

He said he plans on helping Ladd in Colorado train his younger horses for racing after the Atokad Park meet in South Sioux City ends in early November.

Besides Nebraska tracks, Orona has also ridden at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark., the Chicago area and Phoenix.

Trying to maintain his weight at about 112 pounds has been no problem for Orona. "I've done a lot of jogging this summer since it's been so hot. It's really helped me keep my weight down."

Nevertheless, Orona has no regrets about choosing the State Fairgrounds' meet this summer.

"I've really had good luck so far here. I just hope I can get on as many horses as I can in Lincoln," he said.

Tsuluk Destroyed

Tsuluk hurt himself while running into the stretch drive of the six-furlong chase for $2,000 claimers. After surveying the damage, it was decided to humanely destroy the horse.

He was making his racing comback this season at the State Fairgrounds. Tsuluk won his first start on July 15 by six lengths and then ran second to Miss Shipshape on July 24. Those were his only two races this year.

'New' Steward

He replaced Jim Hall, the regular steward, who was in Grand Island visiting his wife who had just undergone surgery in a Grand Island hospital.

Meier Triumphs

Jockey Randy Meier scored his first feature race win here this year when he guided Paul Goetowski's Monte Viso to victory in the $2,500 featured seventh race Tuesday at the State Fairgrounds.

"He ran just as I planned it. I made my move at about the three-eighths pole," Meier said. "I can't remember when I won a feature race here last. I think it was last year."

Meier held Monte Viso off the pace until the backstretch run of the mile and one-eighth chase that attracted nine contestants. Then he made his move which proved successful in the time of 1:56.

As the 5-2 second favorite, Monte Viso returned $7.60, $5.00 and $3.80. Pauline Schaffer's Vicky Capri, ridden by Jim Bazer, placed for $8.20 and $5.80 and Golden Key Stable's Bishop Brown, ridden by Dan Switzer, showed for $7.80.

Heat Hurts

Tuesday's 90-degree heat and high humidity took its toll on the races as the season's smallest crowd, 4,799, bet the third-lowest mutuel totals this season.

The handle was $291,007, which was only about $5,000 behind the corresponding date of last year.

"Under the circumstances, I was pleased with the crowd and handle," noted State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt.

Three Winners

Winning selections included Title Please ($6.00) in the third, Rosie Redbird ($9.00) in the fourth and Monte Viso ($7.60) in the seventh.

Greer Gets 3

Jockey Tom Greer took riding honors Tuesday with three winners.

He triumphed aboard the Kemling Bros., Inc.'s Title Please, Charlie Murnan's Rosie Redbird and Chet Youngs' Gamblin Frank ($8.40). He also tallied seconds on Mike Kemling's Zippi's Magic and Dan Chatterson's Sally Ran.

He was unplaced on just one horse, Larry Donlin's Ala Man in the sixth as he tallied three wins and two seconds on six mounts.

'Sad' Aunt Priscilla Loses

Aunt Priscilla Loses $4

I was so unhappy yesterday at the State Fairgrounds I just cried all the way home.

It wasn't so much that I lost $4, but that sweet little Tsuluk had to be destroyed after hurting himself in the fifth race. I always hate to see horses hurt, but that's one of the risks of the game.

Anyway, I lost $2 when my Rep's Bar tried so hard but finished third in the second and on poor Tsuluk. That lowered my $104 spree fund to $91.80 and marked the sixth straight day I couldn't get one of my darlings in a winner.

But, back to business. On Wednesday's program, I'm going to put my $2 win tickets on Homerunner in the fifth and on Little Bit Salty in the sixth.

Religion No. 1 With Bass' Life

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Sure, the Omaha Benson halfback has designs this fall on playing Big Eight football his freshman season at Kansas.

But the Jayhawks aren't top priority. The KU School of Religion is. Bass will study to become a Baptist minister.

"The ministry is my main goal," he said here Monday at the North training camp for the 17th Shrine Bowl football game Aug. 9 at Lincoln's Memorial Stadium.

This summer, Bass has served as recreational director for a vacation bible school at Salem Baptist Church in north Omaha.

"Helping other people, doing things for them, is a big chunk of my life," the three-time all-stater said. "I used to go to church because my parents made me.

"When I was about 10, I turned away for a couple years," he added. "Then in ninth grade, I changed to the Baptist Church and it's been my main source of inspiration. Reverend (J.C.) Wade is truly a great man in our church. I'd like to accomplish some of the same things as a minister."

No doubt, Bass knows what it's like to overcome obstacles. Monday he officially weighed in at 142 pounds, perhaps the lightest in Shrine Bowl history. He's also only 5-6.

"I had been a steady 152, but I lost about 10 pounds working the graveyard shift (11 p.m. to 7:30 a.m.) at the post office this summer," Bass offered. "I hope to gain it all back."

THE LINCOLN STAR
Sports
Wednesday, July 30, 1975 33

KU's hoping for even more. The Jayhawks asked him to report at 160 pounds for the start of fall drills in August.

"I haven't lost any strength," insisted Bass. "I've been working mostly on my speed. It's down to a consistent :04.4 or :04.5."

Apparently, size was Nebraska's biggest worry concerning Bass, even though the Cornhuskers offered him a full football scholarship.

Bass, also a starting guard on the Bunnies' state Class A semifinal basketball team last winter, said he didn't get enough time to visit the campuses he wanted.

"I've gotten a lot of negative reaction on not going to Nebraska," admitted Bass. "People tell me I wasn't very smart. But I'm the one who's going to school for four years.

"I just didn't feel at home at Nebraska," he explained. "They pressed and I wasn't ready. I felt if they thought I was good enough and had any plans for me, they'd have waited another week."

This next month should be interesting for Bass. He's getting his first exposure to the wishbone offense under North head coach Larry Jacobsen of Omaha Burke.

He views it as a valuable prelude to his chances at Kansas this fall since first-year Jayhawk coach Bud Moore also will use the wishbone.

"Things could be wide open at Kansas," Bass predicted. "The way I see it, those people just have a spring practice jump on me and a lot's left to be proven."

Bass will work at halfback for the North team. His outside running speed and shifty maneuvers to the inside could represent the North's chief offensive threat.

Kansas also has plans for Bass at halfback and possibly instant value as a kick returner. "If they don't see me at halfback, I could wind up at split end," Bass aid.

Whatever happens, Bass knows the direction in which he's headed.

"I've wanted to be a minister since I was 16-years-old," he pointed out. "Nothing has happened to change my mind."

Football-Baseball Switch Not Easy Choice: Steiner

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Fremont — Every year you hear stories about Shrine football players passing up American Legion tournaments in favor of the annual gridiron clash.

Just by talking to Columbus Scotus graduate Dan Steiner, it's easy to see how difficult making that decision was for him.

"I really love baseball," the 6-2, 218-pound offensive lineman said. "But I'm going to be playing football in the future and when I made the decision to play in the Shrine Bowl, I figured it would be a good start."

Steiner's future football will be played on the same astro-turf as the 17th annual Shrine Bowl, the University of Nebraska's Memorial Stadium.

"The Nebraska coaching staff didn't make any requests as to what they wanted me to do about playing in the Shrine Bowl," Steiner said. "They more or less leave the decision up to the individuals."

When Steiner made the decision to play in the Shrine Bowl over legion ball, it was "a long time ago." He admits even then it was a tough decision.

"I knew we (Columbus) would have a good legion team," he said. "But I didn't know how good."

The Columbus legion team won its division of the Cornhusker League but lost in the playoffs to Lincoln Northeast Judds Brothers in extra innings just two days before camp opened.

Columbus will get another shot at Judds when area tournaments open Thursday at Hastings, but Steiner won't be catching.

"I'd love to be there," he said. "If we qualify for state I'll go back and play if I still fit in the picture."

In the past, the Shrine game has always conflicted with the state tournament. But with the earlier start because of the pro game at Memorial Stadium August 16, it just interferes with area play.

He'll be facing a little different assignment, however, as Jacobsen plans to utilize him at offensive guard instead of his customary tackle position under Scotus coach Jim Puetz, an assistant to Jacobsen.

"I have to learn how to go out and get the linebacker from the guard position," Steiner said. "At tackle you were just head-on your man."

Another technique that goes with the guard position is pulling to lead a play.

"I really like to pull so I think I'll enjoy playing guard," he added. "We pulled from the tackle at Scotus, so I won't have any trouble adapting to that."

If Steiner could, he'd like to "pull" Thursday and play baseball, but since he can't, he'd like to meet the legion team at state with a North Shrine victory under his belt.

Bell Chooses Wood

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Willie Wood, former All-Pro defensive back with the Green Bay Packers, Tuesday was named head coach of the Philadelphia Bell in the World Football League and became the first black professional head football coach in 50 years.

Wood, named to succeed Ron Waller who resigned last week for "personal reasons," said his goal was to create a winning team and play down the uniqueness of his appointment.

"I hope that somewhere down the road we will have a winning team and we can play up the fact that the Philadelphia Bell has a winning team and play down me as a black coach," Wood told a news conference.

Wood noted the irony of his being named to the position on the same day that the late Emlen Tunnell, a pro football Hall of Famer as a defensive back and a black, was being buried in a Philadelphia suburb.

Wood, who said he patterned his style from Tunnell when the two were with the Green Bay Packers, said he thought Tunnell would be the first black head coach.

Willie Wood

The last black man to coach a pro football team was Fritz Pollard, who coached the Hammond Pros of the National Football League from 1923-25.

Wood, who was signed as a free agent by Green Bay in 1960 and went on to play 12 years in the National Football League, has only three days to prepare his new club for its league opener against Hawaii here Saturday night.

"If I can put forth all the energy that I have stored in me I am sure we can have success," the 38-year-old Wood said.

"Whenever you have a change of administrations there are problems. I do anticipate problems but of what kind and degree I don't know.

"As I said before, we have the finest bunch of players I know. I don't anticipate any problems with them." he said.

Wood who served along with Waller as assistant coaches of the San Diego Chargers in the NFL, came to the Bell in the spring as defensive coordinator.

After Waller resigned following what was rumored to be personal differences with Bell owner John Bosacco and several of the new Bell players, Assistant Coach Joe Gardi was named interim coordinator and led the team to a 30-21 victory over the Portland Thunder in an exhibition game last Sunday night.

Bosacco described the situation over selecting a coach as "agonizing" and said Gardi would remain in an administrative position "directly responsible to me."

Phils' Underwood Halts Pirates On Four Hits

By Associated Press

The Philadelphia Phillies continued their mastery over the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night with a 5-1 victory, the ninth straight time they've defeated their cross-state rivals.

Rookie Tom Underwood stopped the Bucs on four hits and contributed a two-run double as the Phils closed to within 3½ games of the front-running Pirates in the National League East.

Larry Bowa and Garry Maddox added run-scoring singles off loser Dock Ellis, 7-7.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta beat Los Angeles 4-2, Chicago edged Montreal 4-3, San Francisco downed Cincinnati 4-2, Houston dumped San Diego 6-2 and St. Louis split a pair with New York, winning 5-3 and losing 11-6.

In the American League, Milwaukee blanked Boston 4-0, Baltimore rocked Cleveland 7-1, New York defeated Detroit 4-2 and Kansas City topped Minnesota 5-2.

Bobby Murcer drove in three runs, two of them with a ninth-inning double, for San Francisco.

Dave Roberts fired a four-hitter and Jose Cruz' double high-lighted a three-run rally in the fifth for Houston.

Ron Fairly drove in three runs with two singles and a home run in the first game for St. Louis while Del Unser had four hits and three RBI for the Mets in the nightcap.

Lee May and Bobby Grich drove in three runs each and Mike Torrez tossed a six-hitter for Baltimore.

Thurman Munson scored two runs and Graig Nettles and Lou Piniella knocked in one each for the Yankees.

Pizza Hut Tops Falstaff, 7-4

Bob Kellar singled and scored on errors in the top of the seventh inning to help Pizza Hut topple error-plagued Falstaff 7-4 in AAA fast pitch action Tuesday night at Ballard Field.

Herb Schrader collected three RBIs for the winners while Ken Forbes paced Falstaff with three hits and three runs.

Sports Signals

By Bob Owens
Star Sports Editor

Bloomington, Ind. — Street and Smith's football yearbook, the oldest of the pre-season magazines about collegiate football, rates the Nebraska-Indiana game Sept. 20 in NU's Memorial Stadium a toss-up.

This came as somewhat of a shock to Hoosier fans, who can't forget that Coach Lee Corso has won just three games in his first two seasons here. The more cynical Indiana fan says the only toss-up is whether the Hoosiers show up for the game.

Corso, who bubbles with enthusiasm despite his poor record at Indiana, doesn't agree with his critics. "We feel our football program has reached the point where we can be competitive in every game, including Nebraska," he said.

His main concern as far as making that statement come true is injuries. He doesn't feel his overall depth is good enough to stand the shock of key injuries.

"We're getting closer, though," he said, mentioning linebacker and defensive end as two spots that are well manned.

There is considerable doubt in my mind, though, that Indiana has improved enough defensively to give the Huskers very much of a struggle.

Only Win Was Minnesota

Indiana's lone victory in 1974 came over Minnesota, 34-3, just one week after Nebraska clobbered the Gophers, 54-0. Minnesota played without Tony Dungy, regular quarterback, against both the Huskers and Hoosiers.

Street and Smith's credibility can be questioned since the magazine's projection also has Indiana rated a "toss-up" against North Carolina State, the favorite to win the Atlantic Coast Conference.

It also is the only pre-season magazine I've seen which doesn't rank Nebraska among the top 20 teams in the nation. It rated the Huskers third in the Big Eight Conference behind Oklahoma and Missouri.

The Miami (Florida)-Nebraska game is listed a "toss-up" and the Huskers are rated underdogs against Missouri and Oklahoma.

Nebraska hasn't played Indiana since 1959 when the Hoosiers came to Lincoln and won 23-7.

The all-time series between the schools has Indiana winning nine games, Nebraska taking three and three games ending in ties. The series starting in September will include Nebraska visits to Bloomington next season and in 1978 a return game by the Hoosiers in Lincoln in 1977.

Huskers Sixth In Wins

It also includes a list of major college teams with the winningest records in the period from 1969 through 1974. The Huskers are sixth with a .857 winning average on 54 wins, nine losses and three ties.

Football Action joins several other magazine predictions of a rise in fortunes of the Colorado Buffaloes. It has them third in the conference and calls the Buff offense "high-powered" and says the defense is hopeful.

Unlike Street and Smith, Football Action ranks Missouri as the probable fifth place Big Eight team, putting Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma State ahead of the Tigers.

The rest of the league ranking finds Iowa State sixth, Kansas seventh, and Kansas State last.

BASEBALL

Sparky Anderson's Cincinnati Reds have broken many marks this year. But Monday night the Reds broke a mark they figured they'd never reach. Anderson set the mark Monday night when he lifted starter Gary Nolan, giving the club 44 consecutive games in which the starting pitcher wasn't around when the game ended. The old mark was set by the San Diego Padres in 1968. But while the Padres won only 15 and lost 28 during their record setting stint, the Reds are a torrid 32-12 since Don Gullett pitched their last complete game on June 11.

Outfielder-first baseman Mickey Stanley was lost to Detroit for the remainder of the season with a thumb injury, nearly a year after a hand injury cost him his job as the Tiger's regular center fielder.

Charlston Charlies' second baseman Willie Randolph, the International League's top hitter was called up by the Pittsburgh Pirates to replace the injured Rennie Stennett.

BASKETBALL

University of Minnesota athletic director Paul Giel is cutting short a visit to Europe to return home to begin the search for a new basketball coach. Giel was in Europe with the Gopher hockey team when basketball coach Bill Musselman was named head coach of the San Diego Sails in the ABA.

Gus Williams, Southern California guard who led the Pac 8 in scoring last season signed a multi-year contract with the Golden State Warriors.

Yugoslavia handed the United States its first defeat in the European tour for the Intercontinental Basketball Cup, 82-79.

FOOTBALL

Linebacker Bruce Bannon, acquired last week by the San Diego Chargers from Miami, has retired.

Ron Mayo, a 6-3, 225-pound tight end from Morgan State was traded to the San Diego Chargers from the Baltimore Colts for an undisclosed draft choice.

Wide receiver Lynn Swann, who missed last year's College All-Star game due to the players strike, will miss it again because of a pulled hamstring muscle, the Steelers announced.

OTHER SPORTS

A stomach virus has caused Billie Jean King to miss a World Team Tennis match between the New York Sets and the Indianapolis Loves at Indianapolis and break her string of 78 consecutive WTT matches.

Tony Trabert is expected to be named captain of the U.S. Davis Cup team and it appears likely that Jimmy Connors will boycott the team again. Connors refused to play for the team when recently retired Dennis Ralston captained the squad.

U.S. Amateur champion Jerry Pate and Jay Haas of Wake Forest were among 10 members of the 1975 All-American Collegiate golf team announced. Jamie Gonzales of Oklahoma was also honored.

Hall of Fame jockey Eric Guerin, who rode 2,708 winners with earnings of more than $17 million, has ended his riding career. Guerin was noted for guiding Native Dancer to 21 victories in 23 lifetime starts.

Syracuse Tops Falls City

Syracuse will now advance to the state Class B tourney in York, beginning Thursday.

Owners Dispute Reports

CHICAGO (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles Finley and Chicago White Sox owner John Allyn disputed reports Tuesday that plans are being made for a major shift of baseball franchises involving the two teams.

"It's unfounded and without substance," said Finley of a Chicago Tribune report that discussions are under way to move Finley's team to Chicago and Allyn's franchise to Seattle.

"We know there are baseball clubs having financial difficulties. Teams like the White Sox and the Minnesota Twins. The Athletics aren't having trouble financially, but we are having trouble drawing the number of fans you expect to draw with the three-time world champions," Finley said.

Finley added in an interview, "But I don't want to comment any further. I don't know anything about it."

Allyn was almost as vehement in denying the proposed transfer.

"I don't think there's a chance that the White Sox will leave Chicago," Allyn said in an interview. "He (Finley) has commitments in Oakland that I don't think he can get out of."

"I have no intention of moving the club to Seattle," he said. "I also don't know of anyone in Seattle who's interested in putting up the money for a baseball team."

The Tribune said it has been unable to verify the proposed switch but said the plans are common talk in financial and baseball circles and only two problems remain to be solved before it can become reality.

The newspaper reported that Finley must suffer no financial loss in a final accounting with the Alameda County Coliscum, which has the Athletics signed to a long-term lease.

Sam's Captures Two Victories

Randy Daldy slugged a three-run homer to pace Sam's to a win over Wentz Heating & Plumbing, 13-9 in the opener of AAA slow pitch softball action Tuesday night at Ballard Field.

In the second game Wentz got some revenge as it topped Olympia 11-10 behind a three-run homer by Alex Walter.

Then in the nightcap Sam's took their second win handing Olympia it's second loss of the evening in a 8-4 decisions.

Council Faces Crucial Votes

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City lawmakers found out Tuesday night they are going to have to make some crucial decisions before the transportation study and Comprehensive Plan are completed

During a discussion on the Public Works Department budget, director Bob Obering said all planning for street improvement projects is in limbo because of recent council action rejecting the widening of 48th and Holdrege Sts

Earlier Tuesday the Technical Committee, which is doing the legwork on the transportation study for the new Comprehensive Plan put a halt on all further transportation planning Obering said there are too many undecided questions which the council and County Board need to answer

Only a decision by the elected officials can remove those roadblocks. Obering said, and put the transportation study back on the planning road again.

Alternative Plans

The Technical Committee has been developing plans and alternatives for streets and highways based on projected population growth in the city and country The plan also is based on the preliminary land use plan set by the planning commission

Obering said Tuesday night that the committee realized there isn't a concensus over the population estimates and the land use plan

Additionally, Obering said, citizens seem to want a different type of street system, as evidenced by the recent opposition registered against those street widening projects

And, he said there are disagreements over energy conservation uses

Council members listened to Obering in a rather stunned silence as they realized they were going to have to resolve those questions The lawmakers have agreed to meet in September to discuss the formulation of energy and transportation policies

Plan Pushed Back

Mayor Helen Boosalis said completion of the Comprehensive Plan will be pushed back because of this latest daley, although she said she concurred with the action taken by the council to re-examine street policy

Councilman John Robinson couldn't understand why those issues were not raised earlier by the Technical Committee and brought to the council.

"We've never talked about any of it," Robinson said

Obering answered that the committee was "maybe misled We were told to react to a given set of facts and assumed they were agreed upon"

Apparently, he said, there is no such agreement

The lawmakers took no action on the Public Works Department's budget, although the council indicated it will not make any major changes in the proposals

Included in the street construction's $2 9 million budget for 1975-76 are $90,000 to conduct a downtown and citywide parking study, $800,000 for arterial street resurfacing projects, $200.000 for subsidies to paving and resurfacing districts, $875,000 to build the new road division building at 7th and Vine, replacing the 19th and Q St facility, and $300,000 to commuterize the traffic signal system

Centrum Budget

Another $200,000 is budgeted for the Centrum Obering said another $1 million will be transferred over to that account, since the money wasn't used this year

The $1 2 million will help buy land in the block and demolish buildings located on the southern portion of the block, from N to O, 11th to 12th The city parking garage is scheduled to be built on that half of the block

The traffic engineering's $606,-700 budget includes funds to install school crossing signals at 27th and Sheridan Blvd , at 56th and Normal Blvd and at 9th and 10th at Van Dorn

New traffic signals would be installed at 48th and Superior Ave and at 33rd and Huntington Ave

The $717,998 paving repair budget includes $49,000 to purchase 800 new street barricades and publish a barricade manual for use by contractors who block city streets.

Other budgets discussed by the council included $366,506 for engineering, $342,479 for building inspections, $9,310 for real property and relocation assistance, $1 21 million for roads, $325,817 for street lights, $291.147 for the sanitary landfill and $1 27 million for storm sewers

City Negotiators Continue Talking

The City Council told its labor negotiating team to keep on talking with city workers in a closed door session Tuesday night

Council chairman Max Denney said after the meeting that the lawmakers didn t change their instructions to the negotiating team although council members considered it

The city negotiating team, consisting of Personnel Director Walt Mitchell and Deputy City Atty Dana Roper, has been meeting with various employe groups and unions for several months

One of the big areas of disagreement is reportedly the size of workers' salary increases for next year The council soon will have to budget money for those increases before the budget goes into effect Sept 1

Last year the council granted a 7 5% across-the-board increase to all workers Some city workers also are given 5% merit increases in addition to any straight salary increases Department heads recommend employes for merit increases

The firefighters are reportedly negotiating with the city on the matter of wearing apparel Firefighters now receive a $108 yearly clothing allowance

In a City Council budget meeting last week, the council was told that the city agreed to pay for firefighters' uniforms in a previous contract. The lawmakers then added $10,000 to the budget to cover those costs, bringing the total budget for clothing to $40,000 The council agreed to pick up the costs of police officers' uniforms also

However, the firefighters still are negotiating with the city over the clothing item

Minimum Competency Test Concepts Studied

Lincoln high school students may soon have to prove they are able to do the things necessary to get along in everyday life by taking tests

The Lincoln high school system is holding a symposium through Thursday to determine just what those essential functions are

Ron Brand, associate superintendent for instruction, explained it as "those fundamental skills necessary for everyone to get along in normal life. These skills are defined as ones most people think high school graduates should have"

The program is patterned after the Oregon school system that requires students to pass, prior to graduation, certain tests that educators in that state feel are needed to survive in today's society

Many parents and several school officials said the program should not be geared merely to survival, but to enabling the graduate to be happy in society.

"I would think that Lincoln should have a competency level above (survival level)," Louis L. Roper, school board president, said.

The session dealt with examining math skills students should have for everyday life Parents suggested the school put more emphasis in an exam on math that deals with consumer and business problems and helps students convert to the metric system rather than testing complicated geometric concepts.

In the proposed system, a student would take a test in five different minimum competency areas If he passed the test, he would not be required to take further courses in that area.

Lincoln students in the 9th grade took such a math test this year as an experiment. About 24% passed the test Next year the test will be administered to determine which students must take high school math

Brandt and John Prasch, school superintendent, said that although there was no definite figure on the cost of starting such a system, it should not be a major expense.

He Enjoys 'Being High'

Joe Houston is a 70-year-old "retired" steeplejack, but he still enjoys "being high," as he puts it. Houston is helping paint the steeple atop the Kirkwood Hall Building at Indiana University in Bloomington. He has helped paint the tower each time it needed a new coat since he was 18 years old.

Madison Wins Courthouse Election

From Press Reports

With all 35 precincts reporting, the final unofficial tally was 5,-560 to keep the county seat in Madison and 4,277 to move it to Norfolk.

In order to get the county seat moved, those voting in favor of Norfolk needed at least 60% of the votes for a victory.

By state law, the issue can not be voted again for a decade.

Election officials said in the community of Madison, some precincts turned in 100% turnout rates Tuesday, but the same was not true in Norfolk. About 16,000 residents in the county were eligible to cast votes.

The issue to move the county seat has flared up at intervals through the years. Norfolk with a population of near 17,000 is by far the largest town in the county and residents have expressed displeasure at driving the 15 miles to Madison for courthouse business.

Location of the courthouse at Madison has been valued by residents here as a tradition and economic advantage.

This latest battle has been simmering for over three years and was the target of two petition drives by Norfolk area residents, one ruled invalid by County Clerk David DeCamp. He said the petition lacked the necessary number of valid signatures.

A court action was initiated in District Court against the county commissioners after the decision. However the suit, filed by petition committee chairman Burt Nixon, was withdrawn when a second petition drive was announced last Dec. 28.

Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Adams of Norfolk led the drive to move the county seat to Norfolk and exceeded the necessary 5,022 signatures by 552.

The county seat started out in Norfolk, but because it was the only community north of the Elkhorn River in the county in 1867, the decision was made to move it to Madison.

In 1886 the question of a move was put to a vote and Norfolk wound up with the majority of votes but ran into the 60% rule and failed to get the courthouse The vote that year was 809 for Norfolk and 782 for Madison.

The year after the election, the present courthouse structure was built.

Then again in 1916 voters again went to the polls. Norfolk won a second time with 2,895 votes, as opposed to 2,564 to leave it in Madison, but didn't have the majority edge required.

Twister Damage Said $20 Million

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — National Guard troops pulled out of Canton Tuesday and one official estimated damage at $20 million from a tornado that ravaged the city last week.

Fire Hits Printing Plant

Production workers at Mid-America Webpress, 3700 N.W. 12th, will be off work today and possibly longer due to a fire at the printing plant Tuesday night.

The fire was caused by a short in the main transformer system. Although no one was injured, fire officials reported that the damage to the transformer was considerable.

Dan Kodak, company vice-president, said the extent of the damage would not be determined until sometime Wednesday. A decision will be made then on how long production workers will be off

Kodak said, however, that administrative personnel should continue to report to work.

Coaches Clinic Underway Soon

Elkhorn — Registrations for the annual summer coaches clinic of the Nebraska Coaches Association is moving ahead of previous years, clinic director Gene Kruger of Elkhorn said.

Entering the last full week of July, advance registrations have reached 400, Kruger said, with the state's coaches having the remainder of the week to mail registration materials to association secretary-treasurer Bun Galloway of Lincoln.

The advance registration realizes each coach a savings of $2 over the $20 registration fee at the time of the clinic. The clinic will be at Pershing Auditorium Aug. 13-14-15.

Kruger said Nebraska defensive football specialist Monte Kiffin has been added to the list of clinicians. He will appear on Thursday's program. North Carolina State football coach Lou Holtz is scheduled to appear on the opening day only.

Other clinicians include Bill James of Bellevue and Lee Zentic of Lincoln East in football; George Nicodemus of the JFK College Patriettes in girls basketball; Bobby Knight of Indiana, Walt Shublom of Kansas City Junior College, and Joe Dean of the Converse Rubber Company in boys basketball; Bruce Wilde of Ford Dodge, Iowa in volleyball; Joe Dowler in wrestling, the Wyoming Cowboy mat coach; and Rob Timmons of Kansas and Wayne Haensel of South Dakota State in track.

Kruger expects more than 1,000 coaches to register for the seventh annual clinic.

Colts-Falcons Tickets Remain

Nebraska ticket manager Jim Pittenger said all professional football ticket orders for the Colts-Falcons game will be filled and sent out by Wednesday.

Pittenger said that any order received after will be filled immediately.

Jets, Namath Reportedly Agree

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath, who sought $500,000 a year to renew his contract with the New York Jets, settled for slightly less Tuesday when he reached basic agreement to quarterback the club for the next two years at a salary which will make him the highest paid player in professional football history.

A club spokesman said: "Details still have to be worked out, but we have a basic agreement." It is believed Namath compromised after several weeks of bargaining with Jet President Phil Iselin and settled for a two-year pact worth $850,000.

The Jets scheduled a "major news conference" for Wednesday afternoon at their Hofstra University training camp where details of the agreement would be announced. Namath was expected to work out with his teammates after meeting the media.

Iselin and Namath's attorney, Jimmy Walsh, reached basic agreement over the telephone late Monday night and expect to have the details worked out in time for Wednesday's news conference.

Joe Namath

Iselin, speaking on the telephone from Monmouth Park race course, said: "Joe was very fair to deal with. He's always said if he's going to play any place, it would be with the Jets. This is his home.

"I'm glad it's all over with. Now we can get down to business."

Last season Namath, 32, escaped serious injury and led the Jets to a 7-7 record, the club winning its last six games.

Namath has kept himself in shape at his youth camp in Massachusetts and currently in Tuscaloosa, Ala., where he has continued his training program.

Earlier this month Namath signed a 20-year contract with a cosmetics company which will earn him $250,000 a year. He will appear in TV commercials for the firm and also act in an advisory capacity.

Last year Namath entered into a three-year contract with a shirt company which will net him $3 million.

Namath became a free agent May 1 and then turned down a $4 million offer from the Chicago Winds to join the World Football League. The contract was for a multi-year period with an option of buying into the club when he quit playing.

At the time, Namath said: "I'll play in New York or retire."

Val's, Stan's Suffer Losses

Val's was ousted by Grand Island Palm Gardens, 6-5, to finish with a 3-2 mark, while Stan's suffered its final defeat to Broken Bow, 4-2, to end up 2-2 for the meet.

Earlier, two other Lincoln clubs, Misty Lounge and Pizza Hut were eliminated. In Pizza Hut's final loss, hurler Dave Taladay pitched 6 2/3 innings of perfect ball but then blew a 3-0 lead and eventually lost in extra innings.

Orona Finds Success In First Fairgrounds' Appearance

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Starting in a strange town has been a problem for Walter Orona.

The 22-year-old jockey admits two problems have caused him some concern when he began riding at the State Fairgrounds two weeks ago.

"I guess getting used to this heat is tough," he said. "But it's tough starting here new and not knowing very many people. I know lots of people who raced at Grand Island (the Fonner Park meet in March and April), so that helped."

Apparently, Orona is not all that unfamiliar to Lincoln horsemen. Entering the third week, he had ridden 45 mounts with four wins, six seconds and four thirds to rank seventh among Capital City riders.

Much of the credit for Orona's success must go to jockey agent Bob Bates, a long-time Lincoln resident, who arranges mounts for the four-year riding veteran.

"Bob Bates has really helped me out here," he said. "He talked to me about coming to Lincoln and I guess he's the main reason I decided to come here."

Orona started his career in 1969 when his brother, Larry, was drafted by the armed services. Larry had been working for a horseman who had his contract in Phoenix.

Orona then spent six months working as a substitute for his brother, cleaning stalls and doing general chores.

Then he left to work for Rex Ladd, a Merino, Colo., horseman who has long been a fixture on the Nebraska racing circuit.

"He didn't think I was ready to ride yet, but I left anyway to start riding," Orona explained. "I broke my maiden on a horse called Mink Set at LaMesa (Park in Raton, N.M.). I won four races in 1971 at Raton and then I came back to Rex Ladd during the 1972 Ak-Sar-Ben meet (in Omaha)."

He won the leading apprentice title that year at Ak-Sar-Ben and it convinced him that perhaps he could do all right staying in the Cornhusker state.

This year at Grand Island, he only rode 98 mounts (the least of any top ten rider). Yet he scored 16 triumphs, 16 seconds and 14 thirds to rank seventh.

"This is the first year that I'm planning to ride straight through in Nebraska," Orona said. "I'd rather stay here than ride at Denver. I think I can ride more horses here.

He said he plans on helping Ladd in Colorado train his younger horses for racing after the Atokad Park meet in South Sioux City ends in early November.

Besides Nebraska tracks, Orona has also ridden at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark., the Chicago area and Phoenix.

Trying to maintain his weight at about 112 pounds has been no problem for Orona. "I've done a lot of jogging this summer since it's been so hot. It's really helped me keep my weight down."

Nevertheless, Orona has no regrets about choosing the State Fairgrounds' meet this summer.

"I've really had good luck so far here. I just hope I can get on as many horses as I can in Lincoln," he said.

Tsuluk Destroyed

Tsuluk hurt himself while running into the stretch drive of the six-furlong chase for $2,000 claimers. After surveying the damage, it was decided to humanely destroy the horse.

He was making his racing comback this season at the State Fairgrounds. Tsuluk won his first start on July 15 by six lengths and then ran second to Miss Shipshape on July 24. Those were his only two races this year.

'New' Steward

He replaced Jim Hall, the regular steward, who was in Grand Island visiting his wife who had just undergone surgery in a Grand Island hospital.

Meier Triumphs

Jockey Randy Meier scored his first feature race win here this year when he guided Paul Goetowski's Monte Viso to victory in the $2,500 featured seventh race Tuesday at the State Fairgrounds.

"He ran just as I planned it. I made my move at about the three-eighths pole," Meier said. "I can't remember when I won a feature race here last. I think it was last year."

Meier held Monte Viso off the pace until the backstretch run of the mile and one-eighth chase that attracted nine contestants. Then he made his move which proved successful in the time of 1:56.

As the 5-2 second favorite, Monte Viso returned $7.60, $5.00 and $3.80. Pauline Schaffer's Vicky Capri, ridden by Jim Bazer, placed for $8.20 and $5.80 and Golden Key Stable's Bishop Brown, ridden by Dan Switzer, showed for $7.80.

Heat Hurts

Tuesday's 90-degree heat and high humidity took its toll on the races as the season's smallest crowd, 4,799, bet the third-lowest mutuel totals this season.

The handle was $291,007, which was only about $5,000 behind the corresponding date of last year.

"Under the circumstances, I was pleased with the crowd and handle," noted State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt.

Three Winners

Winning selections included Title Please ($6.00) in the third, Rosie Redbird ($9.00) in the fourth and Monte Viso ($7.60) in the seventh.

Greer Gets 3

Jockey Tom Greer took riding honors Tuesday with three winners.

He triumphed aboard the Kemling Bros., Inc.'s Title Please, Charlie Murnan's Rosie Redbird and Chet Youngs' Gamblin Frank ($8.40). He also tallied seconds on Mike Kemling's Zippi's Magic and Dan Chatterson's Sally Ran.

He was unplaced on just one horse, Larry Donlin's Ala Man in the sixth as he tallied three wins and two seconds on six mounts.

Tuesday's results, Wednesday's entries, page 35.

'Sad' Aunt Priscilla Loses

Aunt Priscilia Loses $4

I was so unhappy yesterday at the State Fairgrounds I just cried all the way home.

It wasn't so much that I lost $4, but that sweet little Tsuluk had to be destroyed after hurting himself in the fifth race. I always hate to see horses hurt, but that's one of the risks of the game.

Anyway, I lost $2 when my Rep's Bar tried so hard but finished third in the second and on poor Tsuluk. That lowered my $104 spree fund to $91.80 and marked the sixth straight day I couldn't get one of my darlings in a winner.

But, back to business. On Wednesday's program, I'm going to put my $2 win tickets on Homerunner in the fifth and on Little Bit Salty in the sixth.

THE LINCOLN STAR
Sports

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Sure, the Omaha Benson halfback has designs this fall on playing Big Eight football his freshman season at Kansas.

But the Jayhawks aren't top priority. The KU School of Religion is. Bass will study to become a Baptist minister.

"The ministry is my main goal," he said here Monday at the North training camp for the 17th Shrine Bowl football game Aug. 9 at Lincoln's Memorial Stadium.

This summer, Bass has served as recreational director for a vacation bible school at Salem Baptist Church in north Omaha.

"Helping other people, doing things for them, is a big chunk of my life," the three-time all-stater said. "I used to go to church because my parents made me.

"When I was about 10, I turned away for a couple years," he added. "Then in ninth grade, I changed to the Baptist Church and it's been my main source of inspiration. Reverend (J.C.) Wade is truly a great man in our church. I'd like to accomplish some of the same things as a minister."

No doubt, Bass knows what it's like to overcome obstacles. Monday he officially weighed in at 142 pounds, perhaps the lightest in Shrine Bowl history. He's also only 5-6.

"I had been a steady 152, but I lost about 10 pounds working the graveyard shift (11 p.m. to 7.30 a.m.) at the post office this summer," Bass offered. "I hope to gain it all back."

KU's hoping for even more. The Jayhawks asked him to report at 160 pounds for the start of fall drills in August.

"I haven't lost any strength," insisted Bass. "I've been working mostly on my speed. It's down to a consistent :04.4 or .04.5."

Apparently, size was Nebraska's biggest worry concerning Bass, even though the Cornhuskers offered him a full football scholarship.

Bass, also a starting guard on the Bunnies' state Class A semifinal basketball team last winter, said he didn't get enough time to visit the campuses he wanted.

"I've gotten a lot of negative reaction on not going to Nebraska," admitted Bass. "People tell me I wasn't very smart. But I'm the one who's going to school for four years.

"I just didn't feel at home at Nebraska," he explained. "They pressed and I wasn't ready. I felt if they thought I was good enough and had any plans for me, they'd have waited another week."

This next month should be interesting for Bass. He's getting his first exposure to the wishbone offense under North head coach Larry Jacobsen of Omaha Burke.

He views it as a valuable prelude to his chances at Kansas this fall since first-year Jayhawk coach Bud Moore also will use the wishbone.

"Things could be wide open at Kansas," Bass predicted. "The way I see it, those people just have a spring practice jump on me and a lot's left to be proven."

Bass will work at halfback for the North team. His outside running speed and shifty maneuvers to the inside could represent the North's chief offensive threat.

Kansas also has plans for Bass at halfback and possibly instant value as a kick returner. "If they don't see me at halfback, I could wind up at split end," Bass aid.

Whatever happens, Bass knows the direction in which he's headed.

"I've wanted to be a minister since I was 16-years-old," he pointed out. "Nothing has happened to change my mind."

Football-Baseball Switch Not Easy Choice: Steiner

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Fremont — Every year you hear stories about Shrine football players passing up American Legion tournaments in favor of the annual gridiron clash.

Just by talking to Columbus Scotus graduate Dan Steiner, it's easy to see how difficult making that decision was for him.

"I really love baseball," the 6-2, 218-pound offensive lineman said. "But I'm going to be playing football in the future and when I made the decision to play in the Shrine Bowl, I figured it would be a good start."

Steiner's future football will be played on the same astro-turf as the 17th annual Shrine Bowl, the University of Nebraska's Memorial Stadium.

"The Nebraska coaching staff didn't make any requests as to what they wanted me to do about playing in the Shrine Bowl," Steiner said. "They more or less leave the decision up to the individuals."

When Steiner made the decision to play in the Shrine Bowl over legion ball, it was "a long time ago." He admits even then it was a tough decision.

"I knew we (Columbus) would have a good legion team," he said. "But I didn't know how good."

The Columbus legion team won its division of the Cornhusker League but lost in the playoffs to Lincoln Northeast Judds Brothers in extra innings just two days before camp opened.

Columbus will get another shot at Judds when area tournaments open Thursday at Hastings, but Steiner won't be catching.

"I'd love to be there," he said. "If we qualify for state I'll go back and play if I still fit in the picture."

In the past, the Shrine game has always conflicted with the state tournament. But with the earlier start because of the pro game at Memorial Stadium August 16, it just interferes with area play.

He'll be facing a little different assignment, however, as Jacobsen plans to utilize him at offensive guard instead of his customary tackle position under Scotus coach Jim Puetz, an assistant to Jacobsen.

"I have to learn how to go out and get the linebacker from the guard position," Steiner said. "At tackle you were just head-on your man."

Another technique that goes with the guard position is pulling to lead a play.

"I really like to pull so I think I'll enjoy playing guard," he added. "We pulled from the tackle at Scotus, so I won't have any trouble adapting to that."

If Steiner could, he'd like to "pull" Thursday and play baseball, but since he can't, he'd like to meet the legion team at state with a North Shrine victory under his belt.

Bell Chooses Wood

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Willie Wood, former All-Pro defensive back with the Green Bay Packers, Tuesday was named head coach of the Philadelphia Bell in the World Football League and became the first black professional head football coach in 50 years.

Wood, named to succeed Ron Waller who resigned last week for "personal reasons," said his goal was to create a winning team and play down the uniqueness of his appointment.

"I hope that somewhere down the road we will have a winning team and we can play up the fact that the Philadelphia Bell has a winning team and play down me as a black coach," Wood told a news conference.

Wood noted the irony of his being named to the position on the same day that the late Emlen Tunnell, a pro football Hall of Famer as a defensive back and a black, was being buried in a Philadelphia suburb.

Wood, who said he patterned his style from Tunnell when the two were with the Green Bay Packers, said he thought Tunnell

The last black man to coach a pro football team was Fritz Pollard, who coached the Hammond Pros of the National Football League from 1923-25.

Wood, who was signed as a free agent by Green Bay in 1960 and went on to play 12 years in the National Football League, has only three days to prepare his new club for its league opener against Hawaii here Saturday night.

"If I can put forth all the energy that I have stored in me I am sure we can have success," the 38-year-old Wood said.

"Whenever you have a change of administrations there are problems I do anticipate problems but of what kind and degree I don't know.

"As I said before, we have the finest bunch of players I know. I don't anticipate any problems with them," he said.

Wood who served along with Waller as assistant coaches of the San Diego Chargers in the NFL, came to the Bell in the spring as defensive coordinator.

After Waller resigned following what was rumored to be personal differences with Bell owner John Bosacco and several of the new Bell players, Assistant Coach Joe Gardi was named interim coordinator and led the team to a 30-21 victory over the Portland Thunder in an exhibition game last Sunday night.

Bosacco described the situation over selecting a coach as "agonizing" and said Gardi would remain in an administrative position "directly responsible to me."

Bloomington, Ind. — Street and Smith's football yearbook, the oldest of the pre-season magazines about collegiate football, rates the Nebraska-Indiana game Sept. 20 in NU's Memorial Stadium a toss-up.

This came as somewhat of a shock to Hoosier fans, who can't forget that Coach Lee Corso has won just three games in his first two seasons here. The more cynical Indiana fan says the only toss-up is whether the Hoosiers show up for the game.

Corso, who bubbles with enthusiasm despite his poor record at Indiana, doesn't agree with his critics. "We feel our football program has reached the point where we can be competitive in every game, including Nebraska," he said.

His main concern as far as making that statement come true is injuries. He doesn't feel his overall depth is good enough to stand the shock of key injuries.

"We're getting closer, though," he said, mentioning linebacker and defensive end as two spots that are well manned.

Only Win Was Minnesota

Indiana's lone victory in 1974 came over Minnesota, 34-3, just one week after Nebraska clobbered the Gophers, 54-0. Minnesota played without Tony Dungy, regular quarterback, against both the Huskers and Hoosiers.

Street and Smith's credibility can be questioned since the magazine's projection also has Indiana rated a "toss-up" against North Carolina State, the favorite to win the Atlantic Coast Conference.

It also is the only pre-season magazine I've seen which doesn't rank Nebraska among the top 20 teams in the nation. It rated the Huskers third in the Big Eight Conference behind Oklahoma and Missouri.

Nebraska hasn't played Indiana since 1959 when the Hoosiers came to Lincoln and won 23-7.

The all-time series between the schools has Indiana winning nine games, Nebraska taking three and three games ending in ties. The series starting in September will include Nebraska visits to Bloomington next season and in 1978 a return game by the Hoosiers in Lincoln in 1977.

Huskers Sixth In Wins

It also includes a list of major college teams with the winningest records in the period from 1969 through 1974. The Huskers are sixth with a .857 winning average on 54 wins, nine losses and three ties.

Football Action joins several other magazine predictions of a rise in fortunes of the Colorado Buffaloes. It has them third in the conference and calls the Buff offense "high-powered" and says the defense is hopeful.

Unlike Street and Smith, Football Action ranks Missouri as the probable fifth place Big Eight team, putting Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma State ahead of the Tigers.

Phils' Underwood Halts Pirates On Four Hits

By Associated Press

The Philadelphia Phillies continued their mastery over the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night with a 5-1 victory, the ninth straight time they've defeated their cross-state rivals.

Rookie Tom Underwood stopped the Bucs on four hits and contributed a two-run double as the Phils closed to within 3½ games of the front-running Pirates in the National League East.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta beat Los Angeles 4-2, Chicago edged Montreal 4-3, San Francisco downed Cincinnati 4-2, Houston dumped San Diego 6-2 and St. Louis split a pair with New York, winning 5-3 and losing 11-6.

In the American League, Milwaukee blanked Boston 4-0, Baltimore rocked Cleveland 7-1, New York defeated Detroit 4-2 and Kansas City topped Minnesota 5-2.

Ron Fairly drove in three runs with two singles and a home run in the first game for St. Louis while Del Unser had four hits and three RBI for the Mets in the nightcap.

Lee May and Bobby Grich drove in three runs each and Mike Torrez tossed a six-hitter for Baltimore.

Thurman Munson scored two runs and Graig Nettles and Lou Piniella knocked in one each for the Yankees.

Pizza Hut Tops Falstaff, 7-4

Bob Kellar singled and scored on errors in the top of the seventh inning to help Pizza Hut topple error-plagued Falstaff 7-4 in AAA fast pitch action Tuesday night at Ballard Field.

Herb Schrader collected three RBIs for the winners while Ken Forbes paced Falstaff with three hits and three runs.

Savings Might Be Better Than Life Insurance

Jane Bryant Quinn

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

NEW YORK — An enormous amount of life insurance is being written on children. Last year, the dollar value of new policies taken out on the lives of youngsters was $8.2 billion, according to the Life Insurance Institute — nearly 5% of all the insurance sold.

But what's the point of all this? Do children really need life insurance? To answer this question, you have to ask yourself why you buy life insurance in the first place.

The fundamental reason for owning life insurance is to offer some measure of financial protection to the people you support. When a family breadwinner dies, insurance proceeds replace his income — helping to pay the mortgage and put food on the table.

This obviously doesn't apply to children. If your young son or daughter died, there would be a dreadful emotional loss, but rarely a financial loss. No reason for insurance here. So why else would one insure a child?

One commonly offered rationale is that the younger you start, the cheaper the insurance is. You can buy a $10,000 paid-up-at 65 policy on a 10-year-old boy for around $115 a year, whereas at age 21 it will cost around $152 a year (all rates cited are from the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co.).

But the plain fact is that it's not cheaper, no matter how it looks to you on paper. Premiums, and the rate at which cash values are credited, are carefully calculated to pay for every year of insurance you get.

No company is going to charge less to insure someone for 55 years (age 10 to 65) than to insure that same person for only 44 years (age 21 to 65). (If you still believe that more insurance costs less, I have a nice little bridge going over to Brooklyn that I'd like to sell you.)

At age 10, a $10,000 paid-up-at-65 policy costs $115; at age 21, it costs $512. So if you buy it later you pay $37 a year more. But if you buy it later, you'll have saved 11 years of premium payments.

Assume you put $115 a year into the bank at 5% (compounded quarterly), instead of into insurance. By the time the child is 21, you will have accumulated $1,725, according to the First National City Bank in New York.

Now assume you withdraw $37 a year to pay for the extra insurance premium at age 21. That nest egg will finance the extra premium payment all the way to age 65. And thanks to the effect of interest compounding, by age 65 that same bank account will have built up to $9,304. (This calculation doesn't include taxes, but they don't make a substantial difference.)

Another reason given for buying insurance on a youngster is to protect his insurability. If something happened to his health and he became uninsurable as an adult, he'd at least always have that juvenile policy you bought him. And for an extra $10 a year on a $10,000 policy, you can guarantee him the right to purchase $140,000 worth of additional insurance (at stated times, up to age 40), no matter what his health.

This is a more reasonable argument than the one about lower cost. But is it really a risk worth insuring? The chance of your child's becoming uninsurable before his early twenties is very small.

I don't know how small because the Life Insurance Institute doesn't have any good numbers on it (even though it's supposed to be an insurer's job to tell you what the risks are before you buy a policy). But you can tell how rarely a child becomes too ill to insure in adulthood by the tiny sum ($10, in the above example) it costs to guarantee his right to a lot more insurance.

It would be nice to protect insurability, on the outside chance that your child's health will be bad a few years from now. But then, there are a lot of eventualities it would be nice to insure against. Life is full of small risks — almost any of which you can lay off on an insurance company if you really want to.

But when your budget is limited, it seems to me that your money is better spent insuring the family breadwinner, who is much more likely than a child to become uninsurable as the years ago by. In my next column, I'll deal with more of the arguments for and against insuring children.

Early Rally Sidetracked, Prices Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation worries sidetracked an early rally in the stock market Tuesday and drove prices lower again in moderate trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 8 points in the first half hour, wound up with a 2.97 loss at 824.86.

The closely watched average now has fallen 56.95 points over the past two weeks.

Declines outpaced gainers 949 to 455 among the 1,811 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange after trailing by more than 3 to 1 earlier.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .31 to 47.20, and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was down .50 at 88.19.

The market's sharp but short-lived early rally followed the government's report that its index of leading economic indicators climbed 1.9 per cent in June for its fourth consecutive monthly rise.

Adding to the favorable outlook was an assertion by Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, that there appeared to be a broad base in the economy for a recovery from the recession.

But the Session's course seemed to turn on a later remark by Burns during his appearance before the joint economic committee of the House and Senate.

Burns said he was concerned that recent purchases of U.S. grain by the Soviet Union would lead to substantially higher food prices in this country.

Brokers noted that the market already was edgy about inflation prospects. Last week White House economist Alan Greenspan said the government's wholesale price index would probably show a good-sized increase for July because of higher grain prices.

MGIC Investment dropped 1⅜ to 13⅛ in active trading. The company reported sharply lower earnings from continuing operations for the first half of the year.

Futures Prices Rise Sharply

Chicago (AP) — Corn and soybean futures prices advanced sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday after being carried along earlier by the price gains in corn and soybeans.

Traders responded to the severe dry spell in Iowa which, if it continues, could cut deeply into early estimates or record corn crop and large soybean harvest. The Iowa secretary of agriculture said Monday that the state could lose as much as half of its corn crop if there is no rain.

At one point during the day soybeans were as much as 23 cents a bushel higher and corn closed the limit 10 cents higher for three of the five contracts.

Small Supply, Good Demand Bolster Prices

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Bolstered by rather small supplies and a fairly good demand, hog prices rose sharply on the Omaha livestock market Tuesday, but a lag in activity on the wholesale market sent cattle prices lower.

Tuesday's hog run was estimated at about 4,000 head, with trade on barrows and gilts called moderately active. The butcher trend was 50-to-75 cents higher. Top-grading uniform handyweights cleared at $60. Slightly less desirables brought $59.25-$59.75, and eyes are now focused on Omaha's all-time butcher top of $62.50, which was set August 13, 1973.

Sows were unevenly higher. Offerings weighing in from 290-to-400 pounds trended $1.50-to-$2.25 higher, while 400-to-600 pounders were $1.00-to-$1.25 higher.

Morning Briefing

A Sports Roundup

BASEBALL

Sparky Anderson's Cincinnati Reds have broken many marks this year. But Monday night the Reds broke a mark they figured they'd never reach. Anderson set the mark Monday night when he lifted starter Gary Nolan, giving the club 44 consecutive games in which the starting pitcher wasn't around when the game ended. The old mark was set by the San Diego Padres in 1968. But while the Padres won only 15 and lost 28 during their record setting stint, the Reds are a torrid 32-12 since Don Gullett pitched their last complete game on June 11.

Outfielder-first baseman Mickey Stanley was lost to Detroit for the remainder of the season with a thumb injury, nearly a year after a hand injury cost him his job as the Tiger's regular center fielder.

Charlston Charlies' second baseman Willie Randolph, the International League's top hitter was called up by the Pittsburgh Pirates to replace the injured Rennie Stennett.

BASKETBALL

University of Minnesota athletic director Paul Giel is cutting short a visit to Europe to return home to begin the search for a new basketball coach. Giel was in Europe with the Gopher hockey team when basketball coach Bill Musselman was named head coach of the San Diego Sails in the ABA.

Gus Williams, Southern California guard who led the Pac 8 in scoring last season signed a multi-year contract with the Golden State Warriors.

FOOTBALL

Linebacker Bruce Bannon, acquired last week by the San Diego Chargers from Miami, has retired.

Ron Mayo, a 6-3, 225-pound tight end from Morgan State was traded to the San Diego Chargers from the Baltimore Colts for an undisclosed draft choice.

Wide receiver Lynn Swann, who missed last year's College All-Star game due to the players strike, will miss it again because of a pulled hamstring muscle, the Steelers announced.

OTHER SPORTS

A stomach virus has caused Billie Jean King to miss a World Team Tennis match between the New York Sets and the Indianapolis Loves at Indianapolis and break her string of 78 consecutive WTT matches.

Tony Trabert is expected to be named captain of the U.S. Davis Cup team and it appears likely that Jimmy Connors will boycott the team again. Connors refused to play for the team when recently retired Dennis Ralston captained the squad.

U.S. Amateur champion Jerry Pate and Jay Haas of Wake Forest were among 10 members of the 1975 All-American Collegiate golf team announced. Jamie Gonzales of Oklahoma was also honored.

Hall of Fame jockey Eric Guerin, who rode 2,708 winners with earnings of more than $17 million, has ended his riding career. Guerin was noted for guiding Native Dancer to 21 victories in 23 lifetime starts.

Syracuse Tops Falls City

Syracuse will now advance to the state Class B tourney in York, beginning Thursday.

Owners Dispute Reports

CHICAGO (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles Finley and Chicago White Sox owner John Allyn disputed reports Tuesday that plans are being made for a major shift of baseball franchises involving the two teams.

"It's unfounded and without substance," said Finley of a Chicago Tribune report that discussions are under way to move Finley's team to Chicago and Allyn's franchise to Seattle.

"We know there are baseball clubs having financial difficulties. Teams like the White Sox and the Minnesota Twins. The Athletics aren't having trouble financially, but we are having trouble drawing the number of fans you expect to draw with the three-time world champions," Finley said.

Finley added in an interview, "But I don't want to comment any further. I don't know anything about it."

Allyn was almost as vehement in denying the proposed transfer.

"I don't think there's a chance that the White Sox will leave Chicago," Allyn said in an interview. "He (Finley) has commitments in Oakland that I don't think he can get out of."

"I have no intention of moving the club to Seattle," he said. "I also don't know of anyone in Seattle who's interested in putting up the money for a baseball team."

The Tribune said it has been unable to verify the proposed switch but said the plans are common talk in financial and baseball circles and only two problems remain to be solved before it can become reality.

The newspaper reported that Finley must suffer no financial loss in a final accounting with the Alameda County Coliseum, which has the Athletics signed to a long-term lease.

Sam's Captures Two Victories

Randy Daldy slugged a three-run homer to pace Sam's to a win over Wentz Heating & Plumbing, 13-9 in the opener of AAA slow pitch softball action Tuesday night at Ballard Field.

In the second game Wentz got some revenge as it topped Olympia 11-10 behind a three-run homer by Alex Walter.

Then in the nightcap Sam's took their second win handing Olympia it's second loss of the evening in a 8-4 decisions.

Jaynes To See Doctor: Falcons

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons sent newly acquired quarterback David Jaynes to a doctor Tuesday to see if the former Kansas star has a sore arm.

Pat Peppler, general manager of the Falcons, said there appeared to be something wrong with the way Jaynes was throwing the ball.

Peppler said if Jaynes is hurt the Falcons have the option of renegotiating the trade last week which sent wide receiver Tom Geredine to the Kansas City Chiefs.

Curtis Shoots Ace At Hillcrest Course

Curtis aced the 157-yard No. 8 hole with a seven iron. The feat was witnessed by playing partners Dale Wismer, Em Wicks and Ron Walters.

Arson Charged

North, South In Contrast

By The Associated Press

Hampered by heat, the South squad went through its first contact drills Tuesday in preparation for the upcoming Shrine All Star game in Lincoln.

The mercury hit 94-degrees as the team went through its afternoon workout at Doane College in Crete, and some of the players were "dragging" according to head coach Jim Nolan of Minden.

Nolan has scheduled practice sessions in the morning and afternoon, but may opt to change to morning and evening sessions if the current heat wave continues.

After just two days of workouts, Nolan said he is already starting to think about the starters in the Aug. 9 clash in Memorial Stadium, but nothing is definite.

He said the defense is ahead of the offense, but that he expected the sloppy ball handling and offensive line play to improve greatly.

There were no serious injuries reported during Tuesday's sessions, but there were a lot of salt tablets consumed.

Jacobsen said the quarterback and halfback spots are still up for grabs.

Jacobsen is running his squad through three daily workouts in the plus 90 degree heat in Midland and said the players are faring "not too bad really."

He said his 33 squad members would continue the three daily workouts for the time being, however contact will be light all the way up to the game.

He said his reasoning was that the squad consists of "good players who know how to hit."

Bryant To Court

Los Angeles (AP) — Running back Cullen Bryant of the Los Angeles Rams went to court Tuesday seeking a temporary restraining order against his transfer to the Detroit Lions under the so-called Rozelle Rule.

Coaches Clinic Underway Soon

Elkhorn — Registrations for the annual summer coaches clinic of the Nebraska Coaches Association is moving ahead of previous years, clinic director Gene Kruger of Elkhorn said.

Entering the last full week of July, advance registrations have reached 400, Kruger said, with the state's coaches having the remainder of the week to mail registration materials to association secretary-treasurer Bun Galloway of Lincoln.

The advance registration realizes each coach a savings of $2 over the $20 registration fee at the time of the clinic. The clinic will be at Pershing Auditorium Aug. 13-14-15.

Kruger said Nebraska defensive football specialist Monte Kiffin has been added to the list of clinicians. He will appear on Thursday's program. North Carolina State football coach Lou Holtz is scheduled to appear on the opening day only.

Other clinicians include Bill James of Bellevue and Lee Zentic of Lincoln East in football; George Nicodemus of the JFK College Patriettes in girls basketball; Bobby Knight of Indiana, Walt Shublom of Kansas City Junior College, and Joe Dean of the Converse Rubber Company in boys basketball; Bruce Wilde of Ford Dodge, Iowa in volleyball; Joe Dowler in wrestling, the Wyoming Cowboy mat coach; and Rob Timmons of Kansas and Wayne Haensel of South Dakota State in track.

Kruger expects more than 1,000 coaches to register for the seventh annual clinic.

Colts-Falcons Tickets Remain

Nebraska ticket manager Jim Pittenger said all professional football ticket orders for the Colts-Falcons game will be filled and sent out by Wednesday.

Pittenger said that any order received after will be filled immediately.

Seats remain for the Baltimore-Atlanta contest on Aug. 16 at Nebraska's Memorial Stadium beginning at 2 p.m. Tickets may be obtained at the Nebraska ticket office, 117 South Stadium, Lincoln, 68508.

Jets, Namath Reportedly Agree

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath, who sought $500,000 a year to renew his contract with the New York Jets, settled for slightly less Tuesday when he reached basic agreement to quarterback the club for the next two years at a salary which will make him the highest paid player in professional football history.

A club spokesman said: "Details still have to be worked out, but we have a basic agreement." It is believed Namath compromised after several weeks of bargaining with Jet President Phil Iselin and settled for a two-year pact worth $850,000.

The Jets scheduled a "major news conference" for Wednesday afternoon at their Hofstra University training camp where details of the agreement would be announced. Namath was expected to work out with his teammates after meeting the media.

Iselin and Namath's attorney, Jimmy Walsh, reached basic agreement over the telephone late Monday night and expect to have the details worked out in time for Wednesday's news conference.

Iselin, speaking on the telephone from Monmouth Park race course, said: "Joe was very fair to deal with. He's always said if he's going to play any place, it would be with the Jets. This is his home.

"I'm glad it's all over with. Now we can get down to business."

Last season Namath, 32, escaped serious injury and led the Jets to a 7-7 record, the club winning its last six games.

Namath has kept himself in shape at his youth camp in Massachusetts and currently in Tuscaloosa, Ala., where he has continued his training program.

Earlier this month Namath signed a 20-year contract with a cosmetics company which will earn him $250,000 a year. He will appear in TV commercials for the firm and also act in an advisory capacity.

Last year Namath entered into a three-year contract with a shirt company which will net him $3 million.

Namath became a free agent May 1 and then turned down a $4 million offer from the Chicago Winds to join the World Football League. The contract was for a multi-year period with an option of buying into the club when he quit playing

At the time, Namath said: "I'll play in New York or retire."

Val's, Stan's Suffer Losses

Val's was ousted by Grand Island Palm Gardens, 6-5, to finish with a 3-2 mark, while Stan's suffered its final defeat to Broken Bow, 4-2, to end up 2-2 for the meet.

Earlier, two other Lincoln clubs, Misty Lounge and Pizza Hut were eliminated. In Pizza Hut's final loss, hurler Dave Taladay pitched 6 2/3 innings of perfect ball but then blew a 3-0 lead and eventually lost in extra innings.

Runoff Election Appears Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic contender John A. Durkin, reversing his previous position, called Tuesday for a runoff election to determine who should be New Hampshire's junior senator.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, said that in all probability the Senate would go along with the request and send the lengthy controversy back to New Hampshire's voters.

Only Monday, Durkin had flatly rejected a proposal by his Republican opponent, Louis C. Wyman, for a new election Oct. 7. The two had engaged last November in the closest U.S. Senate race in history.

Initially, Wyman had a 355-vote edge over Durkin, but two partial reviews reversed the results. The first recount gave Durkin a 10-vote margin, but a review recount gave Wyman a two-vote edge.

The matter then was placed before the Senate, where the Democratic majority has stood firm on deciding the race in the Senate despite a continuing campaign by Republicans for a new election.

Wyman said in a statement that he was "pleased that Mr. Durkin wants a new election. I want a new election, and so do the people of New Hampshire. I'm glad that the Senate can now proceed with the many important issues before it." Senate Republicans also were pleased.

Durkin said in his announcement, televised in Manchester, N.H., that he will meet with Senate leaders on Wednesday to discuss the possibility of a new election.

"I want there to be no doubt about who sent John Durkin to Washington — and why," the Democrat said. "I do not want to be voted into the Senate by members of the Senate. So let's get on with a new election."

Prosecutor Won't Proceed Against Former Hunt Lawyer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Watergate Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr. has decided not to prosecute E. Howard Hunt's former lawyer who accepted more than $100,000 in secret cash deliveries for the original Watergate defendants, sources said Tuesday.

There was testimony during the Watergate cover-up trial, which ended Jan. 1, which directly contradicted what attorney William O. Bittman said under oath.

But after a three-month review, Ruth has accepted a recommendation not to seek a grand jury indictment against Bittman, the sources said.

Because Bittman had such close ties to at least one former member of the prosecutor's staff and was integrally involved in early Watergate investigations, an outside lawyer was hired by Ruth to review the case.

The sources declined to name the outside lawyer, but said he found a conviction against Bittman was doubtful.

Bittman, a Democrat with a reputation as a tough federal prosecutor when Robert F. Kennedy was attorney general, headed one of two successful prosecutions of former Teamsters union boss Jimmy Hoffa.

The other was led by James F. Neal, who was also the chief prosecutor in the Watergate cover-up trial. Until Watergate, Neal and Bittman were close friends.

Bittman was a prosperous Washington attorney in July 1972, when he became one of a succession of lawyers hired by Watergate conspirator Hunt, now serving a prison term.

Testimony in the cover-up trial showed Bittman went far beyond the role usually played by a lawyer, taking night time deliveries of cash in his outside mailbox and holding at least one secret meeting in a car.

Bittman insisted he never knew that the cash payments were intended to keep the original defendants silent on the involvement of higher level officials in the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters June 17, 1972.

At the cover-up trial, however, Hunt produced a memo in which he had warned the Nixon White House that the hush money payments must continue if he and the other defendants were to remain quiet.

Hunt testified that he discussed the memo with Bittman. Austin Mittler, a lawyer who once worked in the same law firm with Bittman, also testified Bittman showed him the memo.

Bittman said he never saw the Hunt memo until long after the extent of the Watergate scandal was known, and even then, the lawyer said he didn't believe Hunt's threats were serious.

Jobs Bill, Approved By Senate, Alters Sewage Money Formula

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday approved a sweeping public works jobs bill that would authorize $2.1 billion for projects and provide a new form of assistance to cities and states facing stiff budget pressures.

The bill, passed 65-28 and sent to the House, also would change the formula by which $9 billion in previously impounded sewage treatment funds would be distributed to the states. Seventeen states would lose money, while 33 would gain.

The new formula for distributing federal sewage treatment grants was approved 61-34 and will allocate the $9 billion according to population and need. The old formula considered need only.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., said that without the change 10 states would have received 64% of the money.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, whose state would lose $30.6 million, said the new formula would penalize industrial states and bring the sewage treatment construction programs to a "screeching halt."

Muskie won Senate approval of a new type of aid program for cities and states hard-pressed by the recession. His amendement, passed 58-36, would establish a fund to be distributed to cities and states with high joblessness when the nation's unemployment rate exceeds 6%.

No city or state with less than 6% unemployment would qualify for the aid, which would amount to $1.75 billion under the current 8.6% national jobless rate. The higher the unemployment rate, the more money a state or city would receive.

Muskie said the amendment, which could authorize up to $5.2 billion over three years, represents sound fiscal policy during a recession since it will keep states and cities from cutting services or increasing taxes to offset revenue losses due to high unemployment.

Such actions by local governments, Muskie said, undermine federal efforts to pump more money into the economy to offset the recession.

Opponents said the Muskie amendment increases the bill's chance to be vetoed. President Ford has asked Congress to undertake no anti-recessionary programs except the tax cut already enacted.

Two Arrested In Colonels' Slayings

Tehran, Iran (UPI)—Iranian security agents have captured two left-wing "terrorists" involved in the ambush slaying of two U.S. Air Force colonels in Tehran May 21, the government Pars news agency reported Tuesday.

The agency said police arrested the two Iranians following a gunfight Monday. It gave no further details of the gun battle but said the security men seized documents outlining plans to assassinate other Iranian and foreign officials.

Police identified the two men as Wahid Rahman Afrakhteh, whom they said was a ringleader of the clandestine "Islamic Marxist Group," and Mohsen Khamoushi.

They said that under interrogation by security officials, Afrakhteh confessed to taking part in the assassination of the two Americans and also to involvement in the similar ambush slayings of an Iranian U.S. consulate employee in Tehran July 3 and of an Iranian general and his driver earlier this year.

Afrakhteh also told his interrogators that Khamoushi and two other members of the Marxist group were involved in all the killings, Pars said.

The American officers killed May 21 were Col. Paul R. Shaffer, 45, of Dayton, Ohio, and Lt. Col. Jack H. Turner, 45, of Carbondale, Ill. They were stationed in Tehran with the 1,000-member U.S. Army Military Advisers' Mission.

They were ambushed outside Shaffer's home as they were leaving for work in an official automobile. The terrorists forced the colonels' car to the curb, riddled them with machinegun bullets and then fled.

The Marxist group is opposed to the regime of the shah and its close relationship with the United States.

Woman Suggests Male Bordello

LODI, Calif. (AP) — Anne Meyers wants to open a house of prostitution for women.

Mrs. Meyers, a mother of four, has applied for a business license in Lodi, an agricultural town 10 miles north of Stockton, in hopes of opening a male bordello atop the beer outlet she operates with her husband.

But she admits she is not as interested in opening a house of prostitution for women as she is in striking a blow against laws she says discriminate against women.

"I read an article in a newspaper July 17 from Brockton, Mass., entitled 'Male Prostitution No Crime' where a judge ruled that it was illegal for females to be prostitutes, but not for males since the law didn't mention them," Mrs. Meyers said in an interview.

"Really, what I'm doing this for is to test the law. I've talked to men and women about this and they're all angry about inequality.

"Most people ask me if I would go through with it if I got the business license, and the answer is that I, naturally, would," she said. "I'm a businesswoman and I think a venture like this would be very profitable."

But Lodi City Atty. Robert Mullen doesn't believe Mrs. Meyers will get her business license.

"We can't grant it. We've got a (state) penal code section that says any person who engages in prostitution is breaking the law, and we don't license illegal businesses," he said.

"Besides, we could be subject to a suit by women if we allowed male prostitutes. What's good for the gander is good for goose, I guess."

—Staying Ahead—

Savings Might Be Better Than Life Insurance

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

NEW YORK — An enormous amount of life insurance is being written on children. Last year, the dollar value of new policies taken out on the lives of youngsters was $8.2 billion, according to the Life Insurance Institute — nearly 5% of all the insurance sold.

But what's the point of all this? Do children really need life insurance? To answer this question, you have to ask yourself why you buy life insurance in the first place.

The fundamental reason for owning life insurance is to offer some measure of financial protection to the people you support. When a family breadwinner dies, insurance proceeds replace his income — helping to pay the mortgage and put food on the table.

This obviously doesn't apply to children. If your young son or daughter died, there would be a dreadful emotional loss, but rarely a financial loss. No reason for insurance here. So why else would one insure a child?

One commonly offered rationale is that the younger you start, the cheaper the insurance is. You can buy a $10,000 paid-up-at 65 policy on a 10-year-old boy for around $115 a year, whereas at age 21 it will cost around $152 a year (all rates cited are from the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co.).

But the plain fact is that it's not cheaper, no matter how it looks to you on paper. Premiums, and the rate at which cash values are credited, are carefully calculated to pay for every year of insurance you get.

No company is going to charge less to insure someone for 55 years (age 10 to 65) than to insure that same person for only 44 years (age 21 to 65). (If you still believe that more insurance costs less, I have a nice little bridge going over to Brooklyn that I'd like to sell you.)

At age 10, a $10,000 paid-up-at-65 policy costs $115; at age 21, it costs $512. So if you buy it later you pay $37 a year more. But if you buy it later, you'll have saved 11 years of premium payments.

Assume you put $115 a year into the bank at 5% (compounded quarterly), instead of into insurance. By the time the child is 21, you will have accumulated $1,725, according to the First National City Bank in New York.

Now assume you withdraw $37 a year to pay for the extra insurance premium at age 21. That nest egg will finance the extra premium payment all the way to age 65. And thanks to the effect of interest compounding, by age 65 that same bank account will have built up to $9,304. (This calculation doesn't include taxes, but they don't make a substantial difference.)

Another reason given for buying insurance on a youngster is to protect his insurability. If something happened to his health and he became uninsurable as an adult, he'd at least always have that juvenile policy you bought him. And for an extra $10 a year on a $10,000 policy, you can guarantee him the right to purchase $140,000 worth of additional insurance (at stated times, up to age 40), no matter what his health.

This is a more reasonable argument than the one about lower cost. But is it really a risk worth insuring? The chance of your child's becoming uninsurable before his early twenties is very small.

I don't know how small because the Life Insurance Institute doesn't have any good numbers on it (even though it's supposed to be an insurer's job to tell you what the risks are before you buy a policy). But you can tell how rarely a child becomes too ill to insure in adulthood by the tiny sum ($10, in the above example) it costs to guarantee his right to a lot more insurance.

It would be nice to protect insurability, on the outside chance that your child's health will be bad a few years from now. But then, there are a lot of eventualities it would be nice to insure against. Life is full of small risks — almost any of which you can lay off on an insurance company if you really want to.

But when your budget is limited, it seems to me that your money is better spent insuring the family breadwinner, who is much more likely than a child to become uninsurable as the years ago by. In my next column, I'll deal with more of the arguments for and against insuring children.

Omaha Firm Awarded Potomac Pipeline Job

Wilmington, Del. (UPI) — A Nebraska firm has won a contract to build a 3.8 mile natural gas pipeline under the Potomac River as part of a link between a Cove Point, Md., receiving terminal to a pipeline network in Loudoun County, Va., the Columbia Gas System announced Tuesday.

The firm, Pentzien, Inc., of Omaha has begun moving equipment to the job site for initial clearing of a staging area at the Charles County, Md., terminal, a gas company spokesman said.

The river bottom pipeline is part of an 87-mile link. Contracts for the Maryland land portion and the Patuxent River crossing were awarded earlier.

The spokesman said around-the-clock dredging seven days a week would begin next week in the channel near the Virginia border and work toward the Maryland shore. After Sept. 1, dredging will begin on the west side of the Potomac and work toward the Pohick Bay regional park in Fairfax County, Va.

Pipeline deliveries were set for early August with pipe laying by barge to begin in early September. The spokesman said the pipe will be welded, coated, inspected and x-rayed on the barge before it is lowered into the trench from the beginning of the Maryland side.

The spokesman said the pipe's alignment five feet below the river bottom will be checked for accuracy with laser beams before back filling begins in October. The pipe will be coated with a layer of cement-based material for extra protection to make it non-buoyant, he said.

The pipeline then will be hydrostatically pressure tested and cathodically protected against corrosion, the spokesman said.

The gas, imported from Algeria, will serve customers in seven eastern and midwestern states served by Columbia Gas and Consolidated Natural Gas Co. Subsidiaries of the two firms will own the pipeline and the Cove Point terminal.

Columbia is building and will operate the $300 million terminal and pipeline. Columbia is to receive 300 million cubic feet of gas per day when it is completed and Consolidated will receive 350 million.

Contracts still must be awarded for 35 miles of pipeline from the western point of the Potomac to a compressor station near Evergreen Mills, Va., south of Leesburg.

Frontier's Profits Dip In Quarter

Denver (AP) — Frontier Airlines said its second quarter earnings were down though its first half revenues were up this year.

The company is paying 26 cents a share on stock for the second quarter of 1975 — 13 cents less than for the same period in 1974.

But the first half gross revenues for the Denver-based airline are reported at nearly $81 million, or $6 million more than a year ago.

Frontier President A. L. Feldman said Frontier's greater profits last year were the result of shifting travel patterns caused by the gas shortage.

He added that the airline has had solid earning every month this year.

Half Maffei Ransom Found With Gunman

Rome (AP) — Police clashed with four gunmen in the Sardinian mountains, killed one of them and found a sack next to him containing $536,000, officials said. The three other gunmen fled.

Authorities said the money was part of the $1.2 million ransom paid to the kidnapers of industrialist Italo Maffei, who was released after nearly two months of captivity.

Early Rally Sidetracked, Prices Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation worries sidetracked an early rally in the stock market Tuesday and drove prices lower again in moderate trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 8 points in the first half hour, wound up with a 2.97 loss at 824.86.

The closely watched average now has fallen 56.95 points over the past two weeks.

Declines outpaced gainers 949 to 455 among the 1,811 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange after trailing by more than 3 to 1 earlier.

Big Board volume increased to an even 19 million shares from Monday's 2½-month low of 14.85 million.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .31 to 47.20, and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was down .50 at 88.19.

The market's sharp but short-lived early rally followed the government's report that its index of leading economic indicators climbed 1.9 per cent in June for its fourth consecutive monthly rise.

Adding to the favorable outlook was an assertion by Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, that there appeared to be a broad base in the economy for a recovery from the recession.

But the Session's course seemed to turn on a later remark by Burns during his appearance before the joint economic committee of the House and Senate.

Burns said he was concerned that recent purchases of U.S. grain by the Soviet Union would lead to substantially higher food prices in this country.

Brokers noted that the market already was edgy about inflation prospects. Last week White House economist Alan Greenspan said the government's wholesale price index would probably show a good-sized increase for July because of higher grain prices.

MGIC Investment dropped 1⅜ to 13⅛ in active trading. The company reported sharply lower earnings from continuing operations for the first half of the year.

Futures Prices Rise Sharply

Chicago (AP) — Corn and soybean futures prices advanced sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday after being carried along earlier by the price gains in corn and soybeans.

Traders responded to the severe dry spell in Iowa which, if it continues, could cut deeply into early estimates or record corn crop and large soybean harvest. The Iowa secretary of agriculture said Monday that the state could lose as much as half of its corn crop if there is no rain.

At one point during the day soybeans were as much as 23 cents a bushel higher and corn closed the limit 10 cents higher for three of the five contracts.

Small Supply, Good Demand Bolster Prices

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Bolstered by rather small supplies and a fairly good demand, hog prices rose sharply on the Omaha livestock market Tuesday, but a lag in activity on the wholesale market sent cattle prices lower.

Tuesday's hog run was estimated at about 4,000 head, with trade on barrows and gilts called moderately active. The butcher trend was 50-to-75 cents higher. Top-grading uniform handyweights cleared at $60. Slightly less desirables brought $59.25-$59.75, and eyes are now focused on Omaha's all-time butcher top of $62.50, which was set August 13, 1973.

Sows were unevenly higher. Offerings weighing in from 290-to-400 pounds trended $1.50-to-$2.25 higher, while 400-to-600 pounders were $1.00-to-$1.25 higher.

Runoff Election Appears Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic contender John A. Durkin, reversing his previous position, called Tuesday for a runoff election to determine who should be New Hampshire's junior senator

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, said that in all probability the Senate would go along with the request and send the lengthy controversy back to New Hampshire's voters.

Only Monday, Durkin had flatly rejected a proposal by his Republican opponent, Louis C. Wyman, for a new election Oct. 7 The two had engaged last November in the closest U.S. Senate race in history.

Initially, Wyman had a 355-vote edge over Durkin, but two partial reviews reversed the results The first recount gave Durkin a 10-vote margin, but a review recount gave Wyman a two-vote edge.

The matter then was placed before the Senate, where the Democratic majority has stood firm on deciding the race in the Senate despite a continuing campaign by Republicans for a new election.

Wyman said in a statement that he was "pleased that Mr. Durkin wants a new election. I want a new election, and so do the people of New Hampshire. I'm glad that the Senate can now proceed with the many important issues before it." Senate Republicans also were pleased.

Durkin said in his announcement, televised in Manchester, N.H., that he will meet with Senate leaders on Wednesday to discuss the possibility of a new election

"I want there to be no doubt about who sent John Durkin to Washington — and why," the Democrat said. "I do not want to be voted into the Senate by members of the Senate. So let's get on with a new election."

Prosecutor Won't Proceed Against Former Hunt Lawyer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Watergate Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr. has decided not to prosecute E. Howard Hunt's former lawyer who accepted more than $100,000 in secret cash deliveries for the original Watergate defendants, sources said Tuesday.

There was testimony during the Watergate cover-up trial, which ended Jan. 1, which directly contradicted what attorney William O. Bittman said under oath

But after a three-month review, Ruth has accepted a recommendation not to seek a grand jury indictment against Bittman, the sources said.

Because Bittman had such close ties to at least one former member of the prosecutor's staff and was integrally involved in early Watergate investigations, an outside lawyer was hired by Ruth to review the case.

The sources declined to name the outside lawyer, but said he found a conviction against Bittman was doubtful.

Bittman, a Democrat with a reputation as a tough federal prosecutor when Robert F. Kennedy was attorney general, headed one of two successful prosecutions of former Teamsters union boss Jimmy Hoffa.

The other was led by James F. Neal, who was also the chief prosecutor in the Watergate cover-up trial. Until Watergate, Neal and Bittman were close friends.

Bittman was a prosperous Washington attorney in July 1972, when he became one of a succession of lawyers hired by Watergate conspirator Hunt, now serving a prison term.

Testimony in the cover-up trial showed Bittman went far beyond the role usually played by a lawyer, taking night time deliveries of cash in his outside mailbox and holding at least one secret meeting in a car.

Bittman insisted he never knew that the cash payments were intended to keep the original defendants silent on the involvement of higher level officials in the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters June 17, 1972.

At the cover-up trial, however, Hunt produced a memo in which he had warned the Nixon White House that the hush money payments must continue if he and the other defendants were to remain quiet.

Hunt testified that he discussed the memo with Bittman. Austin Mittler, a lawyer who once worked in the same law firm with Bittman, also testified Bittman showed him the memo.

Bittman said he never saw the Hunt memo until long after the extent of the Watergate scandal was known, and even then, the lawyer said he didn't believe Hunt's threats were serious.

Jobs Bill, Approved By Senate, Alters Sewage Money Formula

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday approved a sweeping public works jobs bill that would authorize $2.1 billion for projects and provide a new form of assistance to cities and states facing stiff budget pressures.

The bill, passed 65-28 and sent to the House, also would change the formula by which $9 billion in previously impounded sewage treatment funds would be distributed to the states. Seventeen states would lose money, while 33 would gain.

The new formula for distributing federal sewage treatment grants was approved 61-34 and will allocate the $9 billion according to population and need. The old formula considered need only.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., said that without the change 10 states would have received 64% of the money.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, whose state would lose $30.6 million, said the new formula would penalize industrial states and bring the sewage treatment construction programs to a "screeching halt."

Muskie won Senate approval of a new type of aid program for cities and states hard-pressed by the recession. His amendement, passed 58-36, would establish a fund to be distributed to cities and states with high joblessness when the nation's unemployment rate exceeds 6%.

No city or state with less than 6% unemployment would qualify for the aid, which would amount to $1.75 billion under the current 8.6% national jobless rate. The higher the unemployment rate, the more money a state or city would receive.

Muskie said the amendment, which could authorize up to $5.2 billion over three years, represents sound fiscal policy during a recession since it will keep states and cities from cutting services or increasing taxes to offset revenue losses due to high unemployment.

Such actions by local governments, Muskie said, undermine federal efforts to pump more money into the economy to offset the recession.

Opponents said the Muskie amendment increases the bill's chance to be vetoed. President Ford has asked Congress to undertake no anti-recessionary programs except the tax cut already enacted.

Two Arrested In Colonels' Slayings

Tehran, Iran (UPI)—Iranian security agents have captured two left-wing "terrorists" involved in the ambush slaying of two U.S. Air Force colonels in Tehran May 21, the government Pars news agency reported Tuesday.

The agency said police arrested the two Iranians following a gunfight Monday. It gave no further details of the gun battle but said the security men seized documents outlining plans to assassinate other Iranian and foreign officials.

Police identified the two men as Wahid Rahman Afrakhteh, whom they said was a ringleader of the clandestine "Islamic Marxist Group," and Mohsen Khamoushi.

They said that under interrogation by security officials, Afrakhteh confessed to taking part in the assassination of the two Americans and also to involvement in the similar ambush slayings of an Iranian U.S. consulate employee in Tehran July 3 and of an Iranian general and his driver earlier this year.

Afrakhteh also told his interrogators that Khamoushi and two other members of the Marxist group were involved in all the killings, Pars said.

The American officers killed May 21 were Col. Paul R. Shaffer, 45, of Dayton, Ohio, and Lt. Col. Jack H. Turner, 45, of Carbondale, Ill. They were stationed in Tehran with the 1,000-member U.S. Army Military Advisers' Mission.

They were ambushed outside Shaffer's home as they were leaving for work in an official automobile. The terrorists forced the colonels' car to the curb, riddled them with machinegun bullets and then fled.

The Marxist group is opposed to the regime of the shah and its close relationship with the United States.

Woman Suggests Male Bordello

Mrs. Meyers, a mother of four, has applied for a business license in Lodi, an agricultural town 10 miles north of Stockton, in hopes of opening a male bordello atop the beer outlet she operates with her husband.

But she admits she is not as interested in opening a house of prostitution for women as she is in striking a blow against laws she says discriminate against women.

"I read an article in a newspaper July 17 from Brockton, Mass., entitled 'Male Prostitution No Crime' where a judge ruled that it was illegal for females to be prostitutes, but not for males since the law didn't mention them," Mrs. Meyers said in an interview.

"Really, what I'm doing this for is to test the law. I've talked to men and women about this and they're all angry about inequality.

"Most people ask me if I would go through with it if I got the business license, and the answer is that I, naturally, would," she said. "I'm a businesswoman and I think a venture like this would be very profitable."

But Lodi City Atty. Robert Mullen doesn't believe Mrs. Meyers will get her business license.

"We can't grant it. We've got a (state) penal code section that says any person who engages in prostitution is breaking the law, and we don't license illegal businesses," he said.

"Besides, we could be subject to a suit by women if we allowed male prostitutes. What's good for the gander is good for goose, I guess."

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Wednesday

Jockeys: The Aries rider has element of timing today, while the Pisces jockey can be expected to bring in the favorites. For upset winners, stick with the Sagittarius rider. Look for big payoffs — public selections tend to overlook the obvious, to ignore past performances going back more than one or two events.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Questions concerning home, marriage arise. Cycle is such that you do best by getting to heart of matters. Stand tall for principles but make intelligent concessions. Harmony at home is more important than usual. Contractual obligation can be settled.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What appears a setback is merely a temporary delay. See beyond the immediate. Perceive potential. Eschew get-rich-quick schemes. Much that occurs is behind the scenes. You may be visiting one confined to home or hospital.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Excitement, romantic interlude, creative projects and friendship — these areas are featured. Relationship is intensified. Nothing is lukewarm — it will be all or nothing, hot or cold. Know it and don't play games with emotions. Cancer, Capricorn figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are given test — and you can successfully meet challenge. Finish what you start — expand horizons, core of operations. One in authority wants to make room for you at more elevated position.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New approach brings best results. Calling, writing could waste time. Be selective, independent and creative. Find different course of action. One who is evasive is doing a lot of thinking — know it and maintain emotional balance. Member of opposite sex figures prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Gain shown through consolidation. Pull together loose ends. Be aware of budgetary requirements, commitments, cash flow or lack of it. One close to you may be expecting too much, too soon.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lie low where details are concerned. Means wait to check fine points. Forces now tend to be scattered. You could be going in too many directions. Know it and take stock. Social activity is favored. You meet people who can prepare groundwork for future advancement. Gemini is in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Much that is obscured is due to be clarified. Key is patience, persistence and an outline of eventual goal. You gain flashes of insight. Accent is on employment, health, performance of special services.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be prepared for questions answers, special requests. Open dialogue with member of opposite sex who means much to you. Gemini, Virgo are likely to be involved. Creativity is stimulated. Lovers' quarrel may be on agenda.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Home life, domestic adjustments, special luxury item purchase — these are spotlighted. Be a comparison shopper. Genuine bargain is available, but you won't get something for nothing. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. Your security if of more concern than usual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Travel plans require review. Check costs, reservations. Be sure you know what you're getting, for how much and for how long. Some relatives seem determined to fight — and to try to drag you into a nonsensical controversy. Have none of it!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You get windfall — back pay, past credit due and — the like. Unusual, uorthodox events, procedures dominate. Money is on the line and you could strike pay dirt. Older invividual does have your best interests at heart.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have good sense of humor, somewhat of a weight problem, you are artistic, fond of theater, a dramatic, dynamic individual who is extravagant, magnetic and stubborn. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. If single, marriage could be upcoming. The year features change, travel, variety. December will be one of your most significant months of 1975.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Wednesday

Jockeys: The Aries rider has element of timing today while the Pisces jockey can be expected to bring in the favorites. For upset winners stick with the Sagittarius rider. Look for big payoffs — public selections tend to overlook the obvious, to ignore past performances going back more than one or two events.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Questions concerning home, marriage arise. Cycle is such that you do best by getting to heart of matters. Stand tall for principles but make intelligent concessions. Harmony at home is more important than usual. Contractual obligation can be settled.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) What appears a setback is merely a temporary delay. See beyond the immediate. Perceive potential. Eschew get-rich-quick schemes. Much that occurs is behind the scenes. You may be visiting one confined to home or hospital.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Excitement, romantic interlude, creative projects and friendship — these areas are featured. Relationship is intensified. Nothing is lukewarm — it will be all or nothing, hot or cold. Know it and don't play games with emotions. Cancer, Capricorn figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are given test — and you can successfully meet challenge. Finish what you start — expand horizons, core of operations. One in authority wants to make room for you at more elevated position.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) New approach brings best results. Calling, writing could waste time. Be selective, independent and creative. Find different course of action. One who is evasive is doing a lot of thinking — know it and maintain emotional balance. Member of opposite sex figures prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Gain shown through consolidation. Pull together loose ends. Be aware of budgetary requirements, commitments, cash flow or lack of it. One close to you may be expecting too much, too soon.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Lie low where details are concerned. Means wait to check fine points. Forces now tend to be scattered. You could be going in too many directions. Know it and take stock. Social activity is favored. You meet people who can prepare groundwork for future advancement. Gemini is in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Much that is obscured is due to be clarified. Key is patience, persistence and an outline of eventual goal. You gain flashes of insight. Accent is on employment, health, performance of special services.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Be prepared for questions, answers, special requests. Open dialogue with member of opposite sex who means much to you. Gemini, Virgo are likely to be involved. Creativity is stimulated. Lovers' quarrel may be on agenda.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Home life, domestic adjustments, special luxury item purchase — these are spotlighted. Be a comparison shopper. Genuine bargain is available, but you won't get something for nothing. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. Your security if of more concern than usual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Travel plans require review. Check costs, reservations. Be sure you know what you're getting, for how much and for how long. Some relatives seem determined to fight — and to try to drag you into a nonsensical controversy. Have none of it!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You get windfall — back pay, past credit due and — the like. Unusual, orthodox events, procedures dominate. Money is on the line and you could strike pay dirt. Older invividual does have your best interests at heart.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have good sense of humor, somewhat of a weight problem, you are artistic, fond of theater, a dramatic, dynamic individual who is extravagant, magnetic and stubborn. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. If single, marriage could be upcoming. The year features change, travel, variety. December will be one of your most significant months of 1975.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
